2 ASPHALT COMPANIES FINED FOR PRICE FIXING

Florida Firms Fined $30,000

I-J Special Report

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.—Officials of two Fort Lauderdale asphalt firms and the firms themselves were fined a total of $30,000 yesterday in Miami's federal court as result of pleas of "no contest" to a count of government information charging price rigging.

Judge Emmett C. Choate judged the defendants guilty on Nov. 12. From Tallahassee, the state capital, came word of a $48,976.12 settlement with one of the firms—R. H. Wright, Inc., which had been suspended from the State Road Board's bid list in 1961. The company denied the state's claim for damages but said it was willing to settle in order to continue operations with the state.

Two days earlier the City of Fort Lauderdale reached accord in a settlement with the Wright firm for $27,500, plus two years' interest, in a civil suit stemming from the alleged price fixing.

Yesterday's sentencing included imposition of a $13,000 fine against the Wright firm while Robert J. Hummell of Pompano Beach, former Wright president, was fined $3,000.

South Florida Asphalt Corp. was also fined $13,000 while its president, J. J. Packo of Fort Lauderdale, was fined $3,000.

Fort Lauderdale still has damage suits pending against South Florida and East Coast Asphalt Corp. East Coast and its vice president Eugene Ballard have pleaded innocent to price fix charges with no trial date yet set.

All three firms are targets of price fixing damage suits filed by Robert Elmore, president of Hardrives Co. of Fort Lauderdale, who asks more than $300,000.

Yesterday's sentencings were under a section of the Clayton anti-trust law which carries no prison term but could have meant fines of up to $50,000 each.

Marin Officials Find Florida Case An Interesting Example

By RANDALL GOULD

Heavy penalties just imposed upon Florida asphalt firms for price fixing were seen by Marin County officials today as an interesting example of what can develop out of federal policy in seeking local information about identical bids.

For several years not only Marin County, but other California counties, have been receiving identical bids on liquid asphalt.

But the counties themselves lack facilities for investigating claims of sellers that this is just an odd coincidence, and federal authorities don't advertise in advance when they have sniffed out a situation justifying efforts at prosecution.

EFFORT MISFIRES

One Marin County effort to give information about parallel bids to Washington misfired through accident. It isn't known just what other counties may have done in response to a request for reports to the U. S. attorney-general about instances of bids in identical amounts.

In any case the curious situation is well known and widely discussed, according to Marin county purchasing agent John Hettrich.

"It comes up every year at the annual meeting of county purchasing agents," said Hettrich. "One of us is always asking another 'What about liquid asphalt?' and we always find we're getting bids identical in our areas. It was that way at last January's meeting in Sacramento and there'll be no change at the next one in Bakersfield, I judge."

MOSTLY COUNTIES

The situation in California mostly affects counties rather than cities because the cities' purchases in this field are relatively minor, and seldom made through bids supposed to be competitive as to price.

Marin County doesn't spend any vast amount on the road oil —about $20,000 to $25,000 a year, officials estimate — but through the years there has been an extraordinarily regular pattern of four to five firms all bidding the same rate. The companies always explain that their costs work out the same due to identical cost factors.

KIND OF FUNNY

That, however, is the kind of funny coincidence about which Uncle Sam sometimes likes to find out more, as Hettrich first heard in 1961.

In that year, Hettrich recalls, Robert Kennedy as new U. S. attorney general sent a letter to all county purchasing agents. It asked for any known instances of identical bids, or anything else that might suggest collusion on the part of the bidders.

"Of course," Hettrich pointed out, "in most categories of equipment including road material—rock, sand, gravel, pipe —we're clean so far as competitive bidding is concerned, and about this asphaltic emulsion the bidders seem to feel they are not in violation."

But since he was asked, Hettrich dutifully filled out an enclosed questionnaire showing that in that year five (as he recalls it) companies submitted precisely the same quotation to furnish liquid asphalt and asphaltic emulsion, used on the rock placed in roadways and serving as binder before the blacktop goes down.

About half a year later Hettrich received a second letter

Coroner's Duty Urged For Sheriff

Recommendations that the office of county coroner-public administrator be consolidated with that of sheriff, and that steps be taken looking toward removal of San Quentin Prison from Marin County, are included in the final report of the Law Enforcement Committee of the 1964 Marin County Grand Jury.

It will be transmitted to the Superior Court next Tuesday.

With reference to the proposed consolidation, the report said that "this procedure would be more economical and efficient, as much of the work now being conducted by the coroner is duplicated by the sheriff.

"It would also eliminate public criticism as to a conflict of interest on the part of any coroner with a financial interest in a mortuary. It eliminates the danger of possible solicitation by any coroner for private gain."

Supporting the recommendation the committee submitted a comparison between Marin and San Joaquin counties: The latter with a population of more than 270,000 and a case load of 769 had a coroner budget for 1963 of $25,000, as opposed to Marin with 195,000 population, a case load of 301 and a coroner budget of almost $36,000.

By this plan the county counsel would perform legal duties of the public administrator's office, "thereby channeling more revenue into the General Fund."

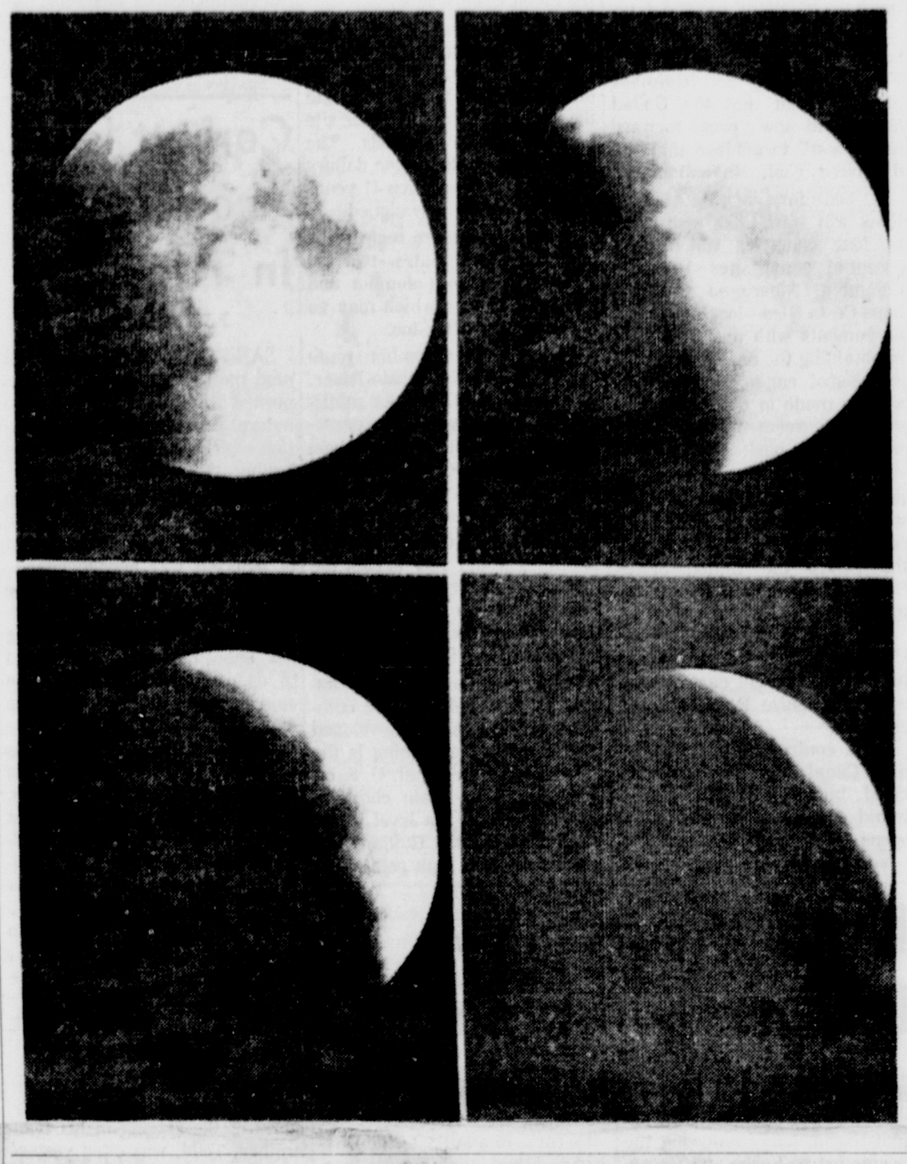

Of San Quentin, giving special heed to the record of many knifings and stabbings, the committee felt that the 1965 Marin County Grand Jury should appoint a special committee "to study the feasability of the physical removal of San Quentin Prison from Marin County."

With this were recommendations for increase in number on the security squad which searches for contraband, tightening of controls on use of tools, safeguarding of scrap material

Halleck Challenged For GOP Leadership

Rep. Ford Announces Candidacy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Gerald R. Ford, a "new breed" Republican with impressive credentials, today challenged veteran Rep. Charles A. Halleck for leadership of the thin GOP forces in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The 140 Republican House members left after the Democrats' election landslide will choose their leaders for the new 89th Congress at a party caucus Jan. 4. The Ford-Halleck battle for the post of minority leader could be even more intense than the struggle for leadership in the national party.

FOOTBALL PLAYER

The 51-year-old Ford, a former football player from Grand Rapids, Mich., was one of the "Young Turks" who helped Halleck upset Rep. Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass.) for the job of minority leader in 1959. Martin had held the post for 20 years.

Halleck, a short, ruddy-faced grandfather from Rensselear, Ind., was former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's right hand man in Congress and is known as a no-holds-barred political strategist. He has been the GOP leader for six years.

Ford, in announcing his candidacy, said the future of the two-party system was at stake, and the GOP leadership must display "a willingness to try new ideas by leading rather than simply reacting."

HOUSE CONTEST

"No one is going to sit on the bench. They've got to be 60-minute ball players," he added at a brief news conference.

Ford said the House contest was "related in no way" to the national party struggle involving Dean Burch, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater's handpicked party chairman. He also denied any conflict in political philosophy between him and Halleck who was a strong Goldwater supporter in the recent presidential election.

But he clearly linked Halleck to the Republican past and said the GOP must enter "a new era . . . write a new chapter."

The 64-year-old Halleck, vacationing in Florida, had no immediate comment.

Compromise Is Reached In Cal Fuss

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The University of California board of regents mixed compromise with firmness yesterday in attempting to bring peace to the Berkeley campus.

The board, meeting in Los Angeles, assured leaders of a free speech movement that there won't be any restrictions — beyond constitutional ones — on what causes students can advocate on campus. But the regents also warned they will take "necessary steps" to preserve law and order.

It was the on-campus campaigning for off-campus causes that embroiled the university's Berkeley campus in a three-month uproar over political freedom.

Student spokesmen bristled at the regents' avowal that they were boss — and overlooked the conciliatory aspects of the message.

But faculty spokesmen, who had previously sided with the student campaigners, said "progress has been made" in re-establishing peace on the discord-plagued Berkeley campus.

The academic senate at Berkeley — the faculty group there — had advocated that the students be allowed to champion any political cause they chose on campus. In this the regents Friday agreed.

The academic senate also asked that the faculty be allowed to take over handling of disciplinary measures in the area of political activity. On this the regents disagreed, saying "Ultimate authority for student discipline within the university is constitutionally vested in the regents, and is not subject to negotiation."

Lawmakers Hear Plea For Second Crossing

Golden Gate Bridge directors yesterday urged renewed action toward construction of a second bay crossing between San Francisco and Marin County.

They spoke at an all-day Civic Center public forum on legislation, first of its kind.

State Sen. John F. McCarthy (R-San Rafael), who presided, Rep. Don H. Clausen (R-Crescent City) and Assemblyman William T. Bagley (R-San Rafael) conducted the session to hear legislative recommendations from their constituents.

Vice President A. F. Derre and Director Thomas Hardcastle of the bridge board made pleas for action to alleviate increasing traffic volume.

Derre asked for legislation that would permit the bridge district to participate financially in a new study of all possible routes for a new crossing. He said the district then could cooperate with the state or federal government or other public agencies in a study, or act independently.

Under existing law, the district cannot expend its funds for a study of any crossing except across the Golden Gate, he explained.

McCarthy said he would introduce the requested legislation.

Hardcastle referred to the problem of financing a second bridge and recommended that an effort be made to have Highway 101 be made a part of the interstate highway system as a means of enlisting federal funds.

The legislators also received recommendations from a score of Marin officials, organizations and citizens.

Mayor John F. McInnis of San Rafael said that those who demand a moratorium on bay filling must realize that privately owned tidelands must be purchased if filling is to stop.

McInnis acknowledged that San Francisco Bay must be preserved, but said sizable state aid in addition to federal funds will be required to do it.

Many of those demanding the moratorium think that "we need only a declaration of a mora-

Synanon Control Is Asked

State legislation guaranteeing licensing and control of Synanon Corp. was urged at yesterday's all-day legislative forum at the Civic Center.

Arnold Punshon of Marshall recommended provisions for penalties, prosecution and abatement powers.

"There is no control over Synanon by the State Department of Health, the Department of Mental Hygiene, the Department of Corrections or adult parole," Punshon said.

Punshon pointed out that Synanon House at Marshall has refused to apply for a use permit and has defied Marin County officials.

"Synanon has repeatedly been in litigation because of their insistence upon moving into residential areas zoned as inappropriate for institutional use," he said.

"This points up the necessity for defining their treatment and rehabilitation centers as institutions, or writing new laws to bring them under the controls affecting everyone else."

Punshon made his recommendation to State Sen. John F. McCarthy, Rep. Donald H. Clausen and Assemblyman William T. Bagley who conducted the forum on needed legislation.

Bagley said he was shocked by the "apparent high-handed methods" used by Synanon and didn't like to see the corporation defying county officials.

THE CHRISTMAS STORY

Angel Gabriel Grants Zachary His Prayer

By FULTON OURSLER

(Third in a series)

Then suddenly Zachary came out in a wild rush from the sanctuary, and something very serious was wrong with him — the whole multitude could see that. Swaying dizzily down the 12 steps, he staggered to the rim of the open part of the altar.

As Zachary tottered there, Annas, the High Priest, leaped forward and put strong arms around him. In the stillness of the sunset air they could all hear the crisp voice of Annas asking for an explanation. But Zachary, cheeks pale, eyes glittering, hair mussed, could only stamp his right foot and wave his arms in frantic movements, pointing to his open mouth as if he had swallowed the mystery and therefore could make no sound.

There was nothing to be done but for Annas to leave him standing there while he, as high priest, took over the service.

Not until they were back home in Ain Karim did Zachary divulge the facts. He sat at the table, motioning for parchment and quills; Zachary would talk with them by writing; the first

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Warden Of Prison Found Shot

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The warden of the Missouri State Prison was found shot to death in his home late last night. Police said the death was an apparent suicide.

Police said Warden E. V. Nash apparently shot himself in the right temple in the bedroom of his home. He was found by his wife.

Nash

Authorities said Nash had been under criticism by state officials for his administration of the prison. His dismissal had been recommended, they said.

Nash's death came about 24 hours after he had been criticized in a preliminary legislative report by State Rep. Petter J. J. Rabbitt, St. Louis County Democrat and chairman on a joint committee on correctional institutions and problems.

Rabbitt's report called for immediate replacement of Nash and eventual closing of the state penitentiary. The report said the operation of the prison was "confused beyond comprehension" and that the Missouri correction system was in a "medieval twilight zone."

Catholic Church Joins Council

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Santa Fe will become a member of the New Mexico Council of Churches, an organization of seven Protestant denominations.

The move was announced yesterday in a joint statement by Archbishop James Peter Davis and the Rev. Harry Summers, executive secretary of the council. They called it "a cause of great expectations for every man of good will."

Bonanno

Archbishop Davis said that as far as he knows, his diocese, which covers all New Mexico, is the first to join a council of churches.

Rev. Summers said individual Catholic churches in a few cities have joined local councils. He cited Tulsa, Okla., as an example.

Archbishop Davis said it was "an individual decision" and his secretary added that approval was not required from officials higher in the Catholic Church.

Archbishop Davis, 60, was installed as the ninth archbishop of Santa Fe on Feb. 25, 1964.

'Kidnaped' Hoodlum Reported Alive

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mafia chief Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno, believed kidnaped and executed by the underworld to prevent his talking to a federal grand jury, was reported alive yesterday by his lawyer.

Attorney William P. Maloney, who was with the Cosa Nostra hoodlum, when the alleged kidnaping took place said he had received word that Bonanno was "well, alive and available" and would meet Monday with U.S. Atty. Robert M. Morgenthau.

Davis

Bonanno, 59, is scheduled to appear before the federal grand jury which is investigating organized crime.

Maloney says he received a telephone call from Banana's son, Salvatore, yesterday, telling him his father was safe and well.

Salvatore disappeared from New York, a few days after his father. Police predicted that if the two men were ever found they would be wearing cement blocks as shoes at the bottom of some river.

Federal authorities have not revealed why they want to speak to Joe Bananas but it is generally believed the discussions will touch on narcotics.

Gov. Esquivel, 56, had one year remaining to serve in a six-year term. His death was attributed to a heart attack. The funeral was held at a cemetery in the border city of Calexico.

Latin American Canal Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A historic presidential order has opened the way for a new Atlantic-Pacific canal to replace the Panama Canal within 10 to 15 years.

The new canal is to flow at sea level through Panama or a neighboring country, and will probably put the old passageway with its expensive locks out of business.

The troubled 1903 treaty with Panama is to be scrapped soon in favor of a new pact which the United States hopes will heal old wounds while the original canal becomes a relic of bygone days.

President Lyndon B. Johnson went before television cameras Friday to read his landmark announcement that the United States will now "press forward in earnest" to achieve the long discussed goal. He announced.

1. Secretary of State Dean Rusk will start talks with three or four countries which have potential canal sites—Panama, Colombia, Nicaragua and perhaps Costa Rica—looking toward agreements with any interested in obtaining the new route. Then on-the-spot engineering surveys will be made in those countries signing agreements to decide which site is best.

2. "An entirely new treaty on the existing Panama Canal" will be proposed to Panama to replace the half-century-old pact that gives the United States Canal Zone rights "in perpetuity."

The new treaty would retain U. S. rights needed to run and protect the present canal, but it would recognize Panama's sovereignty.

U. S. control of the 10 by 50-mile Canal Zone strip as exercised under the 1903 accord would end when the new canal opens.

Yesterday's announcement climaxed lengthy talks between the United States and Panama begun after the bloody anti-American riots there last January. Panama's president Marco A. Robles hailed it as "a historic day" for his country.

The announcement also marked a turning point in the years of deliberations over building a second trans-oceanic waterway for security and for the growing shop traffic already starting to clog the present canal. Johnson noted that 300 modern vessels which have been or are being built are too big to pass through the canal when loaded.

What the new canal would cost is a matter of guesswork, with estimates ranging from 750 million dollars to about double the amount depending on the site and excavation methods. The old canal cost 380 million dollars and went into operation 11 years after the treaty was signed.

Johnson said there seem to be four possible routes—two in Panama, one in Colombia and one in Nicaragua which may go through Costa Rica too.

The 95-mile Colombia route would parallel the Atrato River. Colombia's public works minister last night said that sparsely populated route would be best because atomic explosives could be used to excavate inexpensively.

The Nicaragua route of some 140 miles would veer across the Costa Rican border south of Lake Nicaragua to avoid draining the large lake at heavy economic loss to Nicaragua.

The 59-mile Sasardi-Mori Panama route would traverse comparatively flat and undeveloped land. Also in the running is the present Panama Canal. U. S. officials said the main chore in converting it to sea level would be digging out the Gaillard Cut which is now a high point.

Recreation Policy Disclosed In State

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A major change in state recreation policy was disclosed by the Brown administration today following the resignation of Parks and Recreation Director Charles A. DeTurk.

A spokesman said the Gov. Edmund G. Brown may ask the legislature next month to combine the State Park Commission and the State Recreation Commission.

And Resources Agency Administrator Hugo Fisher said the state plans to pump additional millions of dollars into projects that provide Californians a chance to actively engage in recreational activities — rather than just looking at scenery.

Small craft harbors and fishing, boating and beach developments around the new state water project reservoirs and aqueducts will gain in the policy change, he said.

DeTurk, 58-year-old career administrator who came to California from Washington State five years ago, quit yesterday amid rumors that he was going to be fired.

Alfred J. Stern, chairman of the State Park Commission, admitted that several commissioners had criticized DeTurk's work at a conference with Gov. Brown. But Stern denied a report that the commissioners had voted 5-2 in favor of DeTurk's dismissal.

DeTurk, in a letter to the Governor, asked that he be permitted to return to his former job as chief of the Division of Beaches and Parks, a subdivision of Parks and Recreation. He said his abilities are best suited to just guiding the park program.

Fisher said the administration is now looking for a new man for the $22,500-a-year Parks and Recreation post. He could be found "next month or next week," Fisher said.

Meanwhile, DeTurk, in stepping down, displaced the present Division of Beaches and Parks chief, Edward Dolder, who receives $18,786 a year. Fisher said a responsible job will be found for Dolder in the Resources Agency.

Fisher said that with additional funds available from the 150-million-dollar parks and recreation bond issue, California will be able to spend much more on recreation facilities.

Referring to the water projects, small craft harbors and other facilities, he said "we're taking on an added burden not within the normal concept of the historic park program.

"The bond issue requires us to place more of an emphasis on recreation values," he said, adding that in the past the stress was placed on "preserving areas of beauty."

"We couldn't spend 85 million dollars to buy redwoods," he said, speaking of the land purchase money available from the bonds.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon B. Johnson pushed a button to light up the nation's Christmas tree last night and told Americans "these are the most hopeful times in all the years since Christ was born in Bethlehem."

WHY SEND CARD? TAKE OUT AN AD

LONDON (AP) — Some Britons have begun placing newspaper advertisements instead of sending Christmas cards, with the money saved going to charities.

A popular spot for the mass-circulation yuletide wishes is the personal column of that staid newspaper, the Times.

Some companies even are expressing their yule wishes on the printed pages.

Here's a typical advertisement in the Times' front page personal column: "The British Road Federation is not sending Christmas cards this year. Instead it is making a donation to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents."

Corbett Is Acquitted In Trial

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A jury of nine men and three women acquitted Dr. Robert K. Corbett in federal court last night of abortion charges, after five hours of deliberation.

"My whole future has been saved!" the 29-year-old physician declared when the verdict of innocent was announced.

Corbett had testified that Lupe Alice Estrada, 28, had threatened to accuse him of fathering her unborn child if he refused to operate to abort it. But he said he had told no one of this except a brother now dead — Donald G. Corbett Jr. who was murdered by two robbers in his Sausalito apartment last March.

He is a resident in urology at the University of California Medical Center, father of two children and was backed in his defense by his wife Marlene.

The case was turned over to the jury by Judge Albert C. Wollenberg at 3:45 p.m. yesterday.

Child Support

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Wealthy Timothy Nicholson, 22, accused of the slaying of his twin brother, Todd, was cited yesterday in superior court for failure to pay child support and attorney fees totaling $1,150. Attorney Edward Raiden, representing Timothy Nicholson's ex-wife, Patricia, 27, said Nicholson was cited by Superior Judge Roger A. Pfaff for contempt of court. Nicholson was ordered to appear Jan. 6 to answer the contempt charge.

Cause Of Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Socialite Mrs. Phyllis Clay Fraser died Dec. 11 of an "overwhelming bacterial infection in the lungs," according to coroner Henry Turkel. The blonde beauty apparently died in her sleep as the guest in the home of her friend, Mrs. Hans Klussman. The cause of death for the 34-year-old jet set playgirl had been tentatively listed as a heart attack, pending pathalogical and toxiological examinations. These tests revealed that Mrs. Fraser died of the infection, "a very severe form of bronchitis."

from Washington, asking him to furnish what he already had sent in. He says he promptly replied explaining that he had compiled, but maybe the information had been lost so wouldn't Washington send more forms to fill out.

There was no response to that, nor have any more forms ever come. If they do, Hettrich has something to report—the same old situation repeated year after year, with four or five firms always involved.

County supervisors have frequently expressed surprise and they have felt baffled as to how to handle their own problem of selection, quite another matter from checking up as to anything criminal in the deal.

For several years they put the names of the identical bidders into a hat and had some disinterested person — an Independent-Journal reporter served with distinction the first time—draw the lucky bidder.

This year the four identical-minded suppliers were the Douglas Oil Co., Union Oil Co., American Bitumuls and Asphalt Co. and Shell Oil Co. The supervisors gave a new twist to an old situation by awarding the contract to all four bidders, from which it will draw as it sees fit.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney views the situation with interest but without power to take an initiative, he says.

"Marin County just doesn't have the facilities to conduct a price-fixing investigation," Maloney explained, adding wistfully, "It's a mighty nice deal if you can prove something."

In the Florida cases it hasn't even been necessary to prove complete cases to a jury's satisfaction. For most of the more than $106,000 collected from two firms and their officials so far (with other suits pending) came on pleas of "no contest" or "voluntary" payments to be kept on the Florida state bid list.

Maloney recalled the recent incident of Novato and San Rafael school district recoveries of costs of bleachers plus extra money, on identical contracts, but said "the attorney general did the work" which covered many counties.

In other aspects of highway materials the record shows sometimes wide divergencies in bids for the county, though occasionally a couple of firms will bid the same as with aggregate base rock where two companies this year bid $1.85 a ton as against $2.10 for a third.

For rip-rap there were two bids of $3.50 a ton with a third of $3.10, the same three companies swapping positions in the two matters. Here too the supervisors awarded a contract to each of the identical bidders with purchases to be made as needed from the quarry nearest the job site.

In general, none of these involves money at all measuring up to an estimate by Maloney of $50,000 cost for legal fees in filing a suit. But Maloney said the county could if desired report any such information to a price-fixing task force of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers.

Of Marin County cities, most of which buy without competitive bidding and thus could build no sort of case, San Rafael like Marin County found this year that there was similarity of bidding on asphaltic emulsion.

Contracts were awarded to both Hutchinson Co. of El Cerrito and McPhails Inc. of San Rafael, both of whom bid 15 cents a gallon.

In 1962-63 fiscal year there were identical bids from Camgros Gravel and Fuel Co. Inc. of San Rafael and McPhail's on type "A" concrete, at $17.24 per cubic yard, and type "B" concrete, $16.20, with both getting contracts. Again, the same firms had identical prices on asphaltic emulsion and contracts went to both.

With a price of 14 cents a gallon identical bids were made in the same year on asphaltic emulsion by Hutchinson and Basalt Rock Co. of Napa. The same firms made identical bids on asphaltic concrete in various sizes, base rock and rock scrapings, while identical brick bids of $60.60 per 1,000 were entered by Camgros and MacPhail's.

Deputy City Clerk W. C. Cornwell says the city has never resorted to drawing names but it gives duplicate contracts, so that on any given job the material is obtained from whichever firm is closest.

Novato with no corporation yard has no place to store and it has done no large jobs of street reconstruction with its own crews. On patching material it has sought the lowest prices from among three companies and found slight variations according to Lawrence A. Coleman, public works director.

San Anselmo and Fairfax don't employ competitive bidding. Stanley M. Bala, Mill Valley city engineer, says about price rigging—"I never got the feeling there was any, in fact I find the prices wild." As example he mentioned recent bids for two-inch asphalt overlay on Sunnyside Avenue where the low bid was $8.94 per ton, the high bid $11.70.

Sausalito City Engineer B. J. Whitlow said that "I'm convinced there is no rigging in regular construction business as applied to Sausalito."

were issued for southwest winds 25 to 40 miles an hour.

The downpour brought reports of flooding at some points. In the Tamalpais Valley flood control area, water was reported up over creek banks and flooding into backyards.

Poor viewing conditions blotted out any Marin glimpse of the total lunar eclipse last night.

Travel warnings were issued today for heavy snows in the Northern California mountains and all of the Sierra Nevada. Visibility was expected to be near zero in the snow through tomorrow.

Gale winds in the northern part of the state smashed windows, toppled trees and caused power failures last night. The Contra Costa County sheriff's headquarters was forced to operate on emergency power for four hours during the night.

Most major highways in Northern California and Nevada required chains today but all roads were open.

Three inches of snow fell on most of Washington State during the night, and western Oregon was glazed by freezing rain.

Around the nation today at least 20 persons, most of them children, perished in home fires.

SYNANON

of Sponsors of Synanon, said Synanon is seeking "declaratory relief" in court against the county's abatement order.

Punshon also recommended that:

Conformance with local zoning ordinances be a condition of licensing and approval.

Each Synanon resident be required to register with the local police department or sheriff's office and be finger-printed and photographed as an aid to law enforcement.

Consideration be given to limiting the size of the rehabilitation centers to effect better control.

Hopps Ordered To Start Term

Stewart B. Hopps, 61, former Belvedere resident under conviction of mail fraud in insurance promotion, has been ordered by a federal district court in Baltimore to start serving his sentence Jan. 4, Associated Press reports.

He had asked suspension of sentence for allegedly helping the Department of Justice in a number of cases dealing with the Teamsters Union.

Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen, who presided at the trial as well as the hearing of Hopps' appeal, denied either probation or suspension but changed the 18-months prison sentence to provide that Hopps could be eligible for parole at any time. But he raised bail from $10,000 to $25,000.

Two Teen-Agers Hurt in Crash

Two San Anselmo teen-agers were hurt just before midnight last night when their car collided with another on West Fourth Street at Alexander Street in San Rafael.

Winston Whitney, 17, of 35 Angela Avenue, San Anselmo, was treated for an injured right knee and his passenger, Patricia O'Rourke, 16, of 6 Jordan Avenue, San Anselmo, was treated for back injury, both at San Rafael General Hospital.

Whitney had pulled out of Alexander Street into West Fourth Street into the path of a car driven by Daniel H. Hubbard, 23, of 875 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo.

Man Is Booked After Accident

Benjamin F. A. Balboa, 64, of Inverness Park, was booked on a drunk driving charge at the Marin County Jail yesterday after his car skidded off the road into a bank on the Point Reyes-Petaluma Road near Hicks Valley Road.

Police first took Balboa to San Rafael General Hospital, where no injuries were found, then to jail.

JURY

to reduce illicit making of knives, and formation of a special San Quentin Committee on future grand juries.

Supporting these recommendations the committee said that knifings and stabbings at the prison are "of serious concern to Marin County "because they take up about a quarter of the Superior Courts' time and an even larger part of the time of the district attorney's office. During the past year more than 60 per cent of grand jury meetings, says the report, were devoted to San Quentin stabbing matters.

"The number of stabbings in the state prisons in California is well above the national average, particularly San Quentin," said the report citing figures from prisons in 16 states in substantiation. But it was conceded that "the prison is antiquated and outmoded . . . the inmate population of approximately 4,500 is much too large, and we believe that it is impossible to eliminate stabbing incidents altogether."

Dealing with Juvenile Hall the committee recommended that the new girls' unit be added to ease need caused by population growth; a courtroom should be provided in lieu of the office used at present; and an indoor gymnasium study should be conducted to determine feasibility.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos was deemed to be "conducting an efficient organization" but the county jail and offices were considered antiquated, with operation as efficient as possible under present conditions bearing in mind proposed construction of a new wing at the Civic Center for this purpose.

Meanwhile ventilation was found "of serious concern in the jail" and an early survey to determine the practicality of a temporary air conditioning system was recommended.

Declaring that Mel Morse and staff are doing "an outstanding job" for the county through the Humane Society, the committee had no recommendations.

Operation by Kenneth Brown of the weights and measures work was judged "satisfactory," with no recommendations.

The committee recalled its report of Nov. 6 exonerating the district attorney's office of criticisms voiced by the Independent-Journal Sept. 18. Further investigation, said the committee, disclosed that Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales "has performed his duties honestly and in accordance with the highest standards of the legal profession."

Submitting the report were Eric M. Tainter as chairman, Russell E. Anderson, John P. McNamee, Thomas B. Rickey, and Angelo R. Turrini.

Dope Suspects Are Arraigned

Two of three suspects in a San Quentin Prison heroin ring were arraigned yesterday afternoon before Marin Municipal Judge Leonard A. Thomas, but their cases were continued to 1:30 p.m. Tuesday for plea.

They were Jesus Gonzales, 36, and Horace Daniel Lenington, 38. A third prison inmate similarly charged with conspiracy to smuggle the drug, Robert Lujan, 38, has been at Soledad prison and he was brought to San Rafael too late for the arraignment. His case was similarly continued to Tuesday.

Arraignment of a fourth suspect, Joseph Matthew Herman, 57, a Mill Valley resident employed at the prison, will be at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

torium to stop all filling," said McInnis.

Assemblyman Bagley agreed, saying "A moratorium is fine. But there's going to be a shock, say three years from now, when people realize they have to pay the bill."

McInnis also asked the legislators for "prompt action" to get the San Rafael overpass widened.

Representatives from other cities also presented suggestions.

Novato Mayor Robert D. Carrow submitted a 10-point proposal, headed by request for $75,000 for a flood control feasibility study.

Mayor Neil R. Brixon of Larkspur presented what the legislators described as the "best report yet." Brixon handed in written suggestions and stepped down without a word.

His report contained 10 points including support for an east-west route from San Rafael to San Anselmo, Fairfax and West Marin, in conformity with the San Rafael General Plan. Brixon also indicated that funds being held up in Washington for Urban Redevelopment projects in California should be released.

Councilman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. of Fairfax said he supports Supervisor-elect Ernest N. Kettenhofen's proposals on the east-west highway route, and on the Corte Madera Flood Control project.

Kettenhofen proposed a two-stage construction of Corte Madera Creek flood control so that some of the natural beauty of the area upstream from Ross can be preserved.

On the east-west route, Kettenhofen suggested a road from near the Civic Center to the ridge above Terra Linda, and out to White's Hill, bypassing heavily populated areas. He said federal aid should be sought, because the road will carry out-of-county visitors to the Point Reyes National Seashore.

Fairfax Councilman George Pagni suggested that legislators consider placing the headquarters of the Point Reyes National Seashore in Fairfax, which is the city nearest to the seashore.

Dorothy Olson, chairman of the Fairfax Citizens Study Group, urged a bay fill moratorium and asked that the state highway department be more responsive to local interests.

San Anselmo, represented by Administrator Douglas J. Flautt, backed Kettenhofen's proposal for a review of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project and federal and state aid for access to Point Reyes Seashore.

Flautt and other city officials asked for state legislation for control of community antenna systems.

Dr. Stephen Epler of College of Marin requested relief to meet a rising enrollment, up two and one-half times since 1960. He asked for legislation to change the method of accrediting the registered nursing program, and relaxing the rules on junior college boundaries so that students can attend junior colleges closer to their homes.

Dr. Epler also asked for more state support for junior colleges. He said junior colleges at present get the lowest percentage of state support.

Mrs. Marcelle McCoy, manager of Marin Art and Garden Fair, said that more of the parimutuel fund revenues should be retained for state fairs instead of being taken into the general fund.

They will spend Christmas eve with Mr. Haddock's mother, Mrs. Mabel Haddock, and then the remainder of the week with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gene A. Trovinen and their children, Terrence, Melinda and Brett.

MRS. MIMI BEALE of Novato is being feted at several parties before moving to Ross. She is a member of the Newcomers Club and several members have entertained at their homes for her. A punch party was held at the home of Mrs. Tarrell Tipton for 12 guests and yesterday Mrs. Norman Tropf entertained at a luncheon and bridge party for 16 women. On Dec. 29 Mrs. Robert Farrell will be hostess at her home for a luncheon and bridge party. Mrs. Sydney Smith will be co-hostess.

Novel Games At Top Of Santa's Pack This Year

AP Newsfeatures

But Santa, what do you have for rainy days?

What else? Games, of course.

Top of the pack this year are games that emphasize lighthearted action.

To release small fry from the tensions of homework is a typical laugh-provoking game, Kookie Chicks. Wobbly chicks are moved with magnetic sticks. The goal is to push the eggs into a nest.

A novel game, Shenanigans, is a 3D recreation of carnival grounds with action on a wide range of zany contests, all in the interest of carnival adventuring.

Brain games include Alumni Fun that poses questions in the areas of arts, science and literature.

A new game of skill to challenge adult wits is Tangle. The object of the game of strategy is to surround hexagonal tiles with pieces of various shapes and point values. Like chess and checkers, the game can be played both offensively and defensively.

Among the new group of maze games are Tilt 'n' Roll and Bobbin Noggin. An electric hockey game has an icy-pro-puck to simulate the feel of action on real ice. An electric football game permits a player to call the play.

Word games include Educational Password keyed to the vocabulary children use, which is a companion to the word guessing game for elders. Missing Link calls for quick brain work in filling in key words that are read aloud.

Games enjoying a continuing vogue include Dogfight, which replays air conflicts of World War I, and Stratego which bases play on maneuvers of Napoleonic field marshals.

An old-timers favorite, Parcheesi, and newer adult games like Scrabble will find their way into Santa's pack again this year.

Blouse-Slip

A "glamour-slip" rates as the newest conversation piece for holiday wearing. Designed by Olga of California, it is a slip that with an added part doubles for a sparkling blouse to wear under little velvet or brocade suits. The blouse-front of shimmering, iridescent rainbows sequins attaches to a full slip of pale pink nylon tricot. Matching pink mist stretch lace edges strap sides and back for perfectionist fit.

Concealed Elastic Holds The Square Neckline Down Flat

By EUNICE FARMER

So many of the new styles have a square neckline. I vaguely remember your giving instructions on keeping a square neckline nice and flat instead of gapping open. Could you please repeat this, and also tell us how to cut a square neckline from one that is cut high?

Mrs. R. H.

Dear Mrs. R. H.:

The trick of keeping a square neckline nice and flat (and guaranteed not to gap) works best if the neckline is rather low. Place a piece of ¼-inch elastic at an angle, just inside each of the two corners. Fasten securely for about ½ inch to facing only. When the dress is slipped over your head, bring both sections of elastic to the center back, bringing them under your shoulder straps as you do (this will also keep straps in place).

At the spot where the two sections of elastic meet, you will sew a hook on one end and an eye on the other so it can be hooked to itself. Be sure not to pull the elastic too tight because it will pull the front of the dress out of shape if you do. I know you will love this very simple remedy.

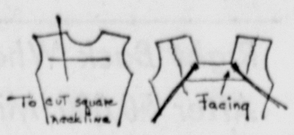

In order to cut a square neckline from one that is already round, take a ruler and draw from the neckline, straight down. Then mark across the neckline as low as you desire. This will make a perfect square. It's better to begin with a neckline cut too small, you can always widen and lower it.

With the men in your family hunting pheasants this time of the year, be sure to save those beautiful feathers. It's too close to the holidays now, but right after Christmas I will tell you how to make a glamorous hat with the precious feathers. They're always in style.

STRETCH PREVENTION

Mrs. Bernard M. Mahler, Chicago, Ill., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner with this suggestion.

To prevent stretching of the neckline, especially if it is a scoop neckline of jersey or any stretchy material, split seam binding in half lengthwise and pin at intervals around neck while it is still on your cutting board. Then machine stitch before putting garment together. (This is a great suggestion because most of you stretch garments out of shape by handling before construction.)

In a recent article you told how to make a Chanel suit out of a man's suit. I have looked everywhere and asked everyone and no one knows what a Chanel suit is. Will you please let me know?

Mrs. H.E.M.

Dear Mrs. H.E.M.:

I'm sorry I didn't make this clear to you. Actually the word "Chanel" is taken after the great French designer, Coco Chanel. She is the first designer who made simple, straight-cut suits without collars that we have all loved and worn so much. One of her signatures is also the use of 4 pockets on the suits. She has modified this style many times but her suits are famous for the ease and comfort and wearability.

Since menswear type fabrics have begun to creep back into the fashion picture, I thought it would be interesting to have you send me ideas for making over men's suits. The most unusual and original suggestions will be awarded a Tailor Trix pressing board.

Send all your suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of the Independent-Journal. (Remember your limitations in cutting a pattern from a man's suit, you will have to consider pockets, lapels, etc., and work around them.)

I have a beautiful floor length, long-sleeved satin wedding dress. I would like to make it into a formal; could this be done successfully?

Mrs. E.C.

Dear Mrs. E.C.:

I wouldn't recommend it. Satin is one of those fabrics in which it is almost impossible to press out creases or to rip seams without the seams showing permanently. Unless you could combine the satin skirt with a velvet bodice or something similar, I would just leave it the way it is. If you can use the same basic seam lines, you might successfully do it.

MAKE A FELT skirt for any round table in your home, end tables, coffee table, or your dining room table. They are so elegant and glamorous and so easy to do.

1. Measure the width of the table, divide in half and add to this measurement, the length from the edge of table to the floor. You will need twice this amount for a circular skirt (usually, you will need felt 72 inches wide).

2. Finish the lower edge with ball fringe, holly leaves, or whatever. Some of the exclusive shops have them for around $60, yours can be made for under $10.

While you're at it, make covers for table linens. Take a piece of blue felt (blue keeps white linens from getting yellow), cut corners off and fold sides toward the center, then fold the bottom up and the top down. Your favorite linens will be kept clean and lovely and ready to use. Finish by adding a monogram out of pre-embroidered initials.

'Spotty' Report For The Holidays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the practical side of the holiday feast, be sure to keep in mind the greasy types of foods which might be spilled on rugs and carpets.

A few drops of gravy, turkey drippings, mincemeat pie — all can cause unsightly stains on carpeting unless fast action is taken.

First, wipe up the excess with white absorbent material. For extra greasy spills, use small amounts of a dry cleaning fluid, blotting after each application with white absorbent material.

Next, suggests the National Institute of Rug Cleaning, Inc., mix a solution of one teaspoon neutral detergent to one-half pint lukewarm water. Apply in small amounts, blotting after each application.

Buffet Decoration

A small tree made of glossy green boxwood, and trimmed with golden garnette roses and a string or two of glistening baubles, is an ideal choice for a buffet table.

PUTTING THE FINISHING TOUCHES on the third afghan she has made since September is Mrs. William Wieland of Loma Verde. The afghans will be sent to relatives and friends for Christmas. Mrs. Wieland, born in Saskatchewan, Canada, is the youngest of nine children and learned to keep her hands busy crocheting during the long winter months. Coming to Marin County four years ago, Mrs. Wieland has taken up a new hobby, golfing. The entire family plays golf and nearly every afternoon, weather permitting, six-year-old Patrick and Mrs. Wieland are on the Marin Country Club golf course.

Former Canadian Learned Crocheting During Long Winter Months On Ranch

By DOROTHY NEWELL

Mrs. William Wieland of Loma Verde believes in keeping her hands busy, and because of this, relatives and friends will receive beautiful Christmas gifts from her.

Begining in September, Mrs. Wieland crocheted three afghans —one for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Honch in Biggar, Saskatchewan, Canada, for Mr. Wieland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wieland of Toledo, O. and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hendrix of Toledo.

Last year, Mrs. Wieland crocheted an afghan for a friend at the Marin Country Club, Mrs. Albert Morris, in the record time of just two weeks.

Mrs. Wieland lived in the country in Saskatchewan on a ranch before her marriage and spent the winter months crocheting, embroidering and "fighting" with her brothers and sisters. Helene Wieland was the youngest of nine children in the Honch family.

She grew up learning to keep busy and working. Her Ukranian parents were pioneers in Saskatchewan and the girls as well as the boys learned to work outside, where they helped to clear rocks from the land before planting wheat, helped to harvest crops and Helen milked six cows a day before walking to school two miles away. Their nearest neighbor was four miles away.

No wonder then that the versatile and charming Helene has learned to be self-sufficient and never wastes time.

Along with her hobby of crocheting, she also likes to bake and any afternoon, weather permitting, Helene and her son, six-year-old Patrick, will be seen at the Marin Country Club playing golf.

Mrs. Wieland has been playing golf for four years since coming to Marin county and has brought her score down from a 36 to a 15, bringing her handicap down 19 strokes. Young Patrick has been golfing for three years and plays nine holes with his mother. He uses a cut down iron and a cut down putter.

Another of Mrs. Wieland's hobbies is singing and playing the guitar. Before her marriage, she and her sister, Dolly, sang western tunes over a radio station in Saskatoon.

Mrs. Wieland and her husband are members of the Marin Country Club, Loma Verde Parent-Teacher Assn. and Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. Mr. Wieland is branch and sales manager of Records Service, Inc. and they have lived in Marin County four years.

Are We Headed Toward One-Party Government?

REAPPORTIONMENT WILL be one of the foremost topics of news dispatches when the state legislature and the national congress begin their sessions right after the first of the year.

As State Senator Collier (of Yreka) has predicted, our traditional balance of state government in California — balanced between urban and rural, and between the northern and southern parts of our elongated state—is unquestionably doomed.

The U. S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" edict will ring down the curtain on the long era when states patterned their state bi-cameral legislatures after the federal senate-house arrangements, as provided in the U. S. constitution.

The constitution provides that arrangement ONLY for the federal congress. The U. S. Supreme Court has decided that the idea of having the states follow the same pattern is, after 188 years, unconstitutional and in error.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE historic decision, there was expectation that an amendment to the U. S. Constitution could and would be adopted to undo the court decision.

Just about the last hope that such an amendment would ever be adopted vanished last Nov. 3, when 13 states which historically had Republican state legislatures broke precedent and elected Democratic-controlled state legislatures.

Republican strength more often than not lies in less heavily populated areas which would NOT benefit from reapportionment. Republican state legislatures generally could be expected to support a U. S. Constitutional amendment to restore the traditional senate-house relationship.

Democrats generally find party strength greater in areas of concentrated population, which expect to benefit from reapportionment. Democratic state legislatures will be less favorably inclined toward an amendment to reverse the court's decision.

SO IT IS THAT, whether we like it or not, we are not likely to have the help of a U. S. Constitutional amendment to keep Los Angeles County from having control of both houses of the California legislature, come reapportionment.

Nationally, with 13 traditionally Republican state legislatures lost to Democrats, you can bet that the reapportioning and re-districting will be done to the benefit of Democrats. The amount of Republican representation in the national congress as well as state legislatures will be even further reduced.

Are we headed for one-party government?

Is the two-party system in jeopardy? There are many who think so.

CONGRESSMAN CLAUSEN entertains friends with his explanation of a plan by Representative Brock (a Tennessee Republican) to influence economy in government and, ultimately, to bring a balanced budget.

Rep. Brock's plan is simple. He advocates a law hitching the salaries of top echelon federal officials to the rise and fall (inversely) of the national debt.

The salaries of members of congress would be involved, too.

It would work this way: Every time the national debt rose another billion dollars, salaries would automatically be cut by a certain per cent; when government debt declined, salaries would be raised.

In no time at all, Rep. Brock's plan would bring a permanently balanced budget to the U.S.A. — for the first time in more than a generation, its most ardent supporters insist.

Wonder if anyone will advance such an idea for the heads of state government and our own legislature in Sacramento?

—Jack Craemer

Marin's Native Christmas Berry

The bright red berries of the Toyon shrub or small tree are Marin's native Christmas decoration. Its large, glossy, dark-green leaves make a nice contrast to the scarlet fruit.

The California Indians ate the berries after cooking them slightly. This takes away the bitter taste of the fresh fruit.

A kind of cider was made by boiling the berries in the kitchens of the early Californians. Tea made from the leaves and bark was used by the Indians as a cure for stomach ache and other aches and pains.

A small Toyon tree loaded with bright red berries against its dark green foliage fairly breathes the spirit of Christmas.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the Loyal Order of Moose lodges in Novato, Petaluma and Santa Rosa for planning a "coffee break" safety program for the Christmas holiday weekend. Some 100 to 150 men will distribute free coffee and safety literature at six rest stops in Marin and Sonoma.

BOUQUETS to the junior chambers of commerce for joining with the Independent-Journal in giving Marin youngsters a chance to "telephone" their Christmas requests to Santa.

A BOUQUET to Fort Cronkhite soldier Aoese Osimalo, 27, who gave his life to save another at a church fire last May in San Francisco. Osimalo received the Soldier's Medal, highest Army award for peacetime bravery.

A BOUQUET to San Rafael city officials and the builders for opening the double decker parking lots before Christmas.

A BOUQUET to Judge Richard M. Sims Jr. for his promotion to the appellate court bench. We hate to lose him to San Francisco, but at least he'll remain a resident here.

BRICKBATS to people who let their young children steal outdoor Christmas light bulbs from neighboring homes.

A BOUQUET to 91-year-old Mrs. Harvey A. Klyce of Mill Valley, the Outdoor Art Club's only living founder. She was recently presented with a bronze founders' plaque.

LONG-DISTANCE SWIM SAVES CASTAWAYS

One man swam nearly 40 miles in the Gulf of Mexico to get help for his three companions adrift in a fishing boat during a storm.

About 50 hours later, he was found by the Mexican Coast Guard, which then rescued his fellow sailors.

The 40-year-old swimmer was treated for dehydration, acute exhaustion, first degree burns on face, head and arms and numerous cuts.

The four-men had drawn lots to determine which one would swim for help.

Few persons would have anything like the skill and endurance of this intrepid swimmer. Nevertheless, most of us rate our abilities far below what they actually are.

When the opportunity arises to "put out into the deep" for the love of God and neighbor, be ready to act with prudence, courage and resourcefulness.

You may never make the headlines but you will be surprised to find that when the situation calls for it, you can do so much and so well.

"Put out into the deep, and lower your nets for a catch." (Luke 5:4)

Show me, O Lord, a true picture of my potential, so that I may use it for You and others.

Suspicion Grows Over Marincello

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Marincello has all the earmarks of a silk purse, a silk purse into which we are invited to dip at will for refunds of our tax dollars.

But there is a growing suspicion among thoughtful Marin citizens that all is not as it seems, that if one were to scratch the ground a little in that fog-enshrouded, wind-swept valley, one might disturb a slumbering pig, hidden but for lo! his wakeful open ear.

Doesn't Like 'War Games'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Tuesday night's I-J (Dec. 8) announced that "War Games May Rattle Windows in This County." War Games will be played by SAC out of Hamilton Air Base by B58 Hustler Bombers and others.

We are forewarned by the Public Relations Dept. of the Strategic Air Command that we must not become annoyed or nervous just because our windows rattle and the sky is filled with booming and machine-made thunder, but, on the contrary, we should be happy that Big Brother is up there protecting us. It is most considerate of the P. R. system to warn us of this impending invasion of our peace and quiet on Thursday night and Friday morning.

It would seem that the P. R. of S. A. C. is trying to condition us to become accustomed to this noise nuisance, which is already bad enough whenever the weather is clear, so that they may continue to play their "war games" instead of finding more workable and rational solutions to the problems that confront the world today.

I might add for the benefit of the tax-payer who questions about where his dollar goes, he will be able to hear the answer loud and clear on Thursday and Friday.

U.C. Teachers Held At Fault

Editor, Independent-Journal:

While millions of our young people are not able to enter any college or university for one reason or another, a small minority of students at the University of California at Berkeley have created a condition whereby it precludes any chance of over 20,000 other students getting the maximum benefit of educational instruction available.

The position taken by the academic senate (composed entirely of faculty members) indicates beyond any doubt that the teachers, not the students, are responsible for the shameful and unlawful acts committed on the campus. It is my candid opinion that the majority of the teaching staff are teaching treason and sedition in their classes and claiming immunity under the guise of academic freedom. This condition must be remedied. If not by the people intrusted to do so, then it must be done by you and I. After all we are footing the bill. And, as for myself, unless steps are taken to eliminate the persons causing these unlawful acts, I personally shall initiate steps to abolish all tax supported colleges.

Conformity Is Last Refuge Of Insecurity

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In both the vocal and letters column reaction to the events in Berkeley, the dominant note in the plaint of the suffering "taxpayers" appears to be an irascible panic that deepens with each successive temblor. It takes the form of an anguished bawling for the regents to do something.

Well, a chorus of bleats is rarely impressive, even when the flock numbers hundreds and is sustained by the muted contrapuntal booming of editorial opinion. The tough-minded undergraduates on the U. C. campus and their allies on the faculty, not excluding the rights workers and the more enlightened segment of organized labor, will know how to evaluate this type of protest.

If, as the good Dr. Johnson discovered, "patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel," then surely a rigid, tetanic conformity is the last refuge of the insecure.

Boat Trash Thrown Over

Editor, Independent-Journal:

A few days ago I was aboard a party boat fishing for stripers in the San Pablo Bay. This boat berths out of Richmond. An incident occurred that I felt should be called to the attention of those of us who are interested in keeping our bay usable as a recreation area.

Following an afternoon's fishing trip during which the galley was active in preparing sandwiches and other foods, a rather large box of trash had accumulated. On the way back to the dock this box of trash was thrown into the bay rather than being returned dockside for disposal on shore.

It would seem to me that this would be the last thing that owners of boats such as this would want to do since in actuality the bay is their sole means of livelihood. Had this material been in the form of garbage rather than trash, it would have been understandable, but it consisted mainly of paper products, including the cardboard box in which they were placed.

Since I don't know who is responsible for policing the bay, I am writing to you in hopes that situations such as this can be corrected. If there is a proper agency to police such matters, I will be more than happy to supply them with the name of the boat and the date and time of occurrence of this incident.

We have laws preventing littering of our highways and if we don't have similar laws for our waterways, then certainly something should be done to prevent this needless littering.

Right Back Where We Started, After 50,000 Miles Travel

COMES A TIME when every day is Sunday and there's pie for dinner every night . . . so what next?

Well—in my case the clock struck 12 and Cinderella Gould was right back scrubbing the floor of the I-J news room.

'Twas fun while it lasted.

This time last year found me painfully limping along toward overdue and richly deserved retirement.

Forty-five years of dodging hard work had left me hardly enough strength to argue with good old Manny Charnow that no, I was not a "senior citizen." No matter how I looked.

I was tired of typewriters and even cooling off about pretty stenographers. (Maybe Manny knew best.)

SO JANUARY found wife Agnes and me voyaging through the Golden Gate and bound around the world. Not for the first time, but it had been a long while.

Things weren't so different from Marin County, we found. We even found a typewriter in our baggage but nobody was paying any more for its output.

There were more monkeys in Penang and more Singapore gin slings in Singapore, but the quality was about the same. And those three wise monkeys carved over the Stable of the Sacred Horse in Nikko looked just like County Administrator Alan Bruce, Auditor-Controller Mike Mitchell, and old whatzis-name that used to report the supervisors for the I-J.

That black cat Agnes found sitting on a brick in a bombed Antwerp lot gave us the same look as Bruce Coleman's feline pals in south Marin. You never saw a cat that would blow up anything it couldn't eat.

AS WE DROVE into Spain the first thing we saw was a cat and a dog sitting together and watching the tourists ride by. A few months later we drove up our own Hillside Avenue and there was a cat sitting between a dog's paws.

In case you can't get over to Ireland and Scotland, have a look at Marin's uplands and some of the Marin Municipal Water District reservoirs. Trouble with the reservoirs is that they aren't called things like Killarny.

Most of that famous roast beef of old England ought to be called pot roast, and you can do better on San Rafael's Fourth Street. Unless you really like Italy's squid, stick to Marin's abalone.

Haircuts at $2.50 look a little expensive as compared with prices from Tokyo to London, I'll admit. About five times as much as the world average but I never saw a Marin County barber that wasn't sympathetic. ("The unions make us.")

MONTE CARLO was one place I didn't figure on running into anybody from Marin. And as a matter of fact, I didn't. But Al Bock and Loren MacArthur were there when we were. Ships that passed in the dark; Agnes and I were looking at grand prix auto racing in the streets, Al and Loren were looking for the road out.

After we'd been gone half a year it seemed half a century. So we tucked our new red Porsche "Rotemaus" aboard ship and came home.

Trouble was, nobody knew we'd been away. So we jumped in Rotemaus and drove another 7,000 miles to make our total somewhere over 50,000.

By then we were so tired that I didn't struggle when the I-J reached out.

BACK ON THE JOB, I find that several people now can remember that I've been away.

They say, "Howzit, boy?" and shake hands. Then they say, "How long you gonna be around?" and when I say, "Not long," they give me a cigar.

The secret of lasting popularity probably lies in not staying around too long, I'd judge.

Meanwhile don't get the idea that it's a favor to be given a hot news item about your club's Christmas party. One way and another, I'm feeling a little tired today.

BARKER ON CHINA

'Awakened Giant' Is Still Anemic

By GEORGE BARKER

NAPOLEON'S warning about China being a "sleeping giant" that would someday shake the world when it awakened has many people frightened. Now that China has the A-bomb we are once again hearing that hackneyed phrase, "Yellow Peril," applied to that country.

Because I think the United States would be doing ourselves and the rest of the world a great disservice, if we frighten ourselves into a war with China, I would like to point out a few facts which will help, I hope, to prick the balloon of bugaboo and let us look at China with realistic eyes.

After centuries of being humiliated by the other countries of the world, Peking's leaders must be enjoying their clippings which exaggerate their importance in every little nationalistic struggle in Africa and Asia. But the sad truth is probably that these struggles would have taken place even if there were no China. By blaming Peking we unduly glorify China in the eyes of the oppressed peoples of the world.

DESPITE ALL the bluster from Peking and charges of recklessness from Moscow, most American observers seem to agree that China is observing a cautious external military policy, that prudence is winning the tug of war with ambition.

There are good reasons for China to be prudent. She is a crippled collosus, an anemic giant. War costs goods and materials. With her millions of people living at a bare subsistence level, war would quite simply mean starvation. A country needs a strong economic base to wage an all out war. China doesn't have the agricultural capability to feed her own people adequately.

CHINA HAS virtually no navy. Her air force consists largely of antiquated Russian planes left over from the Korean war. Only her land army could be a threat. It is largely an unknown quantity. Zeal and loyalty questionable. Only on contiguous countries, like Russia, India, Laos, Korea or Vietnam, could China wage war.

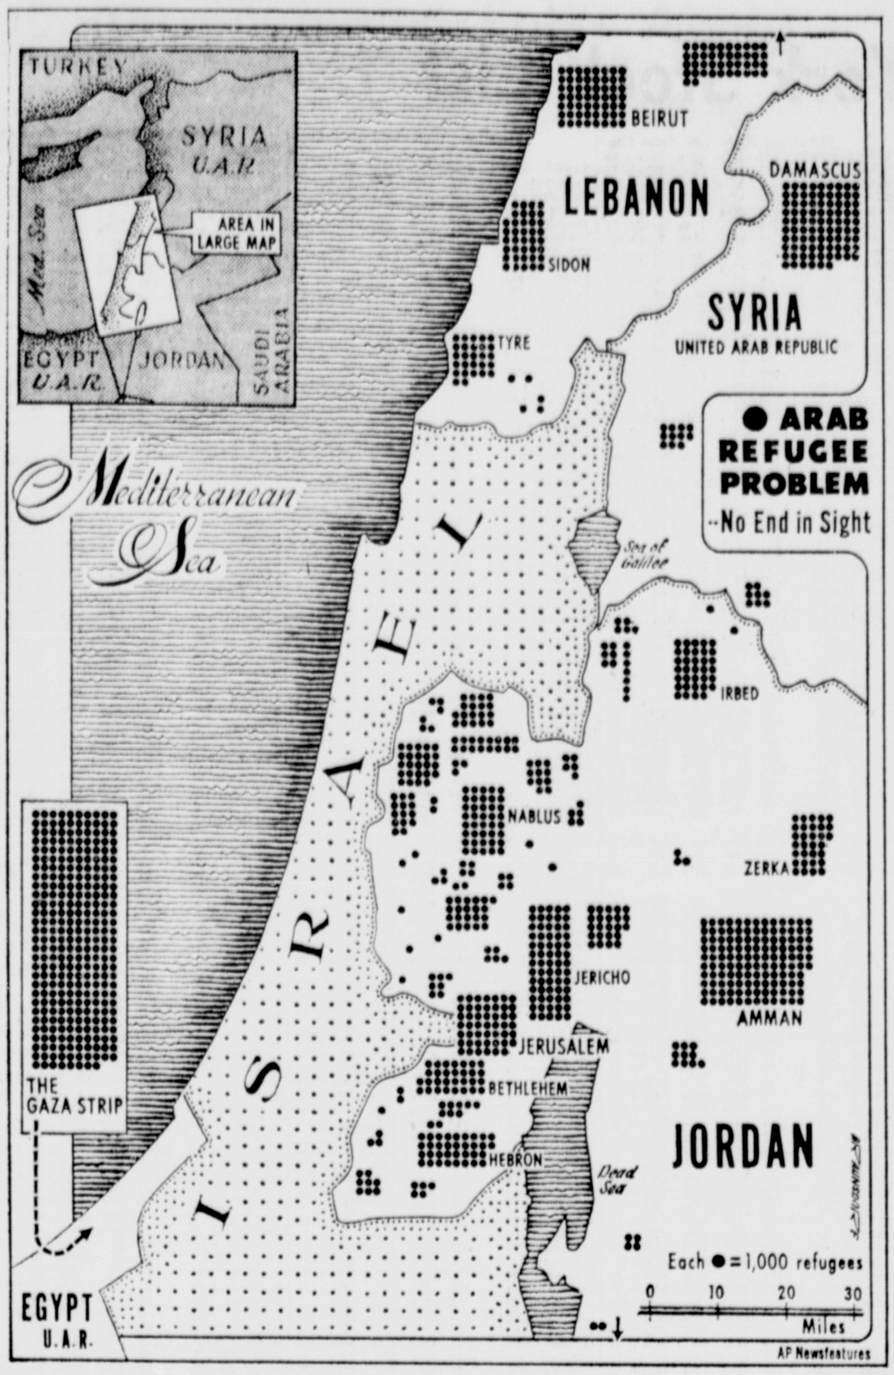

U.S. airbases ring China from Thailand to northern Japan and Korea. Russian airbases complete the encirclement to the north and west. U.S. Polaris submarines armed with rockets bearing nuclear warheads patrol the China coast, along with other units of our fleet. We have made a virtual arsenal of Taiwan.

Let Peking rant and rave. Let Mao have his brief moment of glory as "the saviour of mankind"—then go the way of Stalin. We can afford to play it calm and cool. We've got all the cards.

Arab Refugees Festering Sore

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Palestine refugee problem, a running political sore, continues to fester in the eastern Mediterranean area around Israel. After 16 years, it shows little signs of healing.

Realistic United Nations officials fear it could yet cause serious trouble in the region. But despite past failures, it appears the U.N. will keep trying for a solution.

The U.N. Palestine Relief and Works Agency (UNWRA) is the principal U.N. tool for taking care of the thousands of Palestine Arabs who fled their homes in what became Israel during the Palestine wars in 1948. They scattered to Jordan, Lebanon, Syria and the Gaza Strip of the United Arab Republic.

The agency has been functioning for 14 years, its lease of life extended periodically for from two to five years.

The U.N. General Assembly session, opening shortly, must decide whether the agency is to go on feeding, housing and educating the refugees, at an average cost of $37 million a year.

The agency's director-general, Laurence A. Michelmore, an American, in his report to the assembly said that if the assembly wants the agency to continue its work it should get at least a five-year extension.

With 473,113 births and 96,067 deaths registered between July 1950 and June 1964, the refugee population now is numbered at 1.2 million. Rations and special services for mothers and children go to 1.1 million. The others have found some measure of self support.

There were 48,802 births between July 1963 and June 1964, second highest figure over the years.

About 500,000 live in camps dotting the four Arab countries, the rest in villages and cities.

The newest report of the agency shows registered refugees distributed as follows:

Jordan 670,000; Gaza 289,000; Lebanon 155,000; and Syria 131,000.

Since UNRWA was set up in May 1950, governments, U.N. specialized agencies and sundry institutes and individuals have pledged 499.4 million dollars for the aid program. The United States furnished 340 million dollars of that total.

Numerous school and church groups around the world—31 in the United States last year—also helped with food, clothing and medical care.

The four host countries also contributed $6.5 million last year alone.

The Israelis say the refugees fled under order of Arab leaders who tried in 1948 to crush the infant Israeli state and have threatened its extermination ever since.

The Arabs say the refugees were forced from their homes by Zionist immigrants from Eastern Europe who settled in Palestine to set up an imperialist superstate in the Middle East.

Israel has said it could not comply with General Assembly resolutions saying the refugees should be allowed to return. Massive repatriation would menace Israel's security by loading the country with men, women and children taught to hate Israel, its spokesmen have said.

Israel has offered to negotiate compensation for the refugees but the tangled Middle East political situation has nullified any practical solution.

The Arab countries say they cannot absorb the refugees into their own economy. Michelmore's report notes that the countries have low employment levels to begin with.

Skimpy rations, a feeling of futility about the future, Israeli fears and Arab hates all contribute to aggravation of the political wound.

Michelmore's report best expresses the pessimism about the future:

"What is not in doubt is that their (the refugees) longing to return home is intense and widespread . . . They feel that they have been betrayed and their resentment is directed not only against those whom they regard as the chief authors of their exile but also against the international community at large whom they hold responsible for the partition and loss of their homeland . . .

"As they see it, the International community has a duty to enable them to return to their homes and meanwhile to provide for their maintenance and welfare . . . A large hard core of refugees will continue to live in poverty and dependence on the charity of their fellow men for the indefinite future."

He said it would seem that most of the refugees in the Gaza Strip, many of those in Jordan and a significant number of those in the other countries will have to be cared for by the world unless some solution is found.

Growth Of Leasing In Business Becomes Tax Collecting Problem

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The State Board of Equalization has issued a warning that the leasing business is getting better and better and the better it gets, the worse the tax picture is.

John W. Lynch, vice chairman of the tax collecting board, made his comments recently to the Senate Fact Finding Committee on Revenue and Taxation.

"The practice of leasing rather than selling tangible personal property has expanded by leaps and bounds in the past decade," Lynch said. "Leasing companies which have come into existence in recent years will lease almost any conceivable piece of equipment.

"Many items, such as computers and office machines, are now acquired entirely on a lease basis rather than by purchase," he said. "Recently, banks have also entered the field of equipment leasing. Leasing has become a way of business life, in competition with selling."

Lynch said he understood the Ford Motor Co. soon would enter the leasing field and other automobile manufacturers might be expected to follow.

The problem with leasing and taxes, Lynch said, is that the manufacturers of goods or equipment that is leased pay sales tax only on the raw materials which go into manufacture of the goods or equipment. In many cases, this is only a fraction of the sales price.

The firms do not pay taxes on the cost of labor, normal overhead, or their profit.

Automobile sales are one of the major sources of sales tax revenue and much of the state's economy depends on this, Lynch said. Any shift of the industry from sales to leases could have disastrous effects on the sales tax revenue picture.

Lynch proposed that firms which lease equipment or goods should pay a sales or use tax on their lease or rental receipts. He said this could amount to as much as 16.3 million dollars a year in new state sales tax revenues and 5.5 million dollars in the local sales taxes.

Members of the Senate committee were quick to point out there were some flaws and inequities in Lynch's proposal. Sen. George Miller Jr. (D-Martinez) said lease prices include interest or carrying charges and it would not be proper to charge sales tax on this. Sen. Stanley Arnold (D-Susanville) suggested any taxes on leases be limited to the sales price, rather than to rental receipts.

Sen. J. Eugene McAteer (D-San Francisco) asked if sales tax collection didn't presume a change in title and thus would not be applicable to leases.

The board spokesman said there are many leases which are called "lease in lieu of sale," under which title eventually passes to the person leasing the goods or equipment. But McAteer said taxing of lease agreements would require study of every type of lease and might produce a lot of confusion.

There are several reasons why leasing has become popular in business. For one thing, all lease costs are written off as business expenses, while, if the equipment is purchased, it must be depreciated for tax purposes.

Many big contracting firms have gone in for leasing of heavy equipment because this leaves them cash money in the bank. Contractors bidding on big jobs, for the state or federal government, must post performance bonds which are based on their cash worth. A contractor could own millions of dollars worth of equipment, but if he had no cash money he would have difficulty getting bonds to post with his bids on contracts.

So it might be said that leasing is here to stay—at least the legitimate type of leasing. But it seems that some way of collecting the fair share of taxes on such goods and equipment could be found, rather than a flat sales tax on the rental receipts.

Aircraft Builders Dreaming About Vertical Take-Offs

By WILLIAM E. HOWARD
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Military aircraft builders have a recurring dream.

They are looking down on a broad expanse of jungle. Fighting is under way below, marked by the bursts of mortar shells. Suddenly, enemy bombers appear on the horizon.

The situation looks bad. Then, as if by magic, a covey of small U. S. jet fighters rises from hiding places among the matted trees and roars off to stop the attackers. Later the planes return and, hovering like hummingbirds, slowly settle straight down into their jungle nests. Mission accomplished.

Millions of dollars and 13 years of research have been poured into the development of such vertical take-off and landing aircraft able to operate without benefit of runways—but only now does it appear the dream has a chance of coming true.

The U. S. frontrunner in the VTOL sweepstakes is the XV-5A, built for the army by Ryan Aeronautical Co. and powered by two General Electric Co. jets.

The XV-5A was flown for the first time earlier this year and only recently made a successful transition from vertical to horizontal flight.

This is tricky. In the split second that the aircraft is changing from upward to forward motion, there is a danger of losing aerodynamic control. The plane can stall and plunge to the ground.

A principle known as the "lift-fan" is employed. These are fans, which look not much different than big electric fans, embedded in each wing and also in the nose to control the craft's altitude. The fans are powered by gas run through ducts from the jet engines.

Another serious problem is that the engines consume an enormous amount of fuel during vertical flight because so much energy is needed.

Hopefully, by lightening the aircraft and perfecting more efficient engines, the designers can turn them into combat machines. They are in the process of trying but only with a British model, the P-1127.

Builders of the XV-5A are understandably put out. They are asking the army to finance a 100-million-dollar advanced version, which they claim will be far superior to the British machines. But as yet, no sale.

The competition may be more rewarding in the long run in the development of commercial vertical or short-field transports. There is no guarantee that the military will ever buy any VTOL fighters for combat use, even if they are perfected.

Says Pentagon research chief Dr. Harold Brown, "I think it is quite possible we will decide we won't want VTOL."

The reason: The dream of jungle-based aircraft is a very special situation. Conventional long range fighters and reconnaissance planes operating from air fields to the rear probably could do the job equally well.

Integration Scores A Victory

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Racial integration scored a victory in the United States this week and there was some progress towards nuclear integration among the Western powers.

The Supreme Court made it clear that the controversial public accommodations provision of the 1964 Civil Rights Act was constitutional. A unanimous decision upheld the section which bans racial discrimination in hotels, motels, restaurants, theaters and other enterprises affecting interstate commerce.

The court split 5-4, however, on a decision that wipes out pending state prosecutions against some 3,000 civil rights demonstrators who had been arrested while peacefully trying to integrate establishments subsequently covered by the new Civil Rights Act.

In hailing the court's decision, President Lyndon B. Johnson said, "The nation has spoken with a single voice on the question of equal rights and equal opportunity."

Equal rights and opportunities also were in the spotlight, at the ministerial strategy conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris.

French President Charles de Gaulle remained steadfast in his arguments that the European Allies cannot remain dependent on the U.S. nuclear deterrent for their own self-protection. He wants an independent Europe relying on France's nuclear power and able to deal on terms of equality with the U.S.

De Gaulle held to his position despite the revelation by Defense Secretary Robert McNamara that roughly 40 per cent of America's atom might is concentrated in Europe or near the Russian perimeter.

Informed observers of the ministers' conference predicted there would be a reconciliation of the differences between France and the NATO powers on the question of nuclear coordination. Talks between de Gaulle and President Johnson also appeared likely next year.

The statistics were staggering: In West Germany alone the U.S. has 5,000 times the atomic might that devastated Hiroshima. And besides a mighty arsenal of missiles and bombers to deliver its A-punch, this country also has nuclear "mines" that could be planted along the iron curtain to halt communist land forces if war appeared likely.

The implication for NATO ministers was clear: The small French nuclear force is hardly a realistic deterrent for Europe to rely on.

McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk could report, after the ministers' conference that Great Britain, West Germany, Italy and the Netherlands had agreed to hold separate meetings outside NATO to consider a powerful Atlantic force centered on U.S. nuclear strength.

At Washington President Johnson announced plans for a new U.S. canal in Central America or Colombia to link the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

A jury at Newark, N.J., sentenced American engineer John Butenko to 30 years in prison for spying. Igor Ivanov, a Russian chauffeur, received a 20 year sentence for his part in the plot to pass defense secrets to Moscow. Both men maintained their innocence.

After six months of bitter debate, Canada had a new national flag—the red maple leaf. Only the formality of a proclamation from Queen Elizabeth II was awaited to make official the banner whose controversial design had threatened to topple the Canadian government.

President Johnson announced 82.6 million dollars in new anti-poverty grants for the nation and there were reports he was considering stepping up his war on poverty next year with a two-billion-dollar request.

MANY ARE SAFE

How Many Murderers Live In West Germany Today?

By WELLINGTON LONG

BONN (UPI) — West Germans are trying to decide how many murderers among them may be able to boast openly after May 8, 1965, about the headier days when they had a license to kill Jews.

The statute of limitations on murder runs in Germany for 20 years, and the Nazi regime and its period of crime came to an end on May 8, 1945, the day of its capitulation to the Allies.

As matters now stand, even Adolf Hitler would be safe from prosecution after then because no German court has opened a legal proceeding against him, on the assumption that he is dead.

The government says if anyone produces any evidence before then that Hitler is alive, formal charges will be laid against him. But others fear that if such evidence were made available after the deadline Hitler probably would be safe from prosecution.

Under German law, the 20 years of the statute of limitations runs from the date of the murder in question, or from the date of the last legal proceedings in the case.

The debate on extending the statute of limitations now has narrowed to a question of whether all or most of the Nazis mass murderers or their crimes have been identified and legal proceedings opened against them.

Federal Justice Minister Ewald Bucher believes most crimes and murderers have been detected and proceedings opened against them, so that they could be brought before a court at any moment during at least the next 20 years.

By Jan. 1, 1964, German courts had tried 12,882 persons for Nazi crimes.

District Attorney Erwin Schuele, responsible for most of the current investigation of hitherto unexplored Nazi crimes, believes the rate of undetected Nazi criminals "is somewhat less than for ordinary crime."

Schuele is head of the central office for the clarification of National Socialist crimes. Established in Ludwigsburg in 1958 at Schuele's suggestion, it coordinates the investigations of crimes committed by Nazis outside the geographic area of the West German Federal Republic, in the main, in Eastern Europe.

Those who demand an extension of the statute of limitations insists there are tons of documents yet to be read and many witnesses still to be heard which will identify perhaps thousands of Nazi criminals yet undetected and unpunished. Even the documents cannot possibly be assessed in the five months remaining of the 20 years since the fall of the Nazi regime, they argue.

Robert Kempner, an American lawyer of German birth who was one of the U.S. prosecutors at the Nuremberg trial of Hermann Goering and company, estimates that up to 10,000 Nazi murderers are still free.

"It is like an iceberg," Kempner says. "Six sevenths cannot be seen, and they are at least as dangerous as—when not more dangerous than—the one-seventh we can see."

Simon Wiesenthal, one of the men who led the search for Adolf Eichmann after everyone else assumed he, as Hitler, was dead, thinks 250 Nazi leaders now considered deceased are alive, and living somewhere with false identities.

Even though Chancellor Ludwig Erhard has said in September that "to me personally it is intolerable that mass murderers could be allowed to run around free," he and his cabinet decided in November against seeking an extension of the statute of limitations.

But the government did send out a call to all foreign governments to provide any documents or evidence they might have relating to Nazi crimes still unpunished.

Several members of the opposition Social Democratic Party banded with some supporters of Erhard's government to ask the cabinet to report to parliament by next March 1 whether search of the documents justifies the assumption that most Nazi criminals have been identified.

If by then it appears a large number of Nazi murderers have not yet been the subject of legal proceedings, this all-party group is expected to move an extension of the statute of limitations.

Gerhard F. Kramer, representing the city-state of Hamburg in the Bundesrat (upper-house of parliament), has demanded the government reckon the statute of limitations, not from May 8, 1945, but from March 30, 1955.

On the latter date West Germany became wholly sovereign and legally able to institute proceedings against those of its citizens who were suspected of crimes outside the country. Until then, foreign courts had jurisdiction.

So far, most of the debate within Germany about the statute of limitations has concerned the practical question of whether any more Nazi criminals would be caught as a result.

Kramer is one of the few who has said that "the question of how many undetected cases there are is wholly uninteresting—even just one unpunished murder is too many."

In explaining the government's attitude, State Secretary Karl Guenther von Hase said it was thought that extending the statute of limitations "would mean making an exception to legal principles to suit the government's convenience."

Max Guede, a member of parliament and former federal attorney general, has admitted that the Germans were slow to prosecute their own Nazi criminals.

"But the omissions of the last 20 years," Guide says, "cannot any longer be effectively made good."

HE WOULD BE SAFE—This is how Adolf Hitler appeared in the early 1920s in Nurenberg with Julius Streicher. Even Hitler would be safe from prosecution of war crimes in Germany after next May 8.

Tiburon Manager Talks About Joint 'Home' With Belvedere

By ELLEN BRY

(Last of three articles)

Tiburon is trying to find a "home" office.

The city started out as a waif in a free school room provided by the Reed Union School District. With the beginning of classes the offices were moved to rented quarters.

At $100 a month, said to be half the normal rate for the office at 1610 Tiburon Boulevard, the city gets a medium size room where two secretaries, City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose and Leslie Gross, zoning-planning administrator are supposed to do business.

There is no place for a private conversation. The office is rented from Charles Tijerina, president of the Tiburon National Bank.

Rents are high in Belvedere and Tiburon. Half of the commercial district split between the cities is devoted to tourist trade. Spare lots on which to build a Tiburon city hall is as scarce as a real estate developer's philanthropy.

Rose dreams of a "city hall" somewhere near the Belvedere-Tiburon Post Office.

The Tiburon city manager would like to see more than a headquarters for one city, instead a community services building with offices for both Belvedere and Tiburon where they might share secretarial help, office supplies and equipment.

As Rose sees it, there might be offices for the fire districts, public utilities of quasi-public services, sanitary districts or other jurisdictions which should be easily available to the community.

But the advantage to Belvedere might be slight. That city already has a firehouse-community center and plans for an addition to the building which would permanently house the city office and police department and provide apartments for police officers.

Belvedere now rents an office at $140 a month from the Belvedere Land Co. The city also rents two apartments over the office for $50 each, where the police chief and an officer live, paying the city for the rent.

Belvedere City Mgr. William L. Cavalli lives in Tiburon, and probably would be allowed by his city council to remain there if he requested it. Belvedere is an expensive place in which to live; there are few apartments.

Tiburon City Mgr. Rose lives in a rented house in Belvedere from which he will have to move in a few weeks, as the owners again need the house. His city council wants him to live in Tiburon.

The cities have one joint problem upon which they might come to agreement. Tiburon now has no corporation yard — it has no city vehicles or equipment which would require one. But as the city grows, and gains revenue, it probably will gain public works equipment.

The present Belvedere corporation yard will be ground under the road bed when Tiburon Boulevard is realigned in five to seven years. But finding land for a yard probably is no easier than finding land for a city hall-community center.

The cities might agree to spend their money jointly on some of the expensive heavy equipment which would go in the yard.

Rose talks of a "continuous commission" of both cities' residents and city officials who would talk over the hundreds of chances of day-to-day cooperation between the neighboring cities and make recommendations to each city council.

"Of course the real answer is to have one city," says one resident of the peninsula. "My God, don't quote me," the resident added fervently.

Novato Winnows Job Applicants

Applications are now being screened and interviews should be held early next month to name a new director for the Novato Parks and Recreation Department, City Administrator J. Julien Baget said today.

Mrs. Helen Greving, Donald Slezak and Warren Tracy of the parks and recreation advisory commission, with Baget, are going over the applications for the position. The city received 32 applications for the job vacated by Edmund Mahany on Dec. 1, Baget said.

"When we have eliminated the applicants down to a few, we will hold interviews," he stated.

Watercolors Sale

Novato Girl Hurt In Auto Accident

Pamela I. Lester, 20, of 420 Ridge Road, Novato, suffered a slight neck injury but was not hospitalized about 7:20 a.m. yesterday in a three-car accident southbound on Highway 101 near the Linden Lane underpass just south of Puerto Suello Hill.

Drivers of the other two cars were Zeb L. Newsom, 39, of 350 Orchard Way, Novato, and Melvin Strong, 34, of Vallejo. The California Highway Patrol reported that Miss Lester's auto struck the rear of the stopped Strong car in heavy commute traffic, and that Newsom then hit Miss Lesters car.

STORY

great fact was that he had been stricken dumb.

Slowly, and forming the inky characters with great exactitude so that his meaning could not possibly be mistaken, Zachary wrote on the parchment:

"I have been listening to an angel! I entered the sanctuary. A figure was standing there. He stood with folded wings and looked at me. I was terribly frightened and almost dropped the censer. My brain felt numb. My body was cold. My knees . . ."

"I can guess how you felt, beloved," urged Elizabeth. "But did the angel speak to you?"

Zachary bent over the parchment.

"He spoke in a deep tone unlike any voice I ever heard, and he said: 'Fear not, Zachary. Your prayer is heard!' "

A chill went down the spine of Elizabeth; her thoughts whirled. Could it have been the secret prayer that Zachary had made just before he mounted the 12 steps? The old man was still writing.

" 'Your wife, Elizabeth, shall bear you a son. And you shall call his name John.'

" 'And you shall have joy and gladness. Many shall rejoice in his nativity and he shall be great before the Lord. He shall drink no wine or strong drink and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost . . .' "

The angel went right on to predict that the son of Elizabeth and Zachary would grow up to bring many of the people of the country to the worship of the Lord their God. More, the angel declared that John, who was yet to be born, would have the spirit and power of the ancient prophet Elias. At this the others could keep quiet no longer.

"Do you realize what you are writing there?" gasped Elizabeth.

But the speechless priest was writing furiously.

"I mean what I say. Every word of it. I saw the angel. I heard his voice. Once and for all I insist that you remain quiet and hear the whole story. The winged messenger finished his first remarks with these words: 'He shall turn the hearts of fathers unto their children and the incredulous to the wisdom of the just, to prepare unto the Lord a perfect people.'

"Then I felt a little better because I recognized the quotation. It was from the Book of Malachi, but here I made a serious blunder. Since the familiar quotation made me feel more at ease, I suppose I lost a little of the awe I felt. I am afraid I was a little disrespectful. At least I plucked up enough courage to speak for the first time and asked him a question. I spoke with great humility but I felt I had a right to know, and so I simply asked: 'Whereby shall I know this? For I am an old man and my wife is advanced in years.' "

"He answered me at once," wrote Zachary. "He simply said that he was Gabriel."

Zachary continued writing. "He told me that he stood before God habitually and that he had been sent to the holy place just to bring me these glorious tidings. But his manner was much more serious and reproving now, let me tell you. He had not liked my doubts. 'Behold, you are dumb,' he said to me.

"I closed my eyes and prayed a moment. When I opened them again, the angel was gone."

Late into the night they talked the marvel over. Elizabeth found it hard to believe it was anything more than the phantasy of a sick and tormented mind.

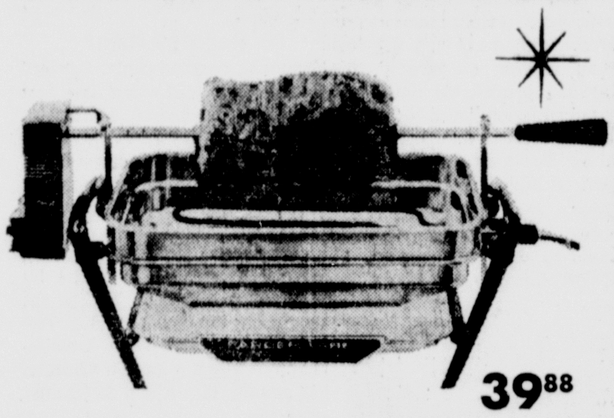

Joseph kept his counsel, and no one asked Mary what she thought. But before they went to bed Mary said to Elizabeth:

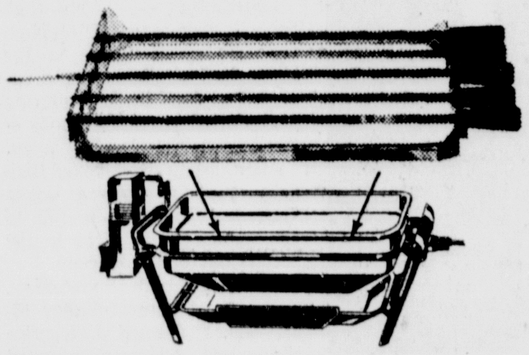

"Cousin dear, you have prayed a long time. I believe in your prayers, Elizabeth. Why should we be surprised if God has heard them and will answer them? Why not wait and believe?"

Mariners Storm Into Cage Tournament Finals

Marin Preps Win One—Lose Four

San Rafael High School's varsity cage team went on a scoring binge and whipped Petaluma 76-57 yesterday on the Trojans' court, but four other Marin Athletic League basketball teams lost their non-league contests.

Terra Linda was shaded by Analy of Sebastopol 49-47, Drake lost to Woodrow Wilson of San Francisco 50-42, Marin Catholic lost to Riordan of San Francisco 64-58, and Tamalpais fell to Montgomery of Santa Rosa 62-48. The Tam-Montgomery game was the only game played in Marin county.

San Rafael had the largest point-production of the season against Petaluma when it scored 76. Ken Erdman had a really big night, notching up 32 points on 13 buckets and 6 free throws. Ten other cagers all hit the scoring column as coach Mike Diaz emptied the bench and had all 13 of his boys in the game. Bob Rossi led in rebounds for San Rafael with 15. Teamwise, the Bulldogs outrebounded the Trojans 47-20.

At halftime San Rafael had only a two-point lead, 34-32, but hit 50 per cent from the floor in the second half to only 18 per cent for Petaluma. The victory gave the Bulldogs a 3-4 record on the practice trail.

In the class B game, San Rafael's Bullpups also made their biggest score of the year, winning 60-46 over Petaluma Bees. Top scorers for San Rafael were Rich Schau with 18, Bob Curry with 12 and Dave Smith with 10.

Terra Linda had a halftime lead in its game, 24-22 over Analy, but lost out. The score was tied at 47-47 with four seconds remaining on the clock and Kraig Kilby was at the free throw line for Terra Linda. He missed the shot and one of the Terra Linda boys fouled an Analy cager. He made both shots, giving Analy the winning two points.

TROJANS' DOWNFALL

Free throws were the Trojans' downfall, as they made only 15 of 32 charity tosses. They missed eight free throws in the final quarter. From the floor, Terra Linda hit 28 per cent. Don Knotts and Brian Perron each scored 10 points and Rick Edwards scored 9. Kilby led in rebounds with 18 and Perron followed with 16. Terra Linda's practice game record is now 2 wins and 4 losses.

In Drake's game, the Pirates were down 24-20 at halftime, and only by two points, 40-42, with 1½ minutes remaining in the game, but couldn't catch Wilson. Rick Henika, one of the top scorers for Drake, was out of school for three days with the flu, and only played about five minutes in the game. Will Curley with 15 points and Chet Carlisle with 10 led the Pirates' attack.

The Wilson lightweights won the class B game, 40-30 over Drake. Wayne Onizuka with 8 points was high for the Pirate babes.

Marin Catholic almost came out of its game with a win. The score was tied against Riordan 34-34 at halftime, and 45-45 at the three-quarter mark. Marin had a three point lead with 1½ minutes left in the game but couldn't hang on. Tom Soden with 20 points and Bill Shine with 19 paced the Marin scoring.

Tam suffered its seventh loss without a victory when Montgomery beat the Indians on the Tam court. Tam was leading at the first quarter 19-14, but Montgomery got hot and scored 27 points in the second stanza to post a 41-25 lead at half. Larry Gray with 12 points led the Tamalpais scoring.

Tam's class B cage team also lost the preliminary game, 45-37.

49er John Brodie Is One Of The Better Quarterbacks In League

Randol

No matter what the shape of the body of a football team, the heart has to be the quarterback. And, at this moment, the San Francisco 49ers are suffering a heart attack.

From a medical standpoint the condition is chronic. Nine field generals have been under attack from what seems to be the beginning of time, starting with Stanford Frank Albert and ending with Stanford John Brodie.

AT THE PRESENT time rumors are flying thick and fast that Brodie is on the auction block and will be traded away before next season. The reports contain elements of truth, denials to the contrary notwithstanding.

Actually, the whole thing started about three weeks ago when Brodie had a bad day at Kezar and the fans got on him with boos during the game and thrown debris after the game. John was pretty hot about it.

NEXT CAME some remarks by Coach Jack Christiansen that Brodie had had an off day. Coach Jack has never been one to cover up for his players, although he gives credit when due and criticism when called for. You have to read between the lines when Christiansen makes a statement, and sometimes the message doesn't come through.

The stark and glaring truth of the matter is that BOTH Brodie and Christiansen are covering up for the weakness of the 49er offensive team in spite of what each must think in private.

Should Brodie openly criticize the linemen and backs who allow the opposition to leak through by singles, pairs, and hordes, he would be violating the code. Furthermore, he would soon find the hordes outnumbering the singles.

SHOULD CHRISTIANSEN, as coach, openly criticize his men, he would face open revolt and quick unemployment. This was the charge most frequently levelled at his predecessor, Red Hickey, and the results are history.

In spite of his many detractors, John Brodie is one of the better quarterbacks in the league. Put him behind strong blocking and protection and he would pop your eyes out.

Old Y. A. Tittle became a world beater when he left the 49ers and went to the protection of the New York Giants. When the Giants traded away their muscles, Yat became a doormat overnight, and so did the Giants.

NO QUESTION that Brodie has been guilty of unloading the ball too soon when he sees a mountain of flesh bearing down on him, and has not run enough to please some fans. Put yourself in his place and you'll agree that the provocation has been great.

Brodie would not be human if he did not yearn for greener pastures. Christiansen would not be human if he did not dream of championships. And we fans would not be human if we didn't feel that we know how to run a club better than the professionals who are being paid to do the job.

USF UPSET BY HAWAII MARINES TEAM, 77-71

HONOLULU (AP) — The University of San Francisco basketball team returns to regular season action tonight against the University of Hawaii.

The third-ranked Dons dropped a 77-71 decision last night to the powerful Hawaii Marines at Kaneohe Marine Air Station.

Bill Connolly, sharpshooting guard from Long Beach, Calif., led the Marines with 28 points as they picked up their 15th victory without a defeat this season.

Erwin Mueller's 21 points were high for the Dons. Ollie Johnson 6-8 center, scored 18 points before fouling out with 3:44 remaining in the game.

USF led most of the way through the first half and held a 31-28 lead at intermission. But midway through the second half the Marines forged into a 54-49 lead with 11 straight points.

The loss will not count on USF's collegiate record, 4-0 going into tonight's game.

Tars Romp, 108-86 Eye Title Tonight

With their highest scoring output of the season, College of Marin Tar basketballers bombed Cabrillo College 108-86 last night to set the stage for the championship game of the Coast Conference Tournament tonight.

Marin will face Menlo College in the title game tonight in the Vallejo High School gym, tip off scheduled for 8:45. Menlo advanced to the finale with a 97-72 triumph over Vallejo Junior College last night.

In consolation game action, Hartnell dumped Gavilan 80-50 and West Valley outscored Monterey 107-96.

For the second straight night, coach Cal Riemcke was able to use all 15 of his cagers. And again, 13 of the 15 made the scoring column. Marin won the opening game of the tourney Thursday night, 93-59 over Monterey Junior College.

The first 14 minutes of last night's semi-final game was close, but then the Tars caught fire and started pulling away. Switching to a tight man-for-man defense and getting the fast break moving on offense, the Mariners proved too much and by intermission had a 58-39 lead. The 108 total is the highest output for Marin on the season, the previous high being 97 points.

Marin coasted throughout the second half, sometimes having a lead as high as 30 points.

Five Marin cagers hit in the double figures, led by guard Brad Busch with 18 points. Jay Johnson had 15 points and Bill Brody, Rod Monti and Jim Halm, all freshmen, each bucketed 14 points. That one forward spot, shared by Brody and Monti, was good for 28 points as both boys played an outstanding game.

HALM PRAISED

Riemcke credited center-forward Halm with playing his best game of the season, leading in rebounds with 15, to go along with his 14 points. Johnson again was brilliant in the playmaking department, getting credit for 12 assists.

Busch and Fred Arnold were also credited with praise by Riemcke, but both fouled out early in the second half. The refs were somewhat whistle-happy, calling a total of 69 fouls, 43 against Marin and 26 against Cabrillo.

Marin scoring: Fred Arnold, 2-4-8; Pete Coy, 2-5-9; Larry Wolfe, 2-1-5; Hap Curley, 1-0-2; Bill Brody, 6-2-14; Rod Monti, 5-4-14; Jim Halm, 6-2-14; Jay Johnson, 6-3-15; Grant Stevenson, 1-0-2; Brad Busch, 9-0-18; Paul Gockel, 1-0-2; Barry Hachmyer, 2-0-4; Bob Phillips, 0-1-1. Totals: 43-22—108.

Novato Cage Team Loses In Tourney

I-J Special Report

ANDERSON — Novato High School's cage team will be playing for seventh place in the Anderson Invitational Tournament tonight after suffering losses in the first two rounds of the tourney in Shasta County.

After losing to Shasta High School in the opening round Thursday, the Hornets fell to Eureka 48-45 last night in the second day of the tourney.

In other games yesterday, Orland beat Central Valley 68-43, Shasta downed Enterprise 57-50, and Anderson whipped Red Bluff 54-40.

The Hornets, who went to the tourney after winning four straight practice games, will play Central Valley today at 5:30 p.m. Anderson and Shasta High Schools will be playing for the championship title.

Y. A. TO DECIDE NEXT MONTH

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Veteran New York Giants quarterback Y. A. Tittle feels he is physically able to play another season, but will not make up his mind whether to continue his grid career until next month.

The 17-year veteran of the pro grid wars said "I started poorly this year, then got hurt in our second game and was never able to gain momentum." The defending Eastern Division champion Giants wound up in the cellar of their division this time around.

"Right now I haven't given the future much thought, since our season has just concluded," the bald-headed veteran added.

The Giants star, who is a successful real estate man in the off-season, arrived back in the Bay Area yesterday with his wife and three children. They reside in nearby atherton.

Turning to other topics, Tittle said he thought the National Football League title game between the Cleveland Browns and the Baltimore Colts was "a hard one to predict."

"The Colts go into the game a stronger team, but Cleveland has a great deal of confidence going for itself," he said.

Tittle also praised San Francisco forty niner quarterback John Brodie, who took a lot of booing from home town fans as the team wound up in the celler of the Western Division this year. Tittle called Brodie "a fine quarterback, way above average in the league and certainly one of our better quarterbacks."

Tittle and Brodie once fought for the first-string spot on the forty-niner offensive unit. The Prospectors finally dealt off Tittle to the New York Giants and Tittle promptly led them to three Eastern Division titles. Brodie has never quite reached stardom with San Francisco.

Another Marciano On Ring Horizon?

NEW YORK (AP) — Argentina's Oscar Bonavena is only eight fights deep into his professional boxing career and he's already bing compared to Rocky Marciano — and the comparison is made by a man who knows.

Charley Goldman, who trained the undefeated former heavyweight champ, now trains Bonavena.

"This guy is a better boxer than Rocky was at the same stage of his career," Goldman said last night after Bonavena had scored his eighth straight victory. "But Rocky was a better puncher.

"But this kid is only 22 and is learning fast. Rocky was 25 by the time he had his eighth pro fight."

Billy Stephan of Hollywood, Calif., who was the victim of a sixth round technical knockout at the hands of the husky, long-haired Argentine, agreed.

"He hits harder than (heavyweight champion Cassius) Clay," Stephan said. "I know Clay, I've worked out with him and this guy hits harder."

Bonavena, an ardent Beatle fan who wears his hair as long as his heroes, was a highly convincing victor over Stephan.

He knocked Billy down for a two count in the third, drew blood from his nose in the same round, opened a cut under his left eye in the fourth and finally won it at 2:14 of the sixth after rocking his opponent with a left and right to the jaw.

Bonavena had won every round on every card when referee Art Mercante stopped it.

BIGGER GAME

It was his seventh knockout victory in eight fights and prompted his handlers to start looking for bigger game.

Harry Markson, director of boxing for Madison Square Garden, said he sent a cable to Karl Mildenberger of Germany, the No. 10 heavyweight, offering him a bout with Bonavena for Feb. 5 or 12 in the Garden.

"I first tried to make a Bonavena-Doug Jones match, but Jones would only fight him out of New York," Markson said.

And Dr. Marvin Goldberg, Oscar's manager, said he would prefer a bout with England's Brian London, but wouldn't object to a bout with Mildenberger.

"Maybe we can arrange the London fight after Mildenberger," Markson said.

Bonavena weighed 203½ pounds for the Stephan fight, 20 more than his opponent.

In a co-featured 10-rounder, unbeaten James J. Woody, 190½, New York, outpointed previously undefeated Tony Doyle, 196½, Salt Lake City, for Woody's seventh straight.

Ray Patterson, 194, the former heavyweight champ's younger brother, stopped John Davey, 188¼, Los Angeles, in 59 seconds of the fifth round of a scheduled eight-rounder.

NIGHTY-NIGHT—Billy Stephan of Hollywood looks like he's settling down for a long snooze, using rope as a pillow, after being decked by Argentina heavyweight Oscar Bonavena in New York last night. Bonavena stopped Stephan in 2:14 of the sixth round. (AP Wirephoto)

Staubach To Arrive Late For Drills

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Roger Staubach of Navy, who will lead the East against the West in the forthcoming Shrine classic here, will not arrive for practice until Dec. 26.

The rest of the team will start drills Dec. 22. Coach Pete Elliott of Illinois has already indicated that he plans to build his attack around Staubach, but he will have to drill with Fred Mazurek of Pittsburgh at quarterback for a while.

The West team is expected to be ready for drills by next Wednesday.

Coaches Elliott, Jerry Burns of Iowa and Dr. Eddie Anderson, the East coaches, are due to arrive tomorrow. So is the West threesome of Len Casanova, Hank Foldberg and John McKay.

Nat'l Leaguers Star In Puerto Rico Play

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) —New York Met catcher Jesse Gonder slugged a three-run homer led Santurce to an 11-6 winter league baseball victory over Mayaguez last night.

Walt Bond of Houston also had a three run homer as Ponce defeated Arcibo 5-3. Luis Tiant of Cleveland was the winning pitcher and St. Louis' Mike Cuellar the loser.

Warriors Regain Health, Success

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Health, it's wonderful. As any doctor or Alex Hannum will tell you.

Hannum has labored as coach of the San Francisco Warriors for all of this season without ever having at his call at any one time the complete lineup that captured the Western Division title of the National Basketball Association last season.

But last night all the first seven men were able to play against the invading Philadelphia 76ers. And each helped the Warriors win 117-111.

Wilt Chamberlain, playing with a broken nose, led scorers with 41 points. Nate Thurmond, no longer bothered by the after effects of a cut hand, held Philadlphia's rookie star Lucious Jackson to seven points.

Five Warriors scored in double figures including Wayne Hightower with 18 points, and Al Attles, the valuable third guard, with 12.

The Warriors held a 10-point lead most of the game until near the end when Chet Walker, who finished with 15 points, led a 76er surge that fell just short.

Former Stanford star Paul Neumann shared Philadelphia scoring honors with Dave Gambee. Each collected 17 points.

Bowl Football Teams Intensify Workouts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the Bluebonnet and Liberty Bowls starting the post-season major college football slate today, teams scheduled to meet in other classics in the next two weeks intensified their workouts.

Syracuse, prepping for its Sugar Bowl date Jan. 1 with Louisiana State, completed three weeks of training at home and flies to Pensacola, Fla. Sunday to resume work.

The Orangemen have been able to drill outdoors only once because of snow and ice conditions in upstate New York. LSU experienced the same problem yesterday with a cold snap hitting the south. It was really cold, said coach Charlie McLendon, who directed the Bayou Tigers through a two-hour drill.

Meanwhile, in Montgomery, Ala., players who will take part in next Saturday's Blue-Gray game started working out today. The only players missing were Allen Brown and Bobby Robinson of Mississippi, who played against Tulsa in the Bluebonnet Classic today.

Georgia, headed for the Sun Bowl against Texas Tech a week from today, underwent its first heavy work in several days yesterday and was termed "sluggish" by Coach Vince Dooley. The Bulldogs were scheduled for another heavy session today.

Oregon State got a one-day jump on its Rose Bowl opponent Michigan, by starting workouts in Los Angeles today. The Wolverines are due to arrive Sunday.

Coach Tommy Protho said the Beavers would be on a one-a-day workout schedule right up until the New Year's Day date in Pasadena.

Shula, Collier Named Coaches For Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Shula, pilot of the Baltimore Colts and the National Football League's Coach of the Year, and Blanton Collier of the Cleveland Browns today were named to coach the western and eastern teams in the Pro Bowl game here Jan. 10.

It will be the second coaching rivalry between the pair in two weeks, since Shula's Colts, winner of the western division title, and Collier's eastern division champs, meet in the NFL championship Dec. 27 in Cleveland.

It will be the first head coaching job in the Pro Bowl for both men.

The two squads are due to report in Los Angeles a week after the NFL title game.

Top Grid Coaches At Holiday Clinic

PALO ALTO (AP) — John McKay of Southern California, Len Casanova of Oregon and Pete Elliott of Illinois are among football coaches who will speak at the fifth annual Holiday Coaching Clinic Dec. 29-30 at the Palo Alto Cabana Hotel.

Some 400 high school and college coaches are expected to attend the clinic.

AFL EASTERN BATTLE ON TV TOMORROW

American Football League's Eastern Division championship will be up for grabs tomorrow when the Buffalo Bills (11-2) meet the Boston Patriots (10-2-1) at Boston.

The game will be televised (ABC, Channel 7) starting at 11 a.m., PST.

The winner of the Eastern title will meet Western winner San Diego Dec. 26 for the league championship.

The National Football League division titles already have been settled with Baltimore the Western winner and Cleveland the Eastern champ. They'll meet in the NFL playoff Dec. 27.

Yachts Will Go At It Tomorrow

The second race of the East Bay Midwinter Series, sponsored by the University of California Yacht Club, will be held Sunday on San Francisco Bay.

First start is slated for 11 a.m., with all starts and finishes off the east side of Treasure Island.

Friday's Sports In Brief
By The Associated Press

FOOTBALL

HOUSTON — Sammy Baugh resigned as coach of the AFL Houston Oilers effective after Sunday's final game against Denver.

NEW YORK — THE New York Jets of the AFL signed Cosmo Iacavazzi, Princeton's All-America back, as a free agent.

RACING

MIAMI — Docemina, $46, an Argentina-bred filly, made her start in the United States a successful one by beating Boston Sailor, the 3-5 favorite, in the feature at Tropical Park.

NEW ORLEANS —Fisherman Tale, $9.80, won the Sunset Purse at the Fair Grounds after surviving a claim of foul.

SAN MATEO, Calif. — Rolling Wheel, $3.40, scored by three lengths in the feature at Bay Meadows.

Taylor To Succeed Baugh?

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Sammy Baugh has quit as head football coach of the Houston Oilers to spend more time on his west Texas ranch because "I'm happier there."

Baugh's successor will be the fifth head coach in six seasons for the American Football League entry — a turnover unmatched in pro football.

The Houston Post said his successor was expected to be Hugh (Bones) Taylor, Oiler backfield coach. The Post also said Lou Rymkus, former Oiler head coach, would be rehired as an offensive line coach.

Taylor, 41, one of the National Football League's all-time great pass receivers, said. I have not discussed the coaching situation with Oiler officials." But he indicated he would like to have the job.

Taylor played for nine years with the Washington Redskins, and during that time was the favorite target of Baugh's passes. He also was assistant coach under Baugh in 1960 with the New York Titans.

Baugh said he would like to stay on as an assistant, and K.C. (Bud) Adams Jr., Oiler president, indicated he might grant the wish.

Baugh, 50, had insisted that running his 6,355-acre ranch interfered with his duties as head coach.

The former Texas Christian University and Redskin passing star quit after signing a new one-year contract only two months ago.

HALL OF FAMER

The Hall of Fame quarterback compiled a 3-10 record, worst showing since the club was founded, with the season finale against Denver to be played tomorrow.

"The head coaching job," Baugh said, "takes up a lot of time in the off-season, time that I'm not willing to give. So I asked Bud to get another head coach.

"I'd like to have a backfield job someplace. But I feel like I'd be cheating the Oilers if I remained as head coach."

Adams indicated a new coach would be hired quickly.

"We're not going to dilly-dally around in selecting a new man," he said.

"We've been in the position before of getting a head coach late," he said, "then having trouble getting assistants."

HOLIDAY TOURNAMENTS

UCLA Vs. Boston In Cage Finale

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston College Eagles, who seem to be going places in college basketball this season with the coaching of Bob Cousy, get their big chance tonight. They play UCLA, the national champions, in the final of the Milwaukee holiday classic.

John Austin's desperation jump shot from 5 feet out as the final buzzer sounded gave the Eagles a rousing 86-85 victory over Wisconsin in the opening round last night. UCLA beat Marquette 61-52 to qualify for the final.

Austin's fantastic shot, which he made while on a dead run, climaxed a rally that saw the Eagles come from 14 points back. The 6-foot-1 junior from Washington, D.C. finished with 36 points for a tournament record.

Gail Goodrich, who led UCLA with 21 points against Marquette made an even longer field goal than Austin. He hit on a 45-footer as the first half buzzer sounded.

Kentucky, Illinois, North Carolina, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Oklahoma State, Arizona State, Murray State, Louisiana State and Evansville scored victories in other Christmas holiday extravaganzas.

Kentucky crushed West Virginia 102-78 and Illinois pulverized Dayton 104-86 in the UK Invitational at Lexington, Ky. North Carolina edged Mississippi State 84-80 and Alabama walloped Virginia Tech 72-53 in the Virginia Tech Invitational at Blacksburg, Va. Billy Cunningham's two free throws broke a 78-78 tie proved decisive for North Carolina.

Vanderbilt toppled Baylor from the unbeaten ranks 97-78 and Oklahoma State nipped Florida State 60-56 in the Vanderbilt Invitational at Nashville. Murray took Texas Western 65-58 and Arizona State whipped Washington State 88-77 in the Sun Devil Classic at Tempe, Ariz.

LSU downed Denver 88-82 and Evansville, the nation's top-ranked small college team made it four straight against major opponents by defeating George Washington 105-80 in the Evansville, Ind. Invitational.

UCLA, No. 5, Kentucky, No. 8, and Vanderbilt, No. 9, were the only teams in The Associated Press Top Ten to play Friday.

Texas, playing at home, nipped Nebraska 77-73 despite Fred Hare's 33 points for the Cornhuskers. John Paul Fultz's basket gave Texas a tie at 59-59 and Bo Rothchild's layup put the Longhorns ahead for good.

In other games Kansas State beat Washington 73-66 at Seattle, Cornell downed Columbia 79-73 at Ithaca, Maryland drubbed Wake Forest 82-64 at College Park, Md., Rhode Island routed Brown 99-78 at Kingston, R.I. and unbeaten Utah made it five in a row by taking San Jose State 94-75 at Salt Lake City.

UCLA 61, Marquette 52
Kansas State 73, Washington 66
Arizona State 88, Washington State 71
Brigham Young 102, Santa Clara 88
Utah 94, San Jose State 75

Raiders Host San Diego In '64 Season Finale Tomorrow

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Pride will be about the only thing on the line tomorrow when the Oakland Raiders take on the San Diego Chargers at Frank Youell Field.

A victory can't help the Chargers. They've already wrapped up the Western Division title of the American Football League with an 8-4-1 record.

The Raiders—win, lose or tie—can't salvage a disappointing season that saw them slump to 4-7-2 after last year's surprising 10-4 finish.

But a victory over arch-rival San Diego would ease the Raiders' disappointment. And the Chargers would like to show they're a lot better than the team that was massacred 48-6 Sunday by Kansas City.

Coach Sid Gillman also would like his Chargers to play a good game in preparation for the title fight against the winner of the Boston-Buffalo clash.

Oakland quarterback Cotton Davidson, who suffered rib injuries two weekends ago, may not start. Tom Flores, whose last-second pass beat Buffalo, will start if Davidson doesn't.

Charger fullback Keith Lincoln also is a doubtful participant, as is Raider guard Bob Mischak.

End Art Powell of the Raiders needs just two catches and five yards to break the Raider reception records he set last year. He's caught 72 passes for 1,299 yards.

A near capacity crowd of some 22,000 is expected at kick-off time, 1:30 p.m.

Machen-Terrell Winner Will Be Recognized As Champ By WBA

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Tony Maceroni, chairman of the World Boxing Association's championship committee, announced last night that the WBA would recognize the winner of a proposed bout between Eddie Machen of San Francisco and Ernie Terrell of Chicago as the world heavyweight champion.

The WBA recognition, Maceroni said, carries with it the proviso that the Machen-Terrell winner post a $5,000 guarantee that within 30 days he will defend the title against the victor in the match between Floyd Patterson, the former champion, and George Chuvalo of Toronto, Canada, scheduled for Madison Square Garden Jan. 29.

Offers to stage the Machen-Terrell bout have come in from promoters in several cities, including San Francisco, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Houston, Maceroni said.

The WBA does not recognize Cassius Clay as heavyweight titlist because the WBA says the bout in which he won the title from Sonny Liston carried a return-bout clause, which is illegal under WBA rules.

'Comet' Shoots For 500th Point For Seals Tonight

The kids in the crowd may be looking for Donder and Blitzen, but astute fans will have their eyes on Comet when the San Francisco Seals meet Victoria tonight at the Cow Palace, 8:15.

Len (Comet) Haley, veteran Seals right-winger, will be shooting for point number 500 during a Western Hockey League career spanning more than 12 seasons.

Haley, 32, has totaled 499 points on 228 goals and 271 assists. His next goal or assist will make it an even 500.

The defending champ Seals, now in fifth place just a step ahead of tail-end Victoria, have been scoring a lot of late but have been plagued by a porous defense. Coach Bud Poile drilled the team for three hours Thursday after the Seals dropped a 6-5 decision to Victoria Wednesday night.

The Seals depart the Cow Palace after tonight's game for a three-game road trip starting tomorrow in Portland. They won't be home again until Jan. 1.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Few Words Have So Many Meanings To People As Spell

VAN DELLEN

Scarcely a word in the English language has as many meanings as the word spell. It is not a scientific term. Webster lists it as colloquial in referring to "a period marked by illness, depression, or other abnormal characteristic; a fit; a turn."

Yet some of our readers continue to write us about the condition. For example, A. W. writes: "My aunt had a bad spell last night and the doctor wants her to go to the hospital. Do you think it is serious?" What symptoms were present? Was it a feeling of nausea or of weakness? A period of unconsciousness due to fainting? Did she have a stroke? Other readers refer to attacks of asthma, palpitation of the heart, epilepsy, headache, or hysteria as "a spell."

ANOTHER TYPE of indefinite question is: "My girl friend faints about once a year, usually when emotionally upset. Could this be epilepsy?"

A description of what happens during this period of unconsciousness could settle the question easily. Almost everyone has seen a person faint. The attack usually is precipitated by poor ventilation, hunger, or an emotional upset such as the sight of blood, excitement, or fear. The victim slumps to the floor and lies perfectly still. The pulse and breathing are barely perceptible and the skin is cold and ashen.

AN EPILEPTIC seizure is entirely different. It comes on without cause at any time of day or night, while sitting in a chair or walking along the street. Fainting never occurs while sleeping but epilepsy does. The individual cries out, falls to the floor, and thrashes about. In a few minutes, the body becomes rigid and relaxes as though in sleep.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

LUMP IN THE NECK

Miss G. B. writes: I am 52. Until a few months ago I was the happy-go-lucky type. Then I noticed a lump on the side of my neck and went to a doctor. He said it was my imagination or nerves. If there isn't a lump there, how can I feel it with my fingers?

REPLY

This is not a matter of imagination but of interpretation. You feel a thickness in a muscle or a gland, and believe it is a tumor.

WEAK-KNEED

F. L. C. writes: What would cause a knee to buckle suddenly while walking?

REPLY

Weakness of the muscles that support the knee joint. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet giving exercises to strengthen weak knees.

FLUID IN LUNGS

A. M. writes: What is pulmonary edema?

REPLY

The small air sacs are filled with fluid, leading to cough and shortness of breath. There are many causes, including a failing heart and the inhalation of irritating fumes.

POLYPS ARE REMOVED

A. O. B. writes: What is done about stomach polyps?

REPLY

Removal is suggested, especially if your physician cannot be certain these lesions are benign.

Today's Health Hint — Exercise regularly to keep fit.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Here Are Some Notes To Watch Video By

By RICK du BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

THE SCHEDULE: A comparison of the late Dag Hammarskjold's public record and private writings will be presented on CBS-TV's "Lamp Unto My Feet" Jan. 3. . . . A film report about the "Bedside Network" for hospitalized veterans, showing how well-known entertainers and industry personnel help patients record special Christmas programs, airs on NBC-TV's "Today" outing Thursday. . . . Weekly radio shows are produced and recorded by the "Bedside Network," and are then broadcast via earphones and public address systems in Veterans Administration hospitals. . . . Phil Silvers is a guest on CBS-TV's "The Entertainers" Jan. 9.

ADD SCHEDULE: Samantha (Elizabeth Montgomery), the suburban housewitch of ABC-TV's very popular new "Bewitched" series, takes her husband and a doubting orphan to the North Pole (by broom-stick) to meet Santa on this Thursday's episode. . . . Santa is played by Cecil Kellaway . . . who was a cousin of the late Edmund Gwenn . . . who was famous for his portrayal of Santa in the movie "The Miracle on 34th Street." . . . CBS-TV has decided after all, according to a source, to leave "Password" and "The Baileys of Balboa" in its Thursday night lineup, and to use Rudy Vallee's talent-scout "On Broadway Tonight" series on Fridays. . . . it was set for Thursdays.

THE TV MOVIES: NBC-TV has been having continued success with its twice-weekly motion pictures, Wednesdays and Saturdays. . . . ABC-TV has been doing so-so with its Sunday night movie. . . . It was thought the thin supply of old films would soon result in a cutback of these features . . . but their overall strong acceptance now has produced the rumored possibility that CBS-TV, which has never had weekly movies but has slipped recently in the ratings, might join the pack. . . . Another report, that ABC-TV might offer a second weekly film, brought a flat denial from that network (yesterday, anyway). . . . A CBS-TV deal would mean a fortune to motion picture-producing companies but a sharp cutback in television production.

THE PROGRAMS: Leroy Collins, director of the U.S. Community Relations Service, is interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" tomorrow. . . . Also tomorrow, on the same network, Hector Berlioz's oratorio-trilogy "The Childhood of Christ" airs in pageant form in an hour special, with Madeleine Carroll as hostess. . . . Two Russian children who will appear on ABC-TV's series for youngsters, "Discovery," Jan. 24 and 31, during their visit to America, will be seen meeting Norman Rockwell and Robert Kennedy. . . . Rockwell will talk of American life as seen in his paintings. . . . A four-part series examining the Catholic Church's positions on marriage and family planning will be presented by NBC-TV's "Catholic Hour" starting Jan. 3.

THE HEADLINERS: CBS-TV's Cara Williams Show offers the comedienne impersonating Judy Garland singing Jan. 6 in a daytime situation. . . . Douglas Fairbanks Jr. hosts the first of four ABC-TV specials plugging various entertainment industry projects Feb. 4. . . . Celeste Holm signed to play the mother in a test film for a possible series based on the old movie "Meet Me in St. Louis." . . . Comedian Jack E. Leonard's voice will be used in a new cartoon series titled "Fat Jack, Sheriff of Cheyenne," and subtitled "The Fastest Mouth in the West." . . . CBS-TV's Red Skelton will be joined in a February show by Marcel Marceau for a "pantomine concert," with Maurice Chevalier as host.

Persons who have suffered heart damage caused by rheumatic fever may request referral slips from the association allowing them to purchase penicillin at reduced rates at the Marin General hospital pharmacy, according to Dr. Marjorie Belknap, association president.

Business, civil and fraternal organizations may request a member of the association speaker's bureau to discuss heart and blood-vessel disorders.

Physicians and others may request copies of a new booklet, "After a Coronary" published by the American Heart Assn. from the local group.

Unwanted Safe Finally Moved

A 3,000 pound, six foot tall steel safe was wiggled down the stairs of the Keystone Building in Mill Valley yesterday after being a "White Elephant" for several years.

James Estes, speaking for the owners, Roemer and Estes and Rhodes Engineering, said: "We advertised. People came to look but when they saw the safe's size, they always reneged."

Finally, he said, Kenneth Lax agreed to take it for use in his automotive parts store in Santa Rosa "provided we got it out of the building." At noon yesterday, four men from San Francisco, using ropes and block and tackle, moved it onto the sidewalk and left it there.

The safe was formerly owned by George F. Comstock, retired Mill Valley civil engineer.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Dec. 19, the 354th day of 1964 with 12 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Baseball star Ty Cobb was born on this day in 1886.

On this day in history:

In 1732, Benjamin Franklin began publication of his "Poor Richard's Almanac."

In 1777, George Washington and Continental Army began their winter encampment at Valley Forge, Pa.

In 1924, members of the American Federation of Labor elected William Green as president to succeed Samuel Gompers.

In 1950, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was appointed commander of military forces operating under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

A thought for the day—It is written in the New Testament according to Matthew: "Ask, and it shall be given unto you; seek and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Some Tricks Come Back If You Turn Them Down

A beginner must be taught to win a trick whenever it is offered to him on the principle of the bird in the hand.

A good player is not in such a hurry because experience has taught him that some tricks don't run away.

Opening lead — ♡ Q

West's queen of hearts won the first trick, and South ruffed the next heart. Declarer then led a trump to dummy's ace and returned a low club to try to finesse with the queen.

CLUB KING

West won with the king of clubs, and that was the end of the defense. South ruffed the next heart, drew the rest of the trumps and led out the ace of clubs.

The jack dropped, and the rest of the dummy's clubs were good. South got rid of both diamond losers on dummy's long clubs.

"Why were you in such a hurry to scoop up that first club trick?" East grumbled as the opponents scored up the game and rubber.

CITES RULE

"That's the rule," West defended himself. "Second hand low, third hand high, and fourth hand win the trick if you can."

That's the rule they teach bridge players in their cradles, so East had to smile politely and change the subject. It's both useless and impolite to expect your partner to play beyond his strength.

Since readers of this column are all as strong as Samson, we can see that West would defeat the contract by refusing the first club trick. He will get his club trick later, and East will get two diamond tricks.

SET UP

Declarer can set up dummy's long clubs, but he can never get to them since dummy has no entries.

A strong West player would notice that East played the nine of clubs on the first club trick.

If this play indicates the J-9, West shuts out dummy's long club suit by refusing the first trick.

If East's nine is played from 9-6, West can wait to play his king on the jack of clubs instead of the queen. Either way the club trick will not run away.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ 9 7 4
♥ Q J 10 4
♦ 8 4 3
♣ K 5 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid one notrump.

The hand is just barely worth a response since you have a count of 6 points. Since you have neither good support for partner's suit nor a good suit of your own you must respond in notrump.

Christmas Paeans Ring Out From Marin Churches

Children To Stage Many Special Rites

Christmas Day itself may be nearly a week in the future, but already the air of Marin is filling with the special, serene joy that is the outwelling of thousands of voices young and old, singing of the greatest event in Christian history.

Nearly every congregation in Marin County will attend special musical programs tomorrow; many churches also will have Christmas Eve rites and services Christmas Day. Children will hold the spotlight in most churches tomorrow, as their Sunday school classes conduct carol sings, plays and pageants centered around the Christmas story.

A number of adult choirs and musical groups also will present special concerts.

Programs for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day in Marin County churches will be announced in The Independent-Journal during the week; below is a listing of this weekend's special events:

CHRISTMAS-HANUKKAH

Probably one of the most unusual observances of the season will be Monday evening's presentation by the students of Saint Isabella's Catholic Church in northern San Rafael, at 8:15 p.m.

Eight students will form a living Menorah, to individually proclaim "the glory of the God of light, the God of Israel, who is the God of the Christians." Rev. Cyr N. Miller will deliver a homily on the tradition of the Maccabees and the origin of Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights in Hebrew tradition, and its relation to the Christmas tradition.

The students will perform readings and versicles, with psalms, modern hymns, and readings from the Book of Maccabees and the Gospel of John.

Rev. Edward J. Dingberg will bestow the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

SOUTHERN MARIN

Horsemen garbed as the Three Wise Men will lead a singing, joyous procession of carolers and worshipers through the streets of Marin City tomorrow afternoon, in a revival of medieval customs.

Sponsored by the St. Andrew Presbyterian Church of Marin City, the procession will begin from the Community Lounge at 3:30 p.m., marching to the outdoor manger scene at the church for a short service, and then wend through the town back to the community center where refreshments will be served.

Marching musicians will lead the paraders in traditional Christmas music. Youngsters are encouraged to wear shepherd costume for the event, according to Rev. James E. Symon, co-pastor of St. Andrew.

Children of the Peace Lutheran Church of Mill Valley will stage two performances of "Christmas in Song" at the church tomorrow, according to Rev. Harold G. Johnson, pastor.

Sunday school pupils whose last names begin with M through Z will sing in the program beginning at 3 p.m. Those whose names begin with A through L will sing at 7 p.m. Superintendent John Wilbert said the audience will be invited to join in the songs; pupils will read portions of the Bible telling the Christmas story.

Sunday school organist Mrs. John Wilbert will accompany both services.

Christmas season activities of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church in Tiburon will open tomorrow at 7 p.m. with the annual Sunday school program, according to the pastor, Rev. Sig G. Sandrock.

"A Christmas Mystery Play" will be presented at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the Sunday school of St. Stephen's Episcopal Parish in Belvedere.

The church's annual Christmas program for members, guest and friends will be conducted at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the Corte Madera Recreation Center on Tamalpais Avenue.

Pastor, Rev. Karel F. Botermans will lead the program, "The Twelve Symbols of Christmas." A reminder of how the church is indebted to other cultures for symbols and customs of the Christmas observance, the program will include the choir and Sunday school classes, garbed in Egyptian, Babylonian and other costumes.

Carolers from the First Baptist Church of Corte Madera will repeat their outing inaugurated last year, when they tour Mariner Cove, Mariner Highlands, Marin Estates and Marina Village to serenade residents, tomorrow evening.

An even larger turnout is expected than the 65 carolers who climbed aboard a huge truck last year to sing Christmas tunes, according to the pastor, Rev. Henry Fox. The traveling carolers will make their tour from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The annual Christmas program of the Sunday school classes at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo will be presented at 7 p.m. today, highlighted by a play, "The Christmas Story."

On Wednesday, the junior choir directed by Mrs. John Dumon will present a program of choral and instrumental Christmas music, at 7:30 p.m.

John E. Boalt's Christmas Cantata, "Christ is Born," will be presented at 6 p.m. tomorrow by the choir of the First Baptist Church of Novato, according to the pastor, Rev. Wayne S. Jarboe.

Before the cantata, junior choir members will sing several Christmas hymns.

The sacrament of baptism and reception of new members will be included in the two Christmas services of the Novato Community Methodist Church tomorrow. The chancel choir will sing special music at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services.

A reception fellowship for the new members will be held following the 11 a.m. service, according to the pastor, Rev. Warren W. Peters.

The pageant has become an annual tradition for the church's youth fellowship.

Gridder Strives For Religion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rugged 6-1, 210-pound Tom Barrington, who rebounded from a near-fatal industrial accident to play a key role at fullback and quarterback for Ohio State, is president of the university's Campus Crusade for Christ.

Barrington, who also plays halfback at times, says: "An athlete plays better when he has something to play for. American athletes can play for their country, their university, their girl friends, their parents, their coaches or, if they're egocentric, for themselves.

"I play for Christ. Any recognition I get, I want to use to glorify Christ."

Methodist Church Aids Local Flocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Since 1864, about $138,578,000 has been given or loaned to local congregations by national church extension agencies of The Methodist Church, according to the Division of Missions of the Methodist Board of Missions. In addition, the National Division furnishes church extension services.

Larkspur Church Opens Bids On Class Building

Low bidder on construction of a new education building and other work for the Redwood Presbyterian Church of Larkspur was the William H. McDevitt Co. of San Rafael, with a bid of $58,454.

The two story wood-frame structure will add 3,200 square feet to the church's facilities. The church kitchen and a number of older classrooms also will be remodeled, according to the pastor, Rev. Frank S. Hamilton.

Architect for the project is Donald Powers Smith.

Baptists Issue Call To Prayer

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Rev. Dr. J. Lester Harnish, pastor of the First Baptist Church here and President of the American Baptist Convention, has issued a "Call to Prayer and Repentance" for the churches and individual members of the A.B.C. for the period of Nov. 1-6.

"In light of world conditions, the presidential campaign, recial strife, and the spiritual needs of our American Baptist family, I hereby call the Convention — churches and individual members at home and overseas — to a period of prayer and repentance," Dr. Harnish said.

Seminary Presented Fund For Student Aid

Saint Peter Chanel Seminary, Marin County school for Roman Catholic students for the priesthood, has received a $500 grant from a trust fund established by the late Miss Mary Hannigan.

The money, part of $17,000 distributed to Bay Area seminaries, will be credited to the account of a needy student.

Ad Protest Enlivens Church Life

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During the recent election campaign, there appeared in the Pasadena, Calif., Star-News a paid advertisement which said:

"I disagree with practically everything to which Ganse Little subscribes."

It was signed by a member of the Pasadena Presbyterian Church who took this means of disassociating himself from the views voiced by his paster, Dr. Ganse Little, on such issues as race relations.

The Protestant journal Christianity and Crisis reproduced the unusual advertisement this week. It suggested that this opened up fascinating possibilities for intra-church communications, as well as a way of attracting readership to the church pages of newspapers.

The tongue-in-cheek suggestion was accompanied by several examples of newspaper ads which might be placed by disgruntled church members:

"We both disliked
Last Sunday's Anthem.
—Mr. and Mrs. B Flatte"

Or:

"Why does our church use grape juice
"When the Episcopalians use wine?
"Even Jesus used wine (See John 2:1-10).
—Julio Gallo."

Church members, the magazine said, could resort to the advertising technique to register personal complaints, or to air their side of a dispute over parish policy.

For a sample, an irate parent might pay space rates to tell the world:

"The superintendent of the Primary Department picks on my child. Why can't we have a happy Church School?"

Or a shocked group of oldtimers might give the congregation fair warning:

"If we continue to let the young people dance in the Church house, one thing will lead to another."

Clerics' School Adds Faculty

Two new members have joined the faculty of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo for the winter quarter.

Rev. Noel Freedman, PhD, has been named Professor of Old Testament, and Miss Margaret Kuhn, visiting lecturer in Christian social ethics.

Dr. Freedman, a widely-known biblical archaeologist, is in charge of excavations at Ashdod, Palestine. Miss Kuhn is assistant secretary of the Office of Church and Society, United Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A., and writer.

Episcopalians To Hear Catholic Archbishop

Ecumenical history is to be made for Marin County, when the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco is guest of honor at the annual parish dinner of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael.

Archbishop Joseph T. McGuckan, recently returned from Rome, will tell the Episcopal congregation about the Second Vatican Council.

Rev. John D. Riley, rector of St. Paul's, said the Archbishop's visit will be "another step toward closer understanding and fellowshop, not only between Roman Catholics and Episcopalians, but among all Christians interested in the area of ecumism."

The dinner and Archbishop McGucken's speech will be Jan. 19. Rev. Riley is announcing the special occasion from the pulpit during services at St. Paul's.

Deanery's Yule Dance Is Tonight

Episcopal young churchmen of the Deanery of Marin will hold their Christmas dance tonight at St. John's Parish in Ross, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Karen Beatie, deanery chairman and Janie Cleaveland, secretary, said that most of the parishes' youth will follow the custom of first going caroling from their respective churches, then attend the dance.

St. Paul's parish of San Rafael is providing refreshments for the dance; St. John's is handling admissions and cleanup work, and Our Saviour Parish of Mill Valley is in charge of decorations.

Live band music will be provided; normal school dress will prevail.

Lutherans' Choir In Nightly Broadcasts

Carols by the choir of the Marin Lutheran Church of Corte Madera will be presented during Christmas week on KTIM, sponsored by the developers of The Uplands, an apartment complex in Corte Madera.

The choir is directed by Mrs. Joseph O'Neill of San Rafael.

The traditional carols may be heard at 6 p.m. and 7:50 p.m. just before the Carillon.

English Church Does Away With Renowned Hymn

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England, is revising its hymn book, is dropping "Nearer My God to Thee."

It was considered "sentimental, of course, but doctrinally vague," said Arthur Pollard, a lecturer at Manchester University who was literary adviser for the revision.

There is a legend this hymn was sung by passengers aboard the sinking ocean liner Titanic in 1912.

Also dropped is "I want to be like Jesus."

"The first line's enough, don't you think?" Pollard observed.

Church Women Elect President

KANSAS CITY, MO. (UPI)—Mrs. Stuart E. Sinclair of Greenfield, Mass., was elected president of United Church Women.

Mrs. Sinclair will head the national fellowship, embracing more than 12 million women, for the next two years. She was installed at the final business meeting of the organization's tenth national assembly.

Fine Silver Goes With The Holidays

Gleaming silver and festive occasions go together like love and marriage.

Gifts of silver, the "queen of metals," always reflect good taste and enduring charm.

With the accent today on elegance in entertaining, nothing adds as much luster to the table as fine silver.

HOLLOWARE pieces bring a "special occasion" feeling to any meal, and the distinction of beautiful silver makes it one of the most exciting and wanted Christmas gifts for most women.

What makes a holloware gift particularly attractive is the fact that many pieces serve a dual purpose.

For example, there are casserole dish holders that can be used as extra serving pieces when not used with a glass pyrex baking dish. Lovely ceramic or plastic-lined bowls are ideal for serving various items such as lemons, mayonnaise, relish, etc.

A wide range of other bowls, in sterling or silver plate—such as tiny bowls for nuts and condiments, medium-size silver bowls for food and flowers and fruits—all give a lovely look.

TRAYS ARE other sure-fire silver gift items that come in a wide range of sizes and prices. From tiny appetizer trays to big, beautiful tea trays, these silver accessories fill a glamorous role in any woman's homemaking plans.

Such table accessories as salt and pepper shakers, gravy and mayonnaise boats, candlesticks and candelabra, and even that Victorian glory, the silver goblet—are all exciting gifts.

Silver shines with a special glow in home accessories, such as ash trays, coasters, vases, match boxes and cigarette boxes . . . each a bright addition to the already-sparkling Christmas scene.

An Ideal Gift For Americans Living Abroad

For Americans living abroad, the best season's greetings still come from home and a gift of flowers is the one Christmas package that can go around the globe without the risk of shipping loss or red tape of customs regulations.

Flowers can be wired anywhere in the world in a matter of hours, just as you would send bouquets in this country through Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

All FTD shops are members of the international network of florists called Interflora, who will relay your Christmas flower list from one country to another in as little time as it takes to send a cable. They even have a catalog of flower arrangements so that you can see exactly what you're sending and be sure that the flowers you choose are in season in foreign climes.

The Many Ways Of Christmas

Christmas is celebrated many ways, but how it's done depends on where you are.

Sweden, Mexico, the Netherlands, Spain, Denmark, France —wherever you go in the world, you will find that each country has its own Christmas traditions.

In Bethlehem, the birthplace of Christ, the streets are filled on Christmas Eve with thousands of devout pilgrims, representing the many faiths, who journey there to worship. Back and forth they pass in processionals, holding candles and singing, as they visit sacred crypts, grottos and churches.

THAT EVENING a special mass is held in the Church of the Nativity, believed to be the oldest Christian sanctuary in the world. At midnight, church bells ring for miles around calling the celebrants to assemble at Shepherd's Field to sing hymns.

In Sweden, Christmas is celebrated in a different way. Here the Yuletide officially begins on Dec. 13, St. Lucia's Day. Everyone goes outside, carrying lights and singing carols door to door. The ancients believed this day the darkest of the year. Thus man-made brightness is used to dispel the "spirits of darkness."

Then, Christmas itself starts off early the morning of Dec. 25 when—before the family goes to church—a daughter of the house, dressed as St. Lucia, visits each bedroom. Robed in white, she wears on her head a wreath of whortleberry leaves encircled with lighted candles, and carries a tray of coffee and special Lucia cakes.

IN DENMARK, Christmas is celebrated—not on Dec. 25—but on Christmas Eve. Late that afternoon, all work ceases, church bells peal, and people flock to the churches that have been festively lighted and decorated with fragrant green pines.

After services, men and women, young and old, return home for a traditional Christmas Eve dinner, after which they join hands and move around the gaily-decorated tree, singing old Christmas hymns.

In neighboring Norway, Christmas is celebrated still another way. Here, besides the traditional customs, animals are given extra rations since they witnessed the birth of Christ. Also, peasants attach large bundles of oats to sticks and put them on roofs to chase away evil spirits. The theory is that the green rods and crops are effective helpers against the "evil one."

SOUTH OF the border in Mexico, religious-social celebrations called Posadas are familiar throughout the country. "Posada" means lodging or shelter in Spanish. However, "Posadas" now is the collective term given in Mexico to the nine days of celebration with which Mexicans commemorate Joseph and Mary's difficult journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem.

Across the Atlantic in Spain, Christmas ceremonies begin early in December.

Here the religious focal point is the "Belenes" or "Nacimientos"—the nativity scene—which holds a place of honor in every home. Weeks before, street vendors sell clay, wood, and cardboard figures representing the Holy Family, shepherds, and animals in the manger. Then each family goes to work to make its nativity scene as beautiful and traditional as possible. Prizes are given for the best representations.

In France, Christmas is celebrated by religious processionals, steeped in tradition, and attended by people from all over the world.

AT BAUX, for example, a centuries-old ceremony is repeated each Christmas Eve. A shepherd brings into the ancient St. Vincent's Church a new-born lamb that is placed in a grotto where the figure of the Infant Jesus lies in a creche.

In the Netherlands, the Christmas celebration centers around the home. After attending church services on Christmas Eve, the family returns home, enjoys a traditional dinner, then sits around the tree re-telling stories of Christmas in an atmosphere of peace and happiness.

In nearby Switzerland, in some provinces the children await the arrival of the Christ Kindli—the little Christ child, always depicted in white, carrying a magic wand, and wearing a shining crown.

In other provinces, they look for St. Niklaus who with his servant Schutzli, not only distributes gifts to them, but also looks up their good and bad deeds in a book and if they have been bad warns them to be good.

POLISH "Star-boys" roam the countryside on Christmas Day portraying the wise men of the East and performing the drama of the Nativity.

In England, many Christmas traditions go back to ancient times. At Dewsbury in Yorkshire, Christmas Eve is the time for the unusual custom of "Tolling the Devil's Knell." Performed for more than 700 years, this involves tolling the bells of the local church—this year 1,964 times — the Devil supposedly perishing on the final stroke.

In the Philippines the Christmas celebration begins on December 16, when the first of a novena of masses is sung. Called "misa de gallo" (mass of the rooster) because it starts so early, this ceremony was originally a farmer's mass, participated in by pious farmers who congregated before leaving for the rice fields at dawn.

AND SO it goes. From the lighted processionals in Europe to the South Sea Islands, where the carols come out with a Polynesian beat and Santa's reindeer are replaced by canoes, Christmas is celebrated all around the world.

IN SWITZERLAND, the children's favorite is St. Niklaus who with his servant Schutzli, distributes gifts and looks up the tots' good and bad deeds in a book.

A Christmas Message For Our Readers

Great Day Comes Only To Those Who Are Prepared

DR. RALPH J. FORTUNE, pastor of the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo and one of the newer members of Marin's ministry, this year has written the traditional Independent-Journal Marin Magazine Christmas message for the readers of the I-J. (Independent-Journal photo)

By DR. RALPH J. FORTUNE

We may have Christmas all about us and still not have Christmas.

Despite the fact that it is impossible to walk through the shopping centers without being reminded again and again that Christmas is here, it is quite possible that Christmas is not here for many of us.

Christmas may be celebrated by the community but it is experienced by the individual heart.

YOU ARE not ready for Christmas the moment your Christmas Club check arrives, or the moment the tree is trimmed or the moment you wrap your last gift or bake that last fruit cake. Christmas comes only to the heart that is made ready for it.

Even on that holy night, centuries ago, He came only to those who were ready for Him. The mighty Roman legions were encamped in Jerusalem, but it was to the quiet, listening shepherds, close to the fields and close to the stars, that the angels proclaimed their glad tidings.

Herod's palace was nearby, within which were maidens of royal blood, but it was to a waiting virgin who had found favor with God that the child was born.

Not far away in Athens were many wise philosophers but the guiding star was seen only by devout men who believed that someday a King would come, whose birthplace would be marked by a star.

AND SO it was that Christmas came the first time to those who were prepared for it. It is so even in 1964.

Christmas is really not a matter of the calendar; it is a matter of the heart.

We can miss Christmas entirely if we are not ready for it. It is possible for our heart's experience to parallel the experience of the ancient inn over the doorway of which might be inscribed "The Inn That Was Not Ready." We might seek to defend our lack of preparedness by arguing the innkeeper's very words:

"If I had known—
Could I know
That they were so important?
Just the two,
No servant, just a working man
Leading a donkey, and his wife thereon
Drooping and pale . . .
There was a sign, they say, a Heavenly light
Resplendent; but I had no time for stars.
And there were songs of Angels in the air
Out on the hills; but how was I to hear
Amid the thousand clamors of an Inn?
Of course, if I had known then who they were . . . "

Is the keeper of the inn not speaking our excuses when we miss the Christ in Christmas? "I didn't know" . . . "I hadn't time" . . . "I didn't notice."

"I didn't know."

They came from away North across the hills. They came from a place of no reputation, Nazareth. They were a poorish-looking couple. So the woman was soon to have a baby? But people had had babies since the beginning of time.

IT WAS only after the event was over that the innkeeper knew what he had missed. His condemnation lies in the fact that he had never taken pains to find out. He is so ancient, yet so modern.

His next defense was: "I hadn't time."

"I had no time for stars," he said. It was a pity.

He was not hostile. He meant to offer no offense; he was just too busy, that was all.

Is this not our excuse for turning the highest from our doors?

We have no time. We fill our hours with a multitude of good things and miss the best.

We can, if we choose, rush through Christmas without a prayer of thanks to God for the gift of His Son or a word of gratitude to those who love us best. We can, if we choose, miss the light in our children's eyes, to satisfy the invitations of our adult friends. Even as satellites soar over our heads and space ships race for Mars, even as atomic-powered ships lurk under the seas with silent, swift weapons capable of incinerating whole cities in a moment, we may well pause for a moment to bless God for the peace that is still ours as we gather about our firesides.

Our innkeeper excused himself with one more familiar expression: "I didn't notice."

" . . . There were songs of Angels in the air
Out on the hills; but how was
I to hear
Amid the thousand clamors
of an Inn?"

WHEN ONE majors on washing dishes, it is difficult to hear the angels sing. Whoever heard the quiet song unless he sometimes made a quiet place in his life? Whoever learned the will of God unless he made time for heaven amid the busy traffic of earth?

The wondrous Gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
No ear may hear His coming,
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive Him still
The dear Christ enters in."

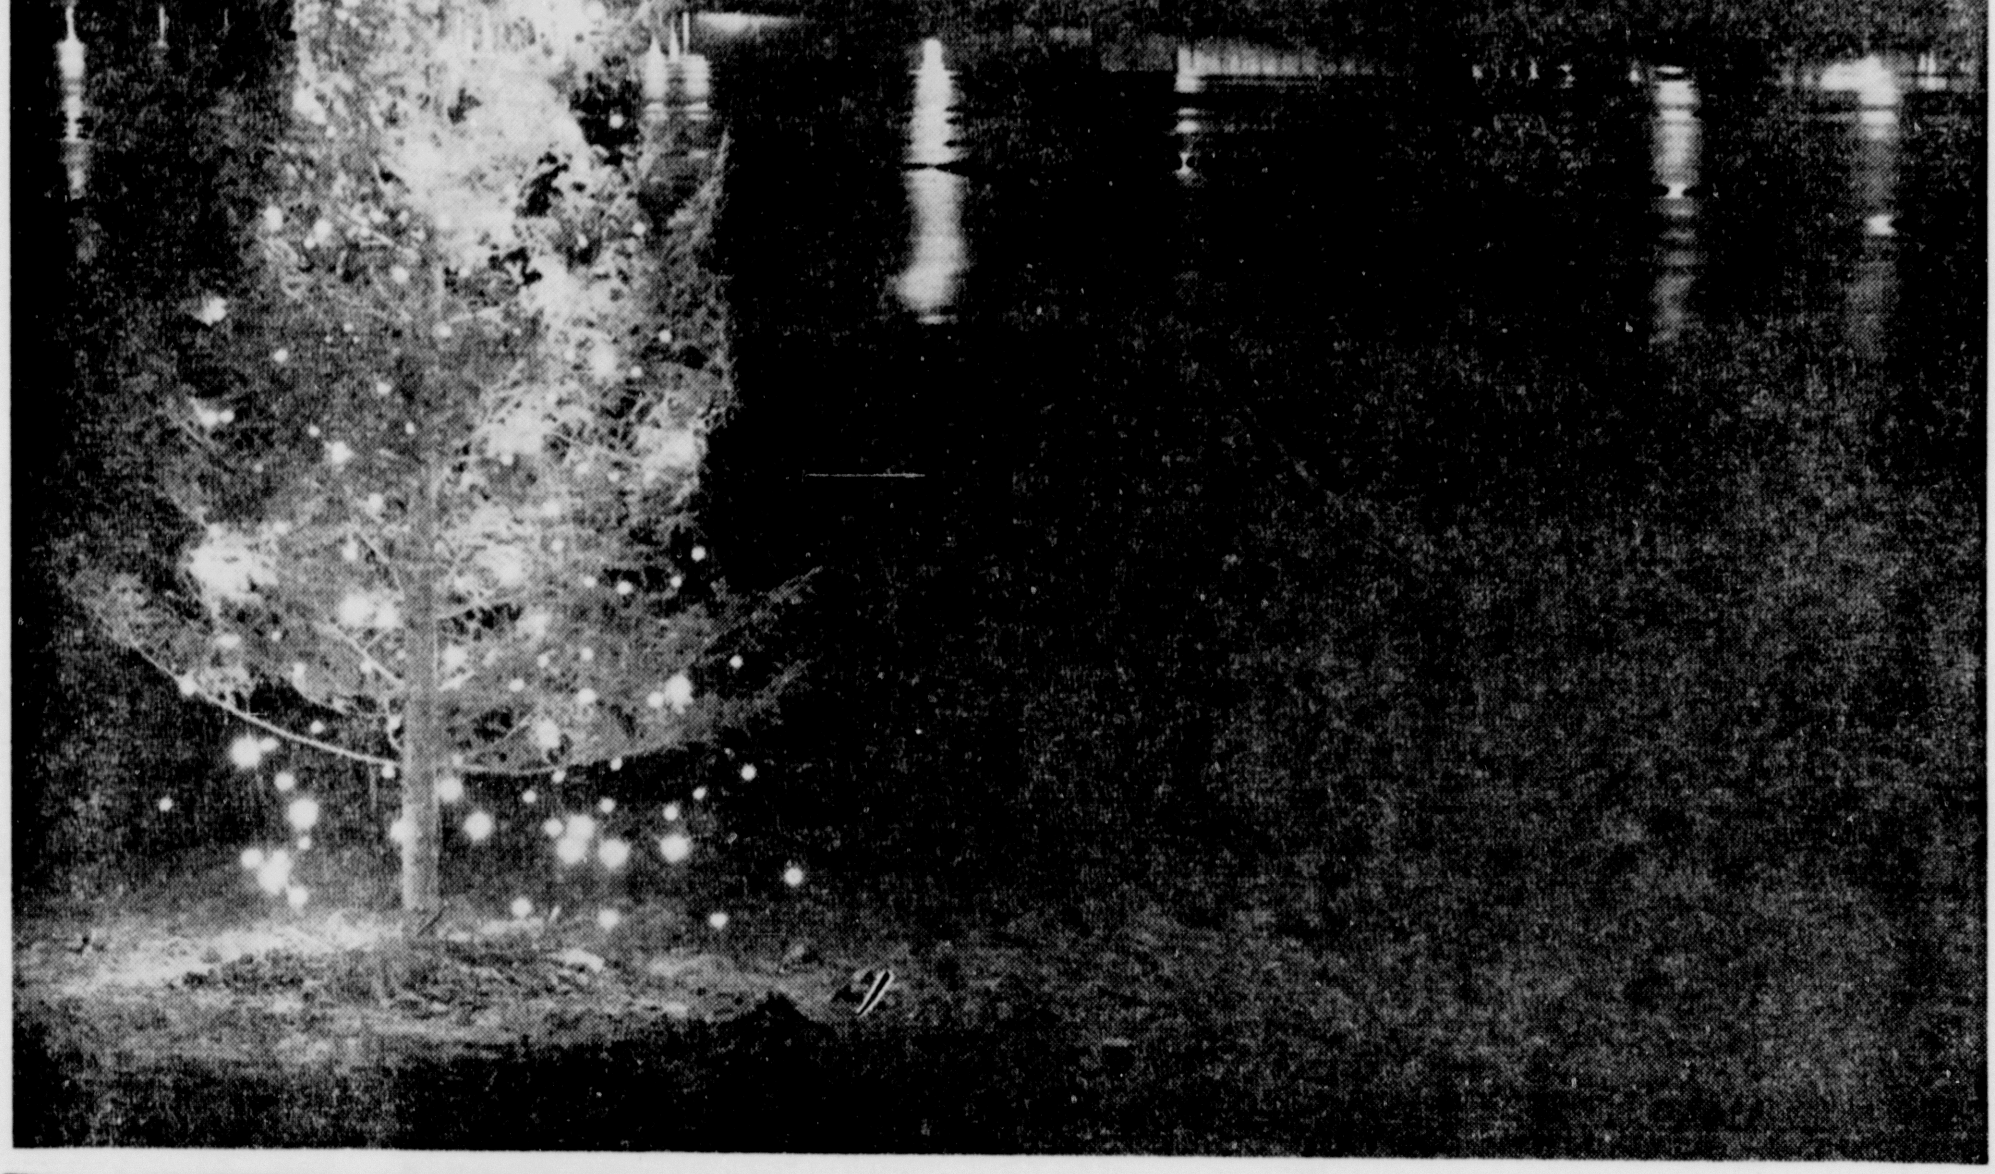

—P. Brooks

Stereo Hi-Fi

By. C. J. Catania

Can a top brand, ready-made stereo console selling for $900, or $1500, or $2,000, or more be as good as you can buy? Can it be the best stereo console for your money? The answer is NO.

Why can't it be the best stereo console? Have you ever seen a commercial console with a McIntosh Tuner and amplifier, with Altec 605C loudspeakers, with a Thorens record player, with an exclusive custom cabinet to fit your own room decor? Of course you haven't. These items are only available to the connoisseur who selects a custom component type stereo console.

Does a component stereo system have to cost $900 to $2000 or more? Again the answer is NO. If you concentrate on sound as a starter and leave the furniture until later, you can begin your sustom stereo for as low as $299. Remember, just having a lovely piece of furniture is not enough if what you are really looking for is the best stereo reproduction you can afford.

There are two ways to start your home music system on a budget and yet achieve perfection. One, you can start your system by purchasing quality components, and speakers, and record changer, and leave the custom furniture until later. RESULT! The realism of the full symphony in your home. Secondly, you can start by ourchasing an exquisite custom stereo furnitire console. Furniture that will stay with the family for generations. Initially, the console can house the simplest and least expensive components. Later, you can up-date the units piece by piece and trade in the original items. Initial resultl Better sound than expensive commercial consoles. Final result! The finest sound and loviest furniture.

ONE OF George R. Scott's two major holiday interests is the growing of poinsettias. He and his wife have more than a hundred of the traditional Christmas plants thriving in a heated greenhouse at their home at 22 Amicita Avenue, Mill Valley. Scott has been growing the "finicky" and "temperamental" plants for 15 years, beginning with two originals, one creamy white and the other a bright Christmas red, from which he has developed a thousand or more younger poinsettias. (Color photo by Independent - Journal staff photographer Bob Hax)

A YEAR-AROUND INTEREST of George R. Scott of Mill Valley—his membership on the board of directors of the Marin County Tuberculosis and Health Assn. He has served on that board for approximately 25 years, and is a past president of the association. Here he checks some of the early contributions for 1964 Christmas seals while reminding Marinites who have not yet sent in their annual support of the association's program to do so.

George Scott's Two Holiday Traditions

Two holiday traditions—Christmas Seals and poinsettias—are year-around interests of the George R. Scotts of 22 Amicita Avenue in Mill Valley.

To thrive, both require the endless labor and constant concern the Scotts so willingly give.

From the longevity standpoint, Christmas Seals are foremost.

Sixty-seven-year-old Scott has served the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn. as a director longer than he can remember.

"It's probably 25 years — at least 20," he says. He can state with certainty that he was association president in 1949 and 1950.

MRS. SCOTT, with characteristic enthusiasm for her husband's interests, has been an indispensable volunteer worker since the Scotts' marriage in 1955. Each summer, when Christmas Seal mailing lists are compiled, MayBelle Scott works eight or more hours a day for many weeks typing thousands of names and addresses.

George Scott went on the TB association board at the urging of Mrs. Carmel Booth, former San Anselmo city council member who had once had tuberculosis.

Shortly afterward, the mobile X-ray unit parked near his office and he instructed the office force to have chest X-rays.

"Later, when I asked them if they had done it, they admitted they hadn't and I made them all take time off and go get an X-ray," he recalls. "I knew it was important and, besides, my secretary had been complaining of feeling tired all the time."

"A FEW DAYS later the doctor called her and she began to cry. 'The doctor says I have tuberculosis and have to go to the hospital and I'll lose my job,' she said. I said if you have to go to the hospital, go. Your job will be waiting for you—and it was, when she got out of Ross Terrace six months later," Scott recalls.

When Mrs. Scott types for the TB association, she does it at home in order to continue her full-time job as "head water boy and pot washer" of the backyard botanical operation known to its proprietors as "Scott's Folly."

Components are two glass-roofed greenhouses, one with a thermostatically-controlled temperature range of 64 to 85 degrees; a lathhouse to provide shade and wind protection for camellias, azaleas and fuchsias; and a three-by-nine foot cutting bed of fertilizer-enriched sand on heating coils providing a temperature of 60 degrees.

USUALLY AT this season, the heated greenhouse throbs with the brilliance of a hundred-plus blooming poinsettias.

Scott has been intrigued (and, at times, plagued) by poinsettias since he bought two plants 15 years ago. From these original plants, one creamy white and the other Christmas red, have come the thousand or more poinsettia plants given away each year.

"Finicky," "funny" and "temperamental" are a few terms Scott applies to poinsettias.

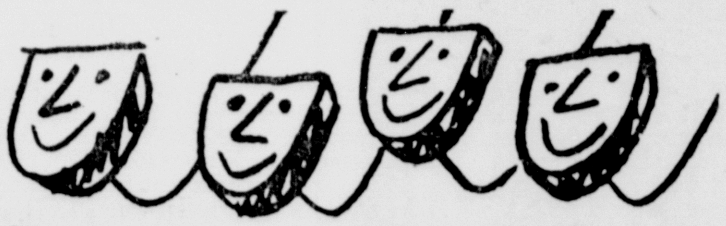

They don't like gas heat indoors, they don't like wind nor too much sun, and they can't stand frost, he says.

EVEN WITH HIS ideal equipment, he must pamper his poinsettias. He keeps them in the lathhouse all summer, then moves them to the greenhouse in October. In June he starts new plants from cuttings ("the heat coils underneath sand make anything grow"), and every year each plant is re-potted twice.

Asked for advice on raising these temperamental treasures without benefit of "Scott's Folly" equipment, he warned: "It's hard to get them to bloom unless you have an ideal place."

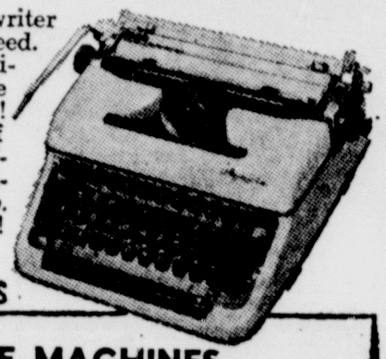

"If they are outside, even in summer, they have to have a sheltered place. Gusts of cold wind will make the leaves yellow and fall. If they get dry, the bottom leaves fall. You can't give them too much water; they can dry out in an hour. And if they're in a clay pot, you can water them all day," Scott says.

100 Poinsettias In Bloom For Christmas

YELLOW LEAVES usually result from lack of water, a sudden change of temperature or from being hit by a cold wind. They should be brought indoors in October. A porch is a fine place for them — if it doesn't get below 50 degrees.

Potted poinsettias, Scott advises, should be taken out of the pot when they become dormant and cut back to two buds on the new growth. The old soil should be shaken off the roots and the plant re-potted.

He warns that potted plants require feeding frequently—every two weeks, in fact. His preference is fish emulsion.

TO BLOOM by Christmas, poinsettias need dark, overcast weather. They'll bloom eventually without it, but if you want them by Christmas, he recommends putting a screen of some kind above them to cut out most — not all — of the light.

However, he does not think it necessary to put them in a dark closet.

Scott uses a chemical regulator to prevent tall, scraggly growth. It is used in a water solution only once in the plant's life — when it is about eight inches tall.

His poinsettias aren't as numerous as usual this year, Scott apologizes.

THE REASON: A heart attack, his second, in July which interfered with his clipping and potting schedule.

A section on poinsettia raising is contained in a little book George Scott has just published, entitled "Plants Can Be Beautiful." The book is now being distributed by the Tamalpais Savings and Loan Assn., of which Scott is vice-president.

The "plants" referred to in the book's title are indoor plants, which Scott favors slightly over the outdoor variety, and which he has given away by the thousands to friends and customers of the savings and loan association.

A favorite gift plant is the solunam or Flowering Pepper.

In preparation, the entire side of Scott's heated greenhouse is currently atwinkle with the tiny red and yellow peppers that so closely resemble colored lights on a Christmas tree.

ANOTHER SECTION of the greenhouse glows red and green with large-leaved coleus plants. Dwarf palms (kentia) and several varieties of philodendron are everywhere.

Already in color, both inside and out at the Scott residence, are early-blooming azaleas and camellias, sturdy fuchsias and two colors of impatiens.

Literally topping them all is an exotic flower spray that arches 20 feet above their front door. It's a Hawaiian dahlia that this year won its annual race with the frost, Mrs. Scott explains.

Mr. and Mrs Scott do all their own garden work. At present Scott has only weekends, but after the first of the year he expects to give more time to his hobby.

Jan. 1 is the effective date of his resignation as secretary of Painters Union Local 83, a job he assumed reluctantly 30 years and one month ago. Because he didn't want the job, he took it on a week-to-week basis, an arrangement that continued for 18 years.

THROUGHOUT most of the 30 years, Scott has been at his office from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., with only time away to participate in such community-benefiting organizations as the TB association, the Marin County Industrial Development Foundation and the Marin County Planning Commission. He also serves as president of the Marin County Building Trades Council.

During the early years with the union he spent many night hours working in behalf of Local 83, and it was primarily due to his efforts that Marin County painters were organized within a year after he became secretary—an accomplishment that helped earn him the title of "Mr. Labor of Marin."

Actually, Scott's resignation will end a 53-year career as a painter, since he entered the trade at the age of 14.

THE FLIP OF a coin directed his course, he recalls. With a young friend he went to the railroad shops in his native Marshall, Mo., in quest of two available jobs—one for a painter, the other for an upholsterer. He abided by the coin toss decision.

Scott moved to Southern California in 1918 and came to Marin in 1925, living for a year on Sunnyside and then moving to 26 Amicita Avenue, next door to his present home. Comprising his family then were his wife, Zena, and two young sons, Simon, then 9, and Stanley, 6.

At 22 Amcita, at that time, lived Mr. and Mrs. William Ross and their 4-year-old son, Bill. Seven years later James Ross was born.

The Scott and Ross boys were good friends, and during their high school days at Tam, the Scott boys frequently came to the Ross home to do their home work.

"THEY WERE just like my own boys," MayBelle Ross Scott says.

It is Mrs. Scott who today proudly cites the distinguished war record of the late Simon Scott, who served with Patton in the Battle of the Bulge, and who held the Tam High track record for the mile run until last year. Simon died last summer at the age of 47.

MayBelle Scott was born in Brown's Valley, near Grass Valley, and came to Mill Valley in 1917. Her late father, Herman S. Mott, was a cattleman-turned-contractor. She moved to her present home at 22 Amicita in 1934. Following the death of William Ross in 1952, she worked as a secretary in San Francisco.

In 1955 Mrs. Zena Scott passed away, and on Christmas Eve of that year MayBelle Mott Ross became Mrs. George Robert Scott.

"I TELL HER the gate between the two backyards was her downfall," Scott chuckles.

A living wedding present they still have to enjoy is Bobby, the TV-watching parakeet who is an ardent Beatle fan.

"He sings along with them and scolds like anything when we turn them off," Mrs. Scott declares.

Besides Bobby to keep them abreast of the younger generation, the Scotts have 10 grandchildren. Stanley Scott and his wife, residents of Novato, have children ages 12, 16 and 18; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ross of Walnut Creek have four, 2, 11, 13 and 15; and Mr. and Mrs. James Ross of San Francisco have three, ages 7, 9 and 12.

AFTER THE first of the year, Scott hopes to see more of his grandchildren—as well as his plants.

Realization of this hope is made just a bit dubious by this statement, however: "I'm going to spend quite a bit of time down at the Tamalpais Savings and Loan. They want me to become a working vice-president . . . "

POINSETTIAS AREN'T the only floral plant that flourish at the George R. Scott home. Camellias and impatiens such as these growing in their yard are other favorites of Scott and his wife, MayBelle. Azaleas and fuchsias are still other favorites.

The Story Of San Quentin

A New Era Of Reform At Prison

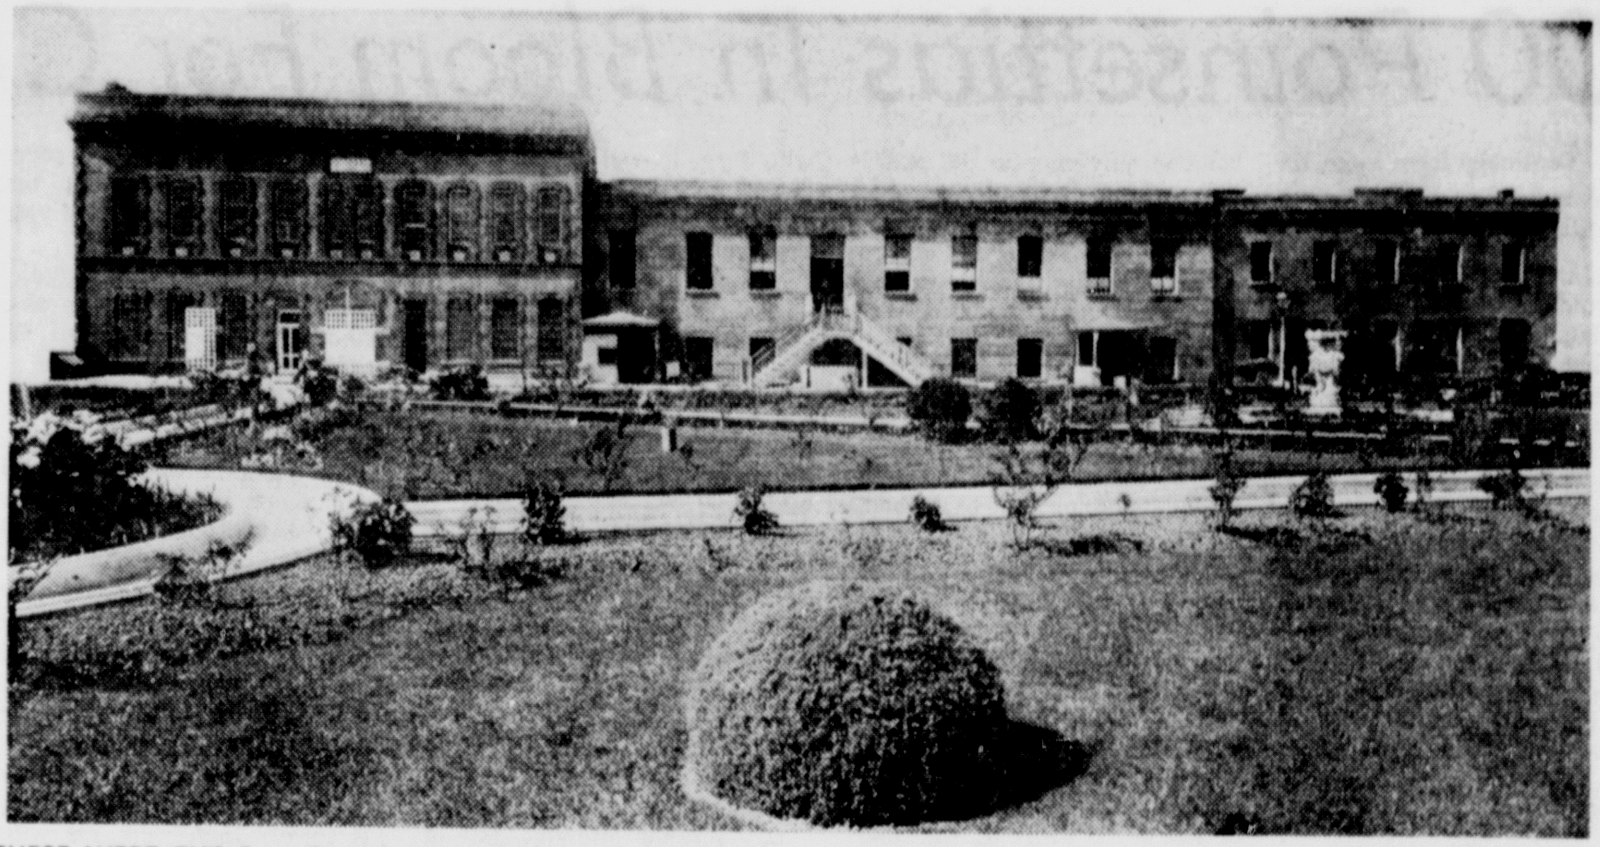

(Editor's Note: Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly continues the history of San Quentin Prison.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

Dr. Leo L. Stanley, physician and surgeon, was appointed "prison doctor" in 1913 and served in that capacity for many years.

In his book, "Men at Their Worst," Dr. Stanley said Warden John E. Hoyle told him that he intended to do away with the striped uniforms of the convicts. He also promised that hospital facilities would be improved.

Dr. Stanley was the first surgeon on full-time duty at San Quentin. Earlier, when an operation was considered necessary, a surgeon was brought in from the outside.

THESE WERE THE San Quentin Prison Hospital buildings as Dr. Leo L. Stanley found them when he reported for duty as the institution's first full-time surgeon in 1913. The building at right, the "old hospital," had been erected in 1859; the building at left, "the new hospital," had been built in 1886. Dr. Stanley found conditions inside unsanitary and disorganized.

DR. STANLEY, accustomed to the facilities of modern hospitals, was aghast at the prison's hospital. It was located in an old stone building.

Men, dying with tuberculosis, were in beds along side of prisoners who had only minor ailments.

Everywhere unsanitary conditions existed.

On the lower floor of the main hospital were the surgery and drug room. A littered alcove was the office. Upstairs were two wards, one surgical, the other medical.

DR. STANLEY set up two clinics a day. Sick call was conducted right after breakfast. Convicts requiring medical attention formed a line and, if needed, received medication. Those seriously ill were hospitalized. There was a second sick call line at noon.

Every new convict was given a thorough medical examination. If there were remediable defects, he was given treatment or underwent an operation.

Warden Hoyle also tried to keep as many of the convicts as possible busy, allowing them to put on minstrel and vaudeville shows, plays and concerts. The New Year's Day show became a tradition and often filled the entire day.

CONVICTS WERE divided into three classes.

The "fish" or new convicts, were assigned to the second class until they had showed they deserved promotion to the first class or demotion to the third.

In July of 1913 the hateful striped uniforms were taken away and the convicts wore trim, gray blue suits.

A day school for prisoners was established.

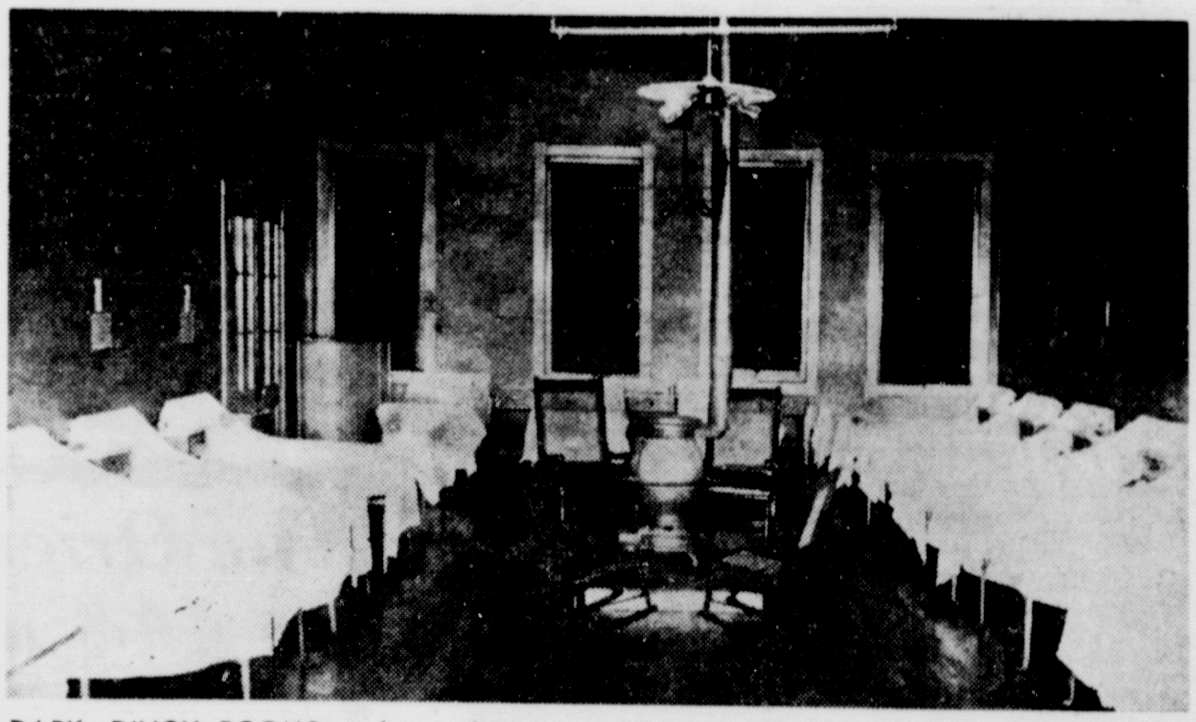

Rev. William H. Lloyd, chaplain, organized the school. The illiterate men attended two hours in the morning and another group two hours in the afternoon. Night classes were held for the more advanced students.

THE CHAPLAIN was assisted by a staff of educated convicts.

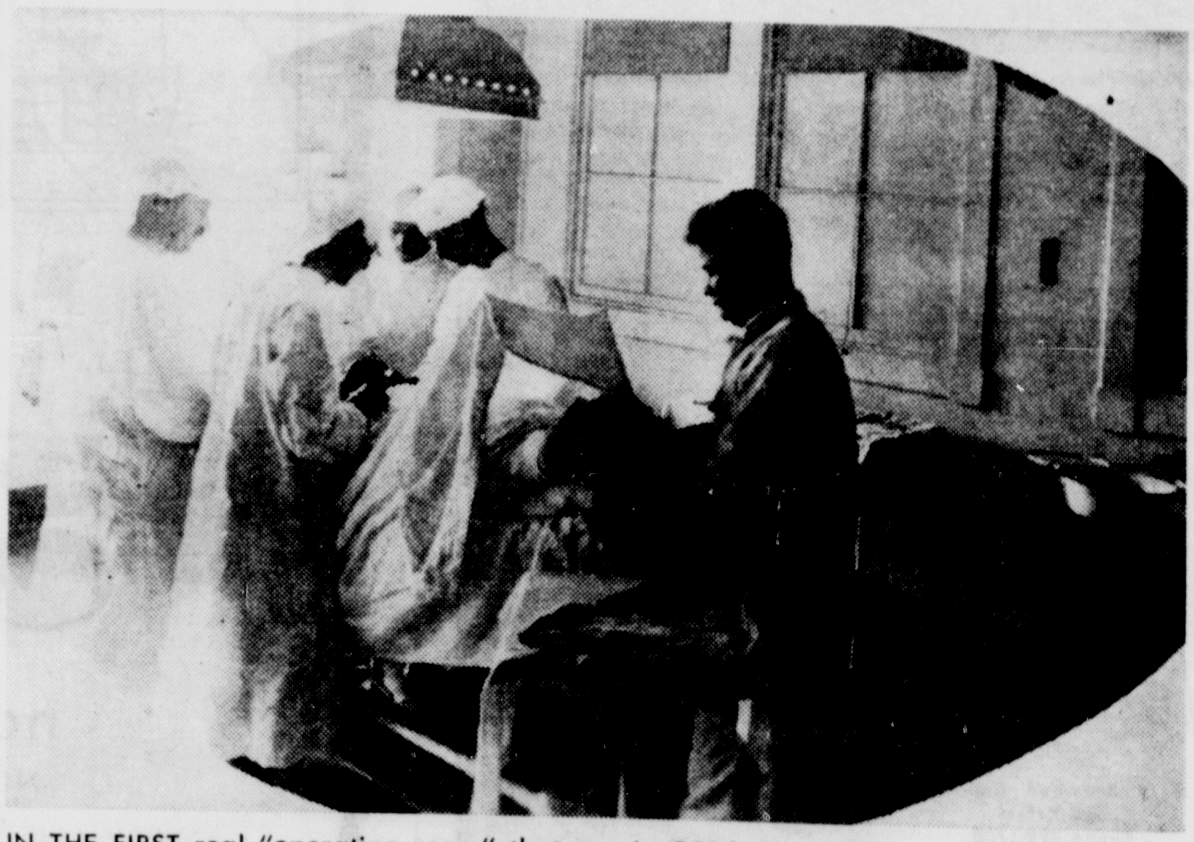

Hoyle also improved the climate of the prison greatly when he urged higher pay for guards, commissary privileges and a cash food allowance. He also suggested that the guards have a recreation center with a gym and billiard room.

Hoyle's successor, James A. Johnston, who had been warden at Folsom Prison and instituted many long needed reforms there, was not a psychologist.

DARK, DINGY ROOMS such as this so-called "surgical ward" were among the conditions which Dr. Leo L. Stanley discovered when he began his long career as San Quentin Prison staff doctor back in 1913. The energetic physician and doctor set out to correct the situation and bring modern medicine and surgery to the convicts.

IN THE FIRST real "operating room" that the San Quentin Prison hospital had known, an operation was photographed in 1914. Warden John E. Hoyle cooperated with the new prison physician in bringing about an improvement of the medical facilities and practices.

An Era Of Reform For San Quentin

But he understood the feelings of the prisoners.

DR. STANLEY wrote of him: "To him those in his charge were not beasts, but men. He did not like to have them spoken of as 'cons'."

From his time on, the charges were referred to as "the prisoners," "the inmates" or "the men."

Johnston was instrumental in introducing the honor system—working without guards.

Among his other improvements were the sending of second-termers to Folsom, the starting of road camps and the development of a full-time school. Johnston also brought distinguished visitors to talk to the men. And during his tenure he installed the spendid dental department under Dr. Vance Simonton.

And Dr. Stanley rejoiced: "In all hospitalization improvements, Johnston let me knew he would be with me all the way."

Johnston began construction of the "New Prison." To make room for it, the old graveyard on the hill was moved. In a year the building, with 800 cells, was finished. Each cell had lavatory facilities.

JOHNSTON'S record at the prison was splendid, but even so, he came in for his share of criticism. Most of it was unfair.

A San Francisco newspaper charged that a prisoner had taken an extension course in chemistry from the University of California and was the inventor of a bomb. The warden pointed out that the university did not teach chemistry by correspondence.

During World War I, the women at the prison knitted and sewed as did their sisters outside the walls, and the other inmates pooled their money for "Liberty Loans."

JOHNSTON resigned in 1924 to go into business. He later returned to the prison life as warden of the federal prison on Alcatraz.

Frank Smith, a former state printer, succeeded Johnston. He had some newspaper experience and made the most of it when he informed the press he intended to establish a high school at the prison and increase work in the jute mill and furniture factory.

Almost as soon as Smith took over, race riots began.

Where before the persecuted minority groups at the prison had been defenseless Chinese and Indians, the inmates were now attacking the Mexicans. However, this was one minority group which did fight back — with knives, iron bars, rocks or whatever other weapon was on hand.

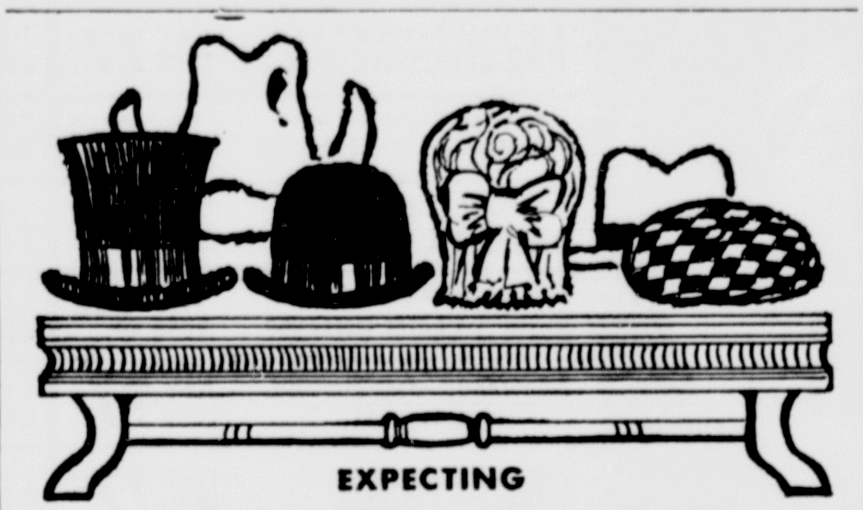

For every Mexican killed, a white man paid the same price. Many prisoners were put in the dungeon and Warden Smith canceled all visits and entertainment.

THE RIOTS in the prison resulted in demonstrations in the outside world. The Mexican ambassador in Washington demanded an immediate investigation. Sporadic riots continued, and Warden Smith submitted his resignation in 1927, but it was not until the following July he left his office.

His successor, James B. Holohan, a former sheriff, served many years at the prison.

RESPONSIBLE FOR a number of penal reforms at San Quentin Prison was James A. Johnston, who succeeded John E. Hoyle as warden. The construction of "the new prison" was only one of his accomplishments. Photo from Johnston's book, "Prison Life is Different."

THE BOOK PAGES

Two Authors Recall Old-Fashioned Yules

By DON KEOWN

We admit to being a sucker for well-written books in the nostalgic vein about Christmas as it used to be.

Two such, new this year, are Thyra Ferre Bjorn's "Once Upon A Christmas Time" and Paul Engle's "An Old-Fashioned Christmas."

Mrs. Bjorn's small book is especially charming, as the author of "Papa's Wife" recalls the holiday season in the Sweden of her childhood where the observance was particularly beautiful and meaningful. Readers will emerge from their indoctrination into a time and place when the yule pace was less hurried, probably more pleasurable and certainly more reverent, with a glow, and with a determination to bring some of that same spirit into their own family's celebration.

The Engle book, also a small one, opens with a heartwarming recollection of Christmas in old Iowa with snow, sleighbells and real candles on the tree. Along with his description of Christmas on the prairie, Engle, director of the writers' workshop at Iowa State University, also examines the history of the holiday observance in America and explores some of its deepest meanings.

Both of these booklets can add depth and luster to your own holiday season, reawakening as they do an appreciation of the traditions and of the occasion for these greatest days of the year.

ALSO TIMELY right now is Marguerite Ickis' "The Book of Festival Holidays."

For each of the principal festival holidays, both secular and religious, Mrs. Ickis tells their origins, recounts their traditions and suggests methods by which they can be observed. Foods, decorations, songs, pageants and dances are among the subjects she covers.

An earlier book by Mrs. Ickis, "The Book of Patriotic Holidays" was quite successful. This one appears equally helpful — even inspiring—for the householder who might feel that her family's holiday spirits are lagging.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS TIME by Thyra Ferre Bjorn, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 92 pages, $2.95.

AN OLD-FASHIONED CHRISTMAS by Paul Engle, Dial Press, 96 pages, $3.95.

THE BOOK OF FESTIVAL HOLIDAYS by Marguerite Ickis, Dodd, Mead, 178 pages, $3.75.

MOVIES by Richard Schickel, Basic Books, 208 pages, $4.95.

THE SPORTSMAN'S NOTEBOOK by H. G. Tapply, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 333 pages, $7.95.

JACKET ART for Thyra Ferre Bjorn's new book, "Once Upon A Christmas Time," is by Pat Feder. The book recalls the author's Christmases as a child in her native Sweden.

KNOWN FOR his articulate and perceptive book reviews on the National Broadcasting Co.'s "Sunday" television show, Richard Schickel has now focussed his considerable faculties upon the cinema.

In "Movies," he has written a critical history of film-making to support his thesis that the industry-art does have a tradition and a historical continuity. What we freely term "the new cinema," he contends, has its roots in the past. And what we are witnessing is a continuing process of breakthroughs and building.

Shickel is fearful that a failure to recognize this continuity will result in further fragmentation of film audiences, into devotees of art houses and fans of the commercial movies. In actuality, he contends, a film done well can be both a work of art and a piece of entertainment.

The history as written by film fan Schickel is a down-to-earth probing beneath the tinsel and glitter for the facts of life of movie-making. It is written on two planes — the international, and the Hollywood. But Schickel is careful to show the correlation between the two.

Enlivening the book is Schickel's willingness to express personal opinions on just about everything. You may not share his assessment of a film trend, an individual film, producer, director, actor or actress. You may be surprised when he puts down a personal favorite—"Marty," "Ben Hur," George Stevens or perhaps Ingmar Bergman. And you may be astounded when he discusses at length a long roster of actresses without even mentioning Ingrid Bergman, certainly one of the best, perhaps the very best of them all.

But you will find his opinions at all times provocative and well stated.

A great deal of study has gone into the book. But perhaps more important is the personal audacity and sagacity of the author. It all adds up to a book that contributes to the reader's understanding of how the movies came about and stimulates his interest in their present status and possible future directions.

VETERAN outdoor writer H. G. Tapply has built up a large following among Field & Stream magazine readers during the past 14 years with his "The Sportsman's Notebook" column.

His fans will be delighted now by the opportunity to acquire those columns, somewhat revised and updated, as a single collection.

Holt, Rinehart and Winston has published under the same title as the column a well-designed book of Tapply's sage and sound advice for fishermen and hunters.

For anglers, his topics range beyond casting and playing techniques and the selection of gear to such related topics as the cleaning of perch, the estimating of the weight of fish, the "reading" of trout waters, etc.

For hunters, in addition to such basics as the stalking of the deer and the hunting of small game, there is advice on the field-dressing of a buck, the making of duck decoys, the training of dogs, and the preparation of game dinners along with myriad other related subjects.

Each article is followed by a sampling of "Tap's Tips," short bits of very practical advice for sportsmen from Tapley's huge store of experience.

It's just the thing for the man interested in improving his luck with rod or gun—or, more accurately, for the man who wants to minimize the luck factor by upgrading his skills. And it's nicely illustrated by Walter Dower.

ONE OF the Marin Magazine's favorite local poets, Ruth Murray Jones, has had a collection of her verse published under the title "Hold Fast the Moment." Wuerth Letter Shop of Berkeley printed the handsomely and sturdily bound little volume. A number of the poems that are included have appeared earlier in this magazine's popular "Poet's Corner."

FOR TENNIS buffs, "Love-40" is a collection of photos, past and present, of action in the net sport with the kind of humorous and satiric captions that are now so much in vogue. Asher J. Birbaum is the "author," Tennis Features of Highland Park, Ill., the publisher. And the softcover booklet sells for $1.

A Harvest Of Good Ideas For Amusing The Children

By JEAN LYTTLE

Three paperbacks published by Dover Publications Inc. are crammed with good ideas for amusement to children and possibly for adults as well.

"String Figures and How to Make Them" by Caroline F. Jayne ($2) describes, in a simple and easy-to-follow manner, how to make 107 different string figures, and the history behind them, as they are made in their land of origin. The figures offer an excellent means for developing manual dexterity and present a challenge with their infinite variations of the familiar "cat's cradle."

"Diversions and Pastimes" by R. M. Abraham ($1) has "easy" and "not so easy" brain teasers, riddles and mathematical problems as well as tricks and sleights-of-hands with coins and matches, string and playing cards.

"It's Fun to Make Things From Scrap Materials" by Evelyn G. Hershoff ($1.50) offers a wealth of ideas, invaluable to anyone who works with children, including many suggestions for the holidays.

Sleuths & Suspense

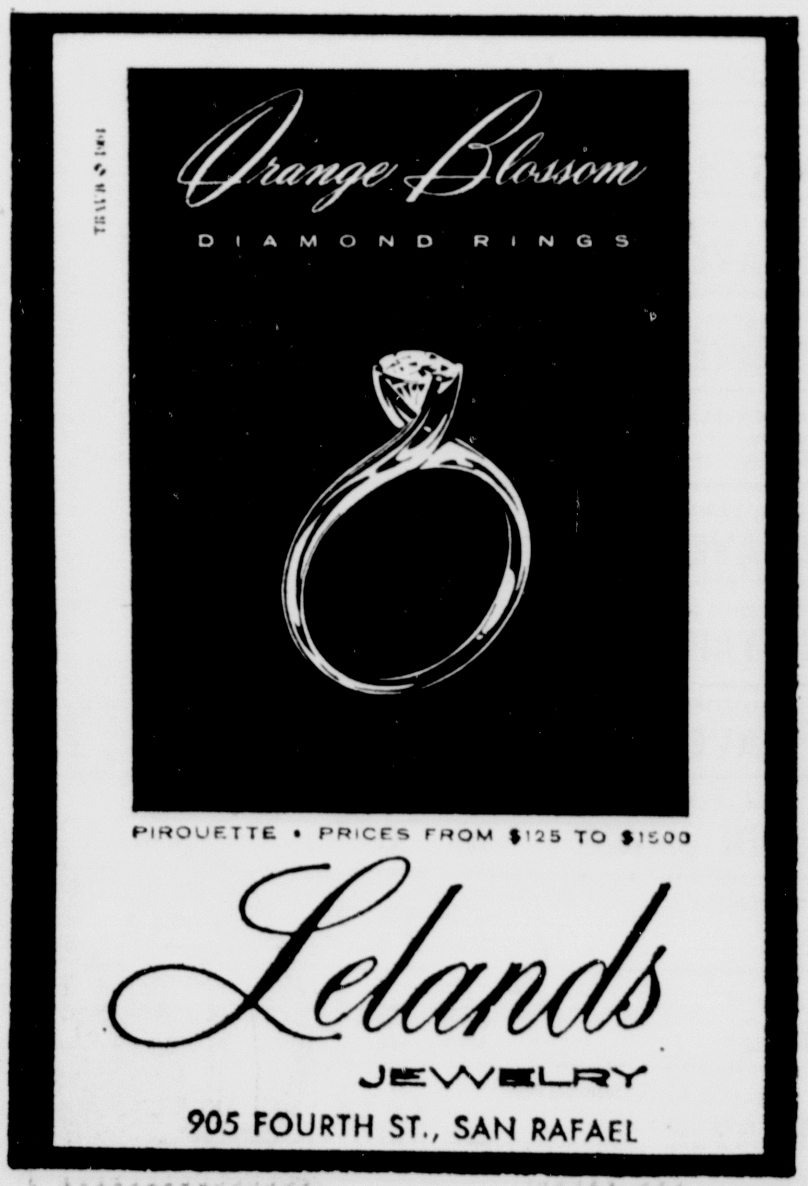

THE TERRORS OF THE EARTH by Stanton Forbes, Crime Club, 191 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The woman in peril from an anonymous source, made distrustful of even her friends by her fright and suspicions, is a familiar suspense novel theme. Yet, when expertly done, it still makes for an exciting, gripping story.

Stanton Forbes handles it exceptionally well in "The Terrors of the Earth."

Claudia Archer, in her early 40s and widowed with two children, begins receiving threatening, unsigned letters. Something in her past lies behind the terrifying menace, but she knows not what. As she struggles for the answer, she reaches the grim conclusion that her late husband's death was not a hit-and-run accident as first thought, but deliberate murder.

The story is tightly-written, realistic and absorbing, especially for female mystery fans who will identify easily with Claudia.

REPORTS FROM OUR REVIEWERS

SPICES HAVE played a major role in world history. In Mexico in 1520, Herman Cortez became the first white man to taste vanilla. He took his new discovery back to Europe where it soon became a popular kitchen product.

The Seasonings

THE McCORMICK SPICES OF THE WORLD COOKBOOK by Mary Collins, McGraw-Hill, 330 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

A rather belated entry—but a good one—in the Christmas season "cookbook derby" is "The McCormick Spices of the World Cookbook," written by home economics director Mary Collins and tested in the McCormick and Co. kitchens.

The book is jammed with well-chosen recipes that range from the simple to the exotic, all dependent to varying extents upon spices or herbs for their distinctive zest and flavor.

There is also a special section on the origin and use of nearly 100 spices. The housewife learns that ground allspice can be sprinkled on sweet potatoes and squash; that coriander seed is a tasty addition to the yuletide wassail bowl; that cinnamon and East India pepper are perhaps the most versatile of the spices. And that the basic "secret" for experimentation with spices is to begin with small quantities. More can always be added, but you cannot remove what has already been used if you go overboard initially.

Some other unusual features include sections on canning, outdoor cookery, special kitchen aids and helpful hints on cooking.

The hardcover, ringbound, looseleaf format of the book is handsome, and for another $2 you can purchase a deluxe edition that includes an easel that allows the book to stand upright on the kitchen counter. Illustrations are colorful and appetizing, and the arrangement of the unusually well-indexed book is a real time-saving factor.

Music Handbook

THE LITERATURE OF THE PIANO by Ernest Hutcheson, revised by Rudolph Ganz, Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., 436 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Maybelle Speckmann.

Not just for reading, this is a handbook for the amateur or student pianist to consult in matters of selection, interpretation and performance of individual pieces of piano literature. It is illustrated with more than 300 quotations from various compositions.

It also contains much material on composers from before Bach to the present day, including American composers.

The late Ernest Hutcheson was a famous teacher who for years served as president and a director of the Juilliard School of Music in New York. Swiss-born Ganz, also a teacher and a renowned concert pianist, has included much material of his own, especially in appendices on technique and fingerings.

It is interesting to compare their viewpoints, especially when they conflict as they do on Debussy, Grieg and Bartok.

Ganz, now 87, is surprisingly receptive to avant garde movements and discusses many living composers, magnetic tape, concrete and electronic music.

Gentle Philosophy

LIVING BY FAITH by Faith Baldwin, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 153 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The gentle, homespun, wise philosophy of Faith Baldwin has great appeal and real value in this day and age when decision and action are not always preceded by thought and evaluation.

"Living by Faith," her fifth book of inspiration, is based on her monthly column, "The Open Door," in Woman's Day magazine.

In almanac format, month by month, she takes her readers through a calendar year, describing not so much the events of her quiet life as her state of mind and the environment from which it stems.

It is an optimistic book, for Miss Baldwin is an optimistic person. It is a warm book, for she is also a warm and comforting person. And it is a spiritual book, for Miss Baldwin is concerned with spiritual values.

There's an irresistible nostalgic quality about "Living by Faith" that is best exemplified by her comments upon the holidays, by her observations of Nature and by her affectionate descriptions of her old home in Norwalk, Conn.

Polish Needed

THE EARLY DAYS OF PROHIBITION by Clarence R. Pickering, Vantage Press, 145 pages, $3. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

The author, a former prohibition agent, recounts his dangerous and exciting experiences during the prohibition days.

Unfortunately, his style is stilted and his messages laden with cliches taking the edge off what is essentially an action-packed yarn.

Pickering's story is one that a competent ghost writer could have improved because the main defect is in the writing.

The book jacket says "The facts and realities of the era need no melodramatic polish."

Maybe not the facts, but the writing does.

Quick Glimpses At Books For The Young Readers

Some new books for young readers, tots to teens:

"The Magic Wishbone" by Sister Adele Marie Lemon with illustrations by Sister Charlotte Anne Carter, published by the Lawrence Publishing Company ($3) has many simple Spanish words (and dictionary) which will intrigue the beginning Spanish student in grade school. It is the story of a small boy and of the exciting things that happen to him when he goes to live with old Dona Trini in the little adobe house under the cottonwood trees.

Bennett Cerf's "Little Riddle Book," (Random House) illustrated by Roy McKie is a collection of riddles that will appeal to youngsters with a leaning toward elementary humor.

"The Fable of Profitt the Fox" by Bill Sokol (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $2.95) follows Profitt the fox from the time he wins a fortune in the forest by trickery until he learns a lesson in morals that he never forgets. Polish-born Sokol found the inspiration for the fable from his own Slavic heritage. His graphic pictures in color add to the book's charm.

"Kent Barstow Aboard the Dyna Soar" by Rutherford Montgomery, (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.50) is another in the series of Kent Barstow adventure dramas of the U.S. Air Force of today. Here Kent joins the crew on the Dyna Soar's test flight, and his quick thinking alone saves the manned aerospace glider from its planned destruction. Lots of excitment for the boys.

There's fun for youngsters 4 to 7 in Shel Silverstein's "A Giraffe And A Half" (Harper & Row, $2.95), a story in nonsense rhyme about the zany adventures of a giraffe. Humorous black and white drawings are in the same vein.

On The Stereo Scene With Sunier—

By JOHN SUNIER
KBRG Program Manager

Some new releases from Columbia and Victor:

BACH: Fourth Lute Suite; ALBENIZ: Sevilla; TARREGA: Recollections of the Alhambra and six other modern guitar works—John Williams, guitar—Columbia Stereo MS 6608:

This is the first U.S. recording by the young English guitarist to whom Segovia himself has paid highest tribute. He performs the lengthy Bach work superbly, and most of the short Spanish pieces for guitar are equally fine, although the familiar "Recollections" has seen better performances.

The sound is closeup and yet very natural. I'm certain the mono version would not equal it.

PASTORALES by SCHUBERT GRAINGER, STRAVINSKY, JOLIVET, PERSICHETTI, WAILLY, PIERNE, MILHAUD — The Philadelphia Woodwind Quintet — Columbia Stereo MS 6584:

The bassoonist in this leading wind group, Sol Schoenbach, conceived the idea of this album devoted to woodwind works of either pastorals title or natrue. It is totally captivating throughout.

Among the high points are the Jolivet suite for flute, bassoon and harp and the two different versions of the Stravinsky Pastorale (which is the sign-off theme of listener-subscription station KPFA). This first version is for wordless soprano voice and and four winds, and the second for violin and four winds.

This LP would be a wonderful introduction to the literature of the small wind group for those who find lengthy diverimenti and quintets too much to handle.

ROUSSEL: Symphony No. 3 in G Minor Opus 42; MESSIAEN: Trois Petites Liturgies de la Presence Divine — Women's Chorus of the Choral Art Society and New York Philharmonic with Leonard Bernstein conducting—Columbia Stereo MS 6582:

The music of both of these

20th century French composers is highly individual and yet eschews complete atonalism. It deserves more recognition on records in this country than it has received.

This is the only recording of both works presently available.

The Roussel symphony was written for the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1930. It combines the impressionistic influence with the classic discipline as regards structure, along with the distinctive sharp rhythms of Roussel's music.

The Messiaen work is mystical, exotic and emotional. It makes use of the Ondes Martenot, a type of Theremin with a keyboard added for closer control of the real sounds.

Messiaen wrote the text of his "Three Little Liturgies" himself.

A painting by Dali is appropriate cover art.

AARON COPLAND: The Red Pony; BENJAMIN BRITTEN: Sinfonia da Requiem — Andre Previn conducting the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra — Columbia Stereo MS 6583:

This is the first recording of the unusual Britten work, and also the first time Hollywood's movie-music director Andre Previn has conducted a recording of serious concert music.

It seems difficult to believe that the Requiem was commissioned by Japanese in 1940. The non-vocal composition is an artist's plea for peace.

"The Red Pony" was a 1948 non-vocal composition is an artfilm about a 10-year boy and his pony on a ranch. Copland wrote a sound track in the same Western vein as his previous ballet scores "Rodeo" and "Billy the Kid." The nostalgic wide-open-spaces feeling of Copland's music is unmistakeable, and enchanting.

MAHLER: Symphony No. 5, and BERG; Wozzeck Excerpts (with soprano Phyllis Curtin) — The Boston Symphony Orchestra with Erich Leinsdorf conducting — RCA Victor Stereo LSC - 7031:

Hot on the heels of competitor Columbia's stereo recording of this massive Mahler work comes Victor's answer to Leonard Bernstein - Erich Leinsdorf.

This five-movement work is less programmatic than other of Mahler's symphonies, and it has no choral section, as do many of the others. It does, however, quote frequently from his songs. The movements are completely integrated and themes appear in fascinating transformations again and again in them.

I would be hard put to decide between the Bernstein or Leinsdorf versions were it not for the better sound of the latter. Unfortunately, my copy was spoiled by bad pressings on two of the four sides.

The excerpts from the 12 - tone opera "Wozzeck" are different from those on a recent Mercury release. They are arranged in a clever sequence that tells the basic horrific plot, and are highlighted by Miss Curtin's superb voice.

Since the complete opera, (thought by many critics the greatest yet written in this century), is still not available in stereo, these excerpts will be much appreciated by record buyers.

WALTON: Violin Concerto — Jascha Heifetz and Philharmonia Orchestra with Sir William Walton conducting and CASTELNUOVO - TEDESCO: Concerto No. 2 for Violin and Orchestra "The Prophets" — Jascha Heifetz and Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra with Alfred Wallenstein conducting — RCA Victor mono LM - 2740:

This is the only recording of the 1933 Castelnuovo - Tedesco work, but the second of the Walton now available. It is a mystery to me why it was released in mono only, since the performances and sound indicate it is not a pre - stereo recording.

The sound is excellent, and performance as well.

Both pieces are fairly conservative, but without any looking-back to the great Romantic violin concerti. The subtitle "The Prophets," for the second work does not indicate a programmatic content — although the work is suffused with Hebrew themes and its three movements bear the names of Old Testament prophets.

ABOVE, Mrs. Frank Howard Allen admires a marine watercolor held by the artist, Darrell McClure. McClure, creator of the comic strip "Little Annie Rooney" and an illustrator for Yachting Magazine, is well known for his seascapes. He has joined with James March Phillips, prominent for his paintings of waterfowl, to stage an exhibit at the Frank Howard Allen realty office at 535 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, with sales benefiting the Marin Audubon Society. Another McClure painting of a favorite subject, the Golden Gate Bridge, can be seen at the right. He says that the watercolors serve as an antidote to the black-and-white cartoon work, and adds that he has been interested in boats since the age of 17 when he went to sea on the last of the sailing ships out of San Francisco—the Matson four-master, the Annie Johnson. He and his wife divide their time between San Francisco and Florida. The Allen office is open daily 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the show will continue through January.

CHRISTMAS TIME

Snow is on the house tops,
Icicles on the eaves;
And children begin to dream
Of the wonders Santa leaves.

There's Richard and Johnny,—

Merry faces pressed so tight
Against the window pane.
Will Santa come across the roof tops,
Or come riding up the lane?

When he comes ariding,
As he does each year,
May each sock be filled with treasures,
Each heart with cheer.

Profile Of A Marinite

The College Of Marin Wanted A Scholar, And Stephen E. Epler Was Their Man

By BOB COPPOCK

Flood control problems at the College of Marin are old hat to its president, Stephen Edward Epler.

He was once in charge when an entire junior college was washed away.

Teachers at Vanport College, in Oregon, led by Epler, scraped off the mud, found new books, desks and rooms, and were back in business within weeks after one of the most disastrous floods of the Columbia River.

This was in 1948.

EPLER FELT a special responsibility. It was his idea to locate a college in Vanport in the first place.

But Epler may be better known nationally as the man who wrote the rules for six-man football.

And he first made "Who's Who" when he published a book advising that colleges should stop giving honorary degrees that make the honored man look as though he actually attended the college.

Epler, who lives at 430 Vista Grande in Kentfield, came to Marin County in 1960 to take over the reins of the College of Marin from retiring President Ward H. Austin.

"WHAT I like best about school administration is the new things, new buildings, new developments in education," Epler says.

He helped the Marin Junior College District board and a citizens' committee draw up a 10-year master plan for development of a modern campus at Kentfield for between 2,500 and 3,000 students and make a start on a second campus at Novato.

But he misses the classroom. In early college administrative jobs, Epler always saved some time so he could teach. But that is no longer possible.

"Students now are more like the students I knew back in the 30s," he says. "They are more carefree than the serious veteran of the late 40s.

"BUT THE impact of the vets and the later impact of Sputnik have made students much more serious than they might be. The silent generation is over. There is much more interest in world affairs and such issues as civil rights."

Epler started his career as a mathematics, science and physical education teacher in a small high school at Chester, Neb. Several young teachers in his own high school steered him toward the career.

"I liked school," he explained. "These fellows got paid for doing things I thought was fun anyway."

He left Brooklyn, Iowa, where he was born Oct. 5, 1909, to earn a Bachelor's Degree at Cotner College, in Lincoln, Neb., and then received a Master's Degree from the University of Nebraska.

THAT WAS in 1933 and a teaching job, with its annual contract, seemed one of the most secure occupations available during the depression.

After teaching at Chester, he went to another small high school at Beatrice, Nebr., and then became instructor of sociology at St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in New York City, while he took graduate courses at Teachers College at Columbia.

From 1938 to 1940 he was administrative assistant for the American Council for Education in Washington, D. C. He was then offered the post of dean of men of Southern Oregon College in Ashland, Ore., his first strong taste of school administration.

IT WAS while teaching at Chester that he wrote down the rules for six-man football. The school was too small to field a full football team, and there were other high schools in the area with the same problem.

"Six-man football is still being used, although in many areas it has been enlarged to eight-man," Epler reports.

Epler entered the navy in 1943 and became athletic officer, training cadet pilots. It was then that six-man football was introduced into the services.

The college president left the navy in 1946 with a rating of lieutenant senior grade, and is now a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve.

While he was at Ashland, he also was working on his doctoral thesis. He received his Ph. D. from Columbia University in 1943. It was the thesis, soon published as a book, which blasted honorary degree practives.

AFTER THE war, he returned to Oregon. He was named veterans' counselor to the General Extension System of the Oregon System of Higher Education.

But it was soon obvious that all colleges were going to be filled to overflowing. The young married veterans, going to school under the GI bill, had an especially serious housing problem.

The Vanport Housing Project near Portland was a large area of temporary housing installed during the war for shipbuilders. At its peak of population it was the second largest city in Oregon, with 50,000 people. Now it was being emptied quickly as shipyards closed.

IN HIS OFFICE at the College of Marin, the school's president, Stephen E. Epler pauses for a moment in his work for a glance at the Kentfield campus outside. Epler came to Marin's college in 1960 with a rich and varied background in education, and has been an active figure in the county's civic life. (Independent-Journal photo)

EPLER MADE the suggestion to the state that Vanport be used to house the first two years of a college program, since most returning veterans would be entering college for the first time. Epler was named director of the project.

"We used high school facilities at night and on Saturday," he recalls. "We remodeled nurseries and abandoned shopping centers. We used a nearby medical school and dental school for classrooms and labs.

"We hired 40 teachers and had 1,500 students the first year. There were about seven campuses."

Then in the winter of 1948, the Columbia River had one of the worst floods in the history of the Pacific Northwest.

"It wiped out the project," Epler says. The college was set up temporarily in a nearby high school while a frantic search was started for more space.

THE KAISER shipyard, Oregonship, was being abandoned at that time, and the offices and big shop buildings fit the college's need. After hasty remodeling, classes were started there, a few miles from Vanport. The school is now known as Portland State College.

In 1955, Epler was hired as the president of Reedley College and as superintendent of the Reedley Union High School District in Fresno County.

In 1960, when he was asked to take the post as director of the College of Marin, his name had been selected from among 131 applicants.

A COMMITTEE of seven men, headed by County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis, culled the list to nine, and the board made the appointment as president of the college on June 30, agreeing to pay $15,000 a year. The present salary is $19,950.

Epler was married in 1935 to Ferne Irene Misner, an accomplished singer who now teaches English at Novato High School. They have two children, Stephen M. Epler, now a graduate student of history at the University of Michigan, and Charlotte, now Mrs. Cameron Doyel of Stockton.

Charlotte was a graduate of the College of Marin and later of the University of the Pacific.

"My only practicing hobby is golf, when I can play it," Epler says. "I have a rudimentary stamp collection. But our daughter has just presented us with our first grandchild, Cynthia Marie, so I guess I have a new hobby now."

EPLER HAS one other way to spend his spare time. He has long been active in educational associations.

He is past president of the Oregon Collegiate Athletic Conference, past president of the Pacific Assn. of Adult Education, past president of the Northwest Assn. of Junior Colleges and past president of the Department of Higher Education of the Oregon Education Assn.

He is a member of the California Teachers Assn. and the California Assn. of School Administrators, and is chairman of the committee on legislation for the California Junior College Assn.

The last post marks his entrance into the doings of a State Legislature but he may have some help.

CHARLES D. Garrigus, assemblyman from Reedley, is chairman of the Assembly Committee on Education. Garrigus was a teacher at Reedley Junior College while Epler was president there.

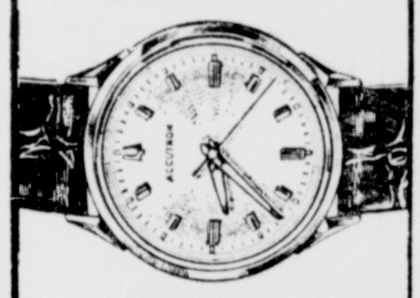

Epler finds some time to be active in civic affairs, and is a member of the Rotary Club and the Masons. He is a registered Democrat.

Hollis, speaking of the selection process, says, "we wanted somebody who could fit in with the sophisticated atmosphere of Marin County. Epler had had experience in big cities and in rural areas, in high schools and colleges.

"We didn't want a glamor boy who would blow in here with a big program, blow it up and blow out. We wanted a scholar."

THE DEODAR CEDAR is an excellent candidate for your living Christmas tree, providing you with holiday decoration now and with garden beauty the year around. With its soft light bluish-green texture and sweeping, graceful branches, it lends itself to holiday decor as though it had been born just for that. Yet it makes a handsome landscape tree when planted outdoors. It is, however, just one of many conifers suited for use as a living Christmas tree.

You Can Select Christmas Tree That Will Live For Future Yules

Owning a real Christmas tree is becoming a family tradition in California.

The family may wish to set the tree out in the garden or keep it in a container, to be wheeled into the house and decorated for the holidays.

Family tastes for living trees cover a wide range of varieties.

SUBJECT OF a renaissance is the top-ranking variety of a number of years ago—the Deodar Cedar, a native of the Himalayas. Growers of this graceful tree with the blue-green needles and satisfying rapid growth, found that shearing in its youthful stages produces a fine, symmetrical tree right from the start.

Your nurseryman will tell you the cedar should be given plenty of space to properly develop its broadly sweeping branches. It should have plenty of headroom —by all means, avoid overhead utilities.

Its rate of growth under favorable conditions will exceed three feet a year until it reaches maturity.

AT THE OTHER side of the growth pattern are the spruces. A foot a year is maximum for these perfectly symmetrical beauties. The Colorado Blue spruce is the favorite.

Since they are grown from seedlings, there is a wide variation in the color of the needles, from light blue, through blue-green to almost green.

The firs grow a little more rapidly, but not very much. Most in demand is our native Sierra White Fir, with blue-green needles longer than those of the spruce, and loosely arranged.

AMONG THE pines, the favorite is the Scots Pine, with regular tiers of branches and two-needled clusters of silver-green needles. It is a moderately rapid grower, slow enough to prosper in a container if desired, or occupying a modest space in the garden.

There are two other pines that are great favorites for table decorations as small trees in one-gallon containers. These are the Italian Stone Pine and the Aleppo Pine. The juvenile foliage is blue-green; habit of growth is compact and symmetrical.

The apartment dweller is not overlooked in this list of living Christmas trees. There is a little beauty known as the dwarf Alberta Spruce, from Alaska and Canada.

A three-foot specimen may be as old as 15 years, and its annual growth is a matter of three or four inches.

Most families display their newly-purchased live tree in the home during the first Christmas.

Here are a few pointers to keep it happy indoors: Choose a tub at the nursery in the size recommended for your tree by your nurseryman. Ask him for enough planting mix to occupy the space between the ball of soil and the inside of the container, as well as provide a light "mulch" at the top.

AS SOON AS the planting is completed, soak the planting mix thoroughly with a slow stream of water, allow to drain, then move into the house. Provide a drip pan beneath the tub and water whenever the soil on top appears to be dry.

Do not keep it indoors for much more than a week or 10 days.

Some Gift Suggestions For Friends With Green Thumbs

When you start to make out your Christmas list, cast one quick thought as to how many friends and relatives would appreciate a living Christmas gift . . . one that would remind them of your thoughtfulness for years to come.

Nurserymen suggest azaleas, heather, camellias and poinsettias.

Don't overlook chrysanthemums, however, for they are attractive house and garden additions with their gorgeous, varied colors and forms. Include a note in your gift saying that it can be planted in the garden when the bloom is over—and it will bloom on its own schedule thereafter in the garden.

AMONG THE excellent gift heathers is John McLaren, a low and rather compact plant with lovely pink tubular flowers. Persoluta, which is bushy and beautiful with rosy and pink shades of bell-shaped flowers is another favorite.

Pink Scotch Heather, one of the most widely grown with its billowy masses of rosy pink flowers and fine foliage, is a delicate and shining gift for anyone on your Christmas list!

All of these heathers will do well in tubs or in the ground. One of their biggest assets is that they all tolerate pruning when in bloom. You can then "prune" bouquets and shape the plant at the same time.

THE EVERGREEN Indica Azaleas certainly take high marks at this season for gifts. They go indoors and outdoors equally well provided the temperatures don't slip too low.

Your nurseryman has a wide selection of azaleas. With judicious buying, you can have bloom from these nearly all year.

Some of those most readily obtainable include: Albert and Elizabeth, a double pink and white; Blushing Bride, a double-flowered blush pink; Avenir, double salmon pink; Mme. Alfred Sanders, and Professor Wolters, a rose and white with ruffled edges. Try some in hanging baskets. They are natural hangers.

IF YOU REALLY want to do something handsome for a close friend whose gardening likes you know, give him or her a number of azaleas of the same variety to mass under a tree or suitable semi-shaded area.

Camellias are sometimes overlooked in the Christmas rush because most japonicas are not yet in bloom. The willowy sasanquas make an excellent gift (or you just might send a japonica with its color portrait and the promise of beauty to come.)

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✔Make your first planting of gladiolus as soon as they show up in nurseries. Some are already there, waiting for you to take home and plant.
- ✔Plant roses and all other deciduous trees and shrubs now.
- ✔Grapes may be pruned any time now. Be sure you know what you want the vine to do before you start. Ask any nurseryman if you're not sure.
- ✔Plant the bright Florist's Cyclamen in sheltered outdoor gardens or in a light and airy sun porch. They bloom all winter.
- ✔Remember cut flowers and plants make an excellent "last minute" Christmas gift. And the former may be "sent" by telegraph virtually around the world.

A HOLIDAY ARRANGEMENT such as this imaginative piece with reindeer pulling a sleigh filled with chrysanthemums, and with holly leaves, evergreen, cones and berries used effectively, can add to the Christmas spirit in your home.

For Holiday Homes

INTERESTING TABLE decorations for the holidays can be made by using the church window idea. A frame is filled with any figure or color idea that you may prefer. The whole is placed between two pieces of Saran Wrap to keep them in place and add the brightness that makes them so attractive. The streams shown in photo are simply colored paper cut-outs placed between two strips of the transparent wrap.

ANOTHER holiday idea from Saran Wrap. Nothing is as gay as the color red, and, in the poinsettia, which is of Mexican origin, the true color of Christmas gaiety is exemplified at its brightest. In the photo above, the simple steps in making these gay flowers with red tissue paper and Saran Wrap are shown. The centers of the flowers may be made of small bits of yellow yarn wrapped in Saran Wrap, or tightly balled yellow paper. After the folded tissue is overwrapped with Saran Wrap, the base is wired. Attach five petals together with two small yellow balls and the flower is finished. The colored circles shown on the table represent balloons in gay color. The place cards are simple cut-outs upon which colored tape is applied to make the stripes on the sombrero. This would be a fine table setting for a party for young people, but is certain to add a light holiday touch to any gathering.

WEEKEND SHOWS

Yule Fare Takes The Spotlight

The Christmas season really begins to make itself felt in the television programming this weekend.

For instance, tonight at 7:30 o'clock KQED will carry a 30-minute special with the late Dylan Thomas reading his classic "A Child's Christmas in Wales" to original music and animation created by Marvin Lichtner.

On KGO, Lawrence Welk will present the children of his music-makers in their annual holiday appearance at 8:30 p.m. and Donald O'Connor will host a "Hollywood Palace" Christmas show at 9:30 with Louis Armstrong, Jane Powell and the Vienna Boys' Choir among his guests. KRON gets into the spirit with a showing of the movie "White Christmas" with Bing Crosby, Danny Kaye, Rosemary Clooney and 15 Irving Berlin tunes including you know what.

Also unusual tonight: Basketball with Stanford vs. Oregon State on KTVU at 8 o'clock; the 1960 movie, "The Mountain Road," with James Stewart fighting the Japanese, on KPIX at 11:15; a discussion of drug addiction at 9 o'clock on KQED, and a one-hour concert on that same channel by the Royal Philharmonic at 10 p.m.

TOMORROW will see repeat showings of such holiday successes of past seasons as the Menotti opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors," by the NBC Opera Company on KRON at 4 p.m.; Walt Disney's animated version of "Alice in Wonderland" on the same channel at 7:30 p.m., and the KPIX-produced puppet performance of Benjamin Britten's "The Little Sweep" on Channel 5 at 1 o'clock.

A Christmas treat for jazz fans will be "The Twentieth Century" report on Duke Ellington's tour of Japan on KPIX at 6 o'clock.

Also in the holiday vein will be a performance of the Hector Berlioz oratorio, "L'Enfance du Christ," by the CBS Symphony Orchestra and the John Butler Dance Theater at 3 p.m. on KPIX: "Sing a Song for Christmas" on KGO's "Directions '65" with Patricia Morrison and John Reardon as soloists at 12:30 p.m.; " A Journey to Bethlehem" with modern poetry and familiar carols on KRON at 1:30; and the movie, "Pocketful of Miracles" with Bette Davis and Glenn Ford at 9 p.m. on KGO-TV.

"World of Religion" on KGO at 8:30 a.m. will present the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School choir in "Christmas—The World and The Music."

Ed Sullivan's Christmas show lineup on KPIX at 8 p.m. will include Jack Jones, the Italian Mouse, singing around the Christmas tree at New York's Rockefeller Center—and a performing mule.

And "Discovery" on KGO at 11:30 a.m. will take its young audience to Liverpool, cradle of beatlemania, to see and hear some of the British rock 'n' roll groups on their home grounds.

Christmas On Television

THE SPECTACULAR NBC-TV production, "The Coming of Christ," telling the story of the Nativity through great art masterpieces, will be repeated on KRON Monday at 8:30 p.m. Above is "Adoration of the Kings," a detail from Hans Memling's "Seven Joys of the Virgin" and one of the works shown on the program.

"THE SOUND of Christmas," a special half-hour of Christmas music to be seen and heard on KPIX-TV Thursday at 11:30 p.m., will feature the Burke Family Singers—mother, father and 10 children—from Providence, R.I. Hostess of the broadcast will be Baroness Maria von Trapp, not shown, who will welcome them to the Trapp Family lodge in Stowe, Vt. The baroness is the mother of the world-famous Trapp Family.

"THE ANDY WILLIAMS Show" on KRON Monday at 9 p.m. will take on a seasonal motif with scenes such as this, as the host is joined by the Osmond Brothers in the singing of "Silver Bells" while they toast marshmallows over a campfire.

PAINTINGS OF THE Nativity done by children around the world will be shown in conjunction with Christmas music by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir Thursday, Christmas Eve, at 11:15 p.m. on KPIX-TV. The above illustration was done by a 9-year-old in India.
